ATHLETICS RETAIN WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP; DYKES, SIMMONS HIT HOMERS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—The Philadelphia Athletics retained their title as world champions here this afternoon when they defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in the sixth battle of the 1930 World Series.

The victory gave the Athletics their fourth of the series, The Cardinals won only two games.

George Earnshaw made his third appearance of the series on the mound against the Cardinals. He was opposed by Wild Bill Hallahan, Cardinal southpaw.

The Athletics nicked Hallahan for two runs in the first inning.

The Cardinal pitcher was lifted in the first half of the third inning to allow Fisher to bat for him. Fisher came through with a double.

Sylvester Johnson took up the hurling burden in the last half of the third.

Simmons increased the Athletics' lead to three runs in the third, when he hit a home run off Johnson with the bases empty. He was the second man to face the relief pitcher.

Dykes smashed a home run with Bishop on base in the fourth inning to give the Athletics a five-run advantage.

WILMERDING MAN TELLS OF CHECKS

Got Money in Return for Loan, Political Leader Says, in Braddock Inquiry

James Volpe, wholesale grocer, and one of the Volpe brothers, reputed political dictators of Wilmerding, was questioned by Chief George W. Murren, of the county detectives, today in the quadruple racket murder in Braddock last Saturday.

Volpe was summoned after detectives found $1,800 in cancelled checks paid to Volpe by Joseph Lobianco, proprietor of a store at 419 Sixth street, Braddock, where Lobianco, his wife, Mary; his brother, Carmen, and Louis T. Tomano were shot down by two gunmen.

Murren stated, after quizzing Volpe for 20 minutes, that the latter had explained he had loaned money to Lobianco and that the checks represented payments on the loan.

Volpe denied knowing anything about the murder. He said he was talking to a bank president in Wilmerding at the time of the shooting, Murren stated.

Six detectives, working on the slaying, have made no arrests, but Murren indicated progress was being made in clearing up the case. Reprisal for encroachments in sale of moonshine in the Braddock district is believed the motive behind the multiple killing.

Coroner W. J. McGregor, who examined the Lobianco store after the slaying, said most of the stock consisted of yeast and sugar, used in manufacture of liquor.

FEAR DYNAMITE IN OHIO PRISON

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Officials at the Ohio penitentiary today were taking every precaution to thwart a reported organized plot to smuggle dynamite into the institution.

Warden Preston E. Thomas did not divulge the source of information regarding the plot, but let it be known that the guard had been doubled at the Spring street stockade and at the railroad stockade in Maple street.

All trucks and wagons entering the prison were being closely scrutinized, and guards were ordered to watch closely all coal cars and box cars that enter the walls.

Officials also were said to have placed six picked guards with automatic rifles at strategic points inside the prison.

A similar plot was discovered prior to the disastrous Easter Monday fire. Officials found a small quantity of the explosive had been smuggled into the prison in a radio set.

Marconi Member Of Fascist Council

ROME, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Signor Guglielmo Marconi yesterday was made a member of the Fascist grand council, the supreme governing body in Italy, succeeding Tomasso Tittoni, formerly president of the Academy of Italy. Premier Mussolini formally appointed Giovanni Battisa Giuriati, president of the Chamber of Deputies, as new secretary and active chief of the Fascist party, at the opening session of the party's grand council.

Wicked Bears Will Sell.
Power, Unlimited, Perhaps.
Two Words Defined.
Good Pay, No Drink.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE NEW YORK Stock Exchange said to brokers: "You must stop wicked bear drives, and short-selling that demoralize values and destroys public confidence."

In response to this command wicked bears proceeded to sell short and attack prices more vigorously than ever.

Bears ask the Stock Exchange governors Mrs. Ruth McCormick's question addressed to Senator Nye, "What are you going to do about it?"

Vicious short selling, intended to decrease values, should be stopped. But HOW?

RAW MATERIALS interest buyers, when prices drop far enough.

Ten cent copper, cheapest in 34 years, brought sales of 175,000,000 pounds last week, England buying a great deal.

STEEL MEN find customers showing interest in "future deliveries," a good sign. They think bottom prices have been reached and with public spirit, follow President Hoover's advice and will not attempt any reduction in wages.

AS WE WORRY about business, wondering what will end the depression, we may be surprised by the breaking out of a few wars. They would soon put up prices of raw materials and stimulate business, if we had brains enough to keep out of them.

EXPERIMENTS IN Cuba, by Georges Claude, French scientist, may mean more to the world than all the wars, and most of the inventions, since Napoleon died.

Taking advantage of difference in temperature between surface and deep water in the gulf, Prof. Claude has succeeded in supplying power to light 40 500-watt electric lamps.

This means actually utilizing the power of the sun. When that is finally accomplished, the human race will possess power unlimited, and will do whatever it can imagine.

GEORGES CLAUDE'S invention might do as much for the harrassed, war-worn world of 1930 as the invention of steam did for the world after the battle of Waterloo.

As Napoleon's candle flickered out, Europe's nations were horribly in debt, and conditions seemed hopeless.

Then came the invention of steam, stimulating industry, supplying transportation, giving work to millions. The population and the wealth of Great

CARDS AROUSE PHILLY FANS

By JAMES J. LONG,
Staff Correspondent.

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—When the series opened here last week Philadelphia fans showed little enthusiasm. They appeared to consider it a walkover for the A's and looked for the fighting to end in not more than five games.

The big brace taken by the Cards in beating the Mackmen twice in succession and showing that it was to be a real fight brought the Quaker City fans out of their apathy.

The new interest was reflected in an earlier rush than usual for the unreserved seats. Those in the lower section of the stand in left and center fields as well as the rows of benches in the wild cat stands on the roof tops on the opposite side of the street bordering the park were filled at an earlier hour than was the cast last week, and every bit of space ap-

PINCHOT BRANDS PHILADELPHIA BOLTERS 'GANGSTERS'

CUNNINGHAM WILL BACK HEMPHILL

Sheriff, Ward Leaders Ready To Join Liberals; Auditor General Calls for Loyalty

By E. L. RAWLEY.
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Cannonading began all along the political front in Philadelphia today.

Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for governor, arrived during the night from his Pike County home. He immediately fired a vigorous blast at Councilman Charles B. Hall, leader of the bolt to the banners of John M. Hemphill, Liberal-Democratic gubernatorial aspirant.

Pinchot not only aimed verbal shots at Hall but also included State Senator Samuel Salus, another one of the bolters, in his attack.

WATERS JOINS ATTACK

He was joined in his assault by Auditor General Charles A. Waters, of Germantown. Then S. Davis Wilson, director of Pinchot's Philadelphia campaign, launched another sally at Hall and his followers.

While Pinchot was declaring Hemphill was "welcome" to Hall, Salus and others of their political persuasions, Councilman Harry Trainer, long an avowed wet, indicated he will join the Hemphill forces.

Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, treasurer of the Republican State Committee, is expected to join in the bolt within the next day or two. Announcement of his switch to the Hemphill camp is expected to be preceded by his resignation as treasurer. Several other local ward leaders are expected to follow Hall, Trainer and Salus.

WELCOME TO HALL

Pinchot declared:

"Hemphill is more than welcome to Hall and Salus. They always have been gangsters first and Republicans as a matter of convenience afterwards. For every vote these men deliver, steal or count for Hemphill in Philadelphia, indignant upstate voters will give me not less than two."

Waters called upon the young Republicans to save the party in Philadelphia. He termed Hall "a burned out political cinder ready for the ash heap, adding:

"The mask is off. Mr. Hall does the right thing in resigning from the Republican campaign committee.

"Mr. Hall candidly admits nearly one-half a century of service in the Republican party. He neglects to state, however, that great personal aggrandizement followed his patriotic efforts. He can well afford to retire from political accivities and enjoy his remaining years in comfort and ease."

UTILITIES HOSTILE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—"Utilities of the state will not tolerate the election of Pinchot as governor."

That was the prediction which stirred political thought here today, after Samuel Vauclain, former head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, delivered it last night in the course of an address to the Pennsylvania division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Vauclain said:

"Mr. Pinchot says he will do away with the Public Service Commission as it now exists, a commission that in my judgment has handled its affairs in satisfactory manner.

"The utilities of the state will not tolerate him to become governor. The state should not be governed by one who has no other defense than abolition of the Public Service Commission."

BLONDE, DAGUE APPEAL MADE

Counsel began arguments before the State Supreme Court this afternoon on the appeal of Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague from their sentence to death in Lawrence County for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, of the state highway patrol.

Attorney Percy Allen Rose, of Johnstown, argued for the doomed pair, while Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti, of Punxsutawney, was to represent the commonwealth.

By special permission of the court the blonde did not have to provide printed copies of the voluminous testimony, which would have entailed an expense of several thousand dollars.

The principal part of the defense was that the court had refused to permit admission of an "irresistible impulse" as a proper defense on the part of the trigger woman.

Attorneys Thomas W. Dickey and Benjamin Jarrett, trial counsel for Irene and Dague, were present, but it was uncertain whether they would participate in the oral arguments. District Attorney John S. Powers, of Lawrence County, and Attorneys Sebastian C. Publiese and Edward Friedman also were on hand.

Ruth Born, 9, of Allen Place, Ross Township, suffered a probable fracture of the skull last night when she was struck by an automobile near her home. The car was driven, police said, by Harry Armstrong, of 305 Ridgeway avenue, West View. The girl was taken to Presbyterian Hospital, where it was said her condition was serious.

RATE DEFENDED ON LAKE COAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Defense of the rail carriers in the differential dispute over rates on lake cargo coal from the northern fields—Ohio and Western Pennsylvania—and the southern fields—West Virginia and Kentucky—was begun before the examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission with testimony designed to show that any change in the present situation would cause economic depression.

F. M. Whitaker, vice president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad in charge of traffic, testified that a spread of even 25 cents per ton worked a handicap upon the Southern producers that cannot be overcome except by some extraordinary condition.

Following Whitaker's testimony, Roy S. Kern of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Coal, Coke and Iron Ore Committee of the Central Freight Association territory, began to read into the record a 160-page mileage survey of active mines on all railroads from which rates are published to lower Lake Erie ports.

Coolidge Urges Voters Not to Experiment Now

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 8.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

We ought to get some light on how to conduct our public affairs by observing how we manage our private affairs. When times are good and money is plenty we are willing to make liberal commitments. We take chances even to the extent of reckless extravagance. But at such times we want a conservative government. We disapprove of any proposed radical action.

Calvin Coolidge

But when some depression in business comes we begin to be very conservative in our financial affairs. We save our money and take no chances in its investment. Yet in our political actions we go in the opposite direction. We begin to support radical measures and cast our votes for those who advance the most reckless proposals.

This is a curious and entirely illogical reaction. When times are good we might afford to take a chance on a radical government. But when we are financially weakened we need the soundest and wisest of men and measures.

The coming election is no time for rash experiments. The best we can get will be none too good. It is a time to use the same care in our pilitics that we use in our finances.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Wickersham Group Scans Mass of Dry Law Data

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Confronted anew with reports which might help on any conclusions they care to draw regarding prohibition, the 11 members of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission met today for the first time in almost four months.

The data represented a harvest from summer work of the commission's investigators. The gathering, as usual, was closed and no public statement was immediately forthcoming.

Chairman George W. Wickersham declined again to comment on the course the commission will pursue. He had studied the reports, but indicated he would hold to the policy of secret sessions and silence on matters under discussion until some action had been taken.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attoney general in chage of prohibition, was in the commission offices today. She quickly disposed of consequent speculation with the remark that she had come to recommend a friend for a secretarial position.

PINCHOT RALLY CALLED BY ARMSTRONG

Campaign Finance Plan To Be Considered; G. O. P. Loses German Societies

Republican County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong has made the first definite move in the local campaign for the election, November 4, of the ticket headed by Gifford Pinchot for governor and James J. Davis for United States senator by calling a meeting of office holders, nominees and workers Friday night in Hotel Henry headquarters.

CANDIDATES INVITED

Armstrong sent out invitations to city and county elected officials, nominees for Congress and the General Assembly, city administration leaders and chairmen of legislative districts outside of Pittsburgh.

Armstrong yesterday accepted appointment by State Chairman Edward Martin to membership on the Republican State Executive Committee.

German-American societies of Pennsylvania have rallied behind John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party gubernatorial nominee in his campaign to defeat Pinchot, according to Arthur M. Scully, Liberal party county chairman.

John L. Fett, president of the German Singing Societies of Pennsylvania, sent notices to each member asking him to support Hemphill so as defeat Pinchot, Scully declared.

PROPOSE DEBATE

The Allegheny County Labor Conference for Progressive Political Action that has indorsed Pinchot for governor and James J. Davis for United States senator was challenged yesterday by the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Conference for Progressive Labor Action to a public debate on "Who Should Organized Labor Indorse?"

Dr. William J. Van Essen, county chairman of the Socialist party, yesterday, commenting on the recent registration of voters, said:

"This poor registration is a silent indorsement of our party's plank to wipe out the poll tax. With existing unemployment and the several difficulties of eligible voters to secure tax receipts, there can be no fair vote at the polls."

CRUSADER'S DENIAL

The Crusaders denied yesterday that the anti-dry organization is the tool of the public utilities, that it is a supporter of the coal and iron police and that it has been taken over by the Liberal party. The statement declared:

"These charges against them arise out of the nature of Pinchot's platform. Pinchot is running on a 'shot-gun' platform. It covers so much ground it is difficult to escape hitting something.

"The Crusaders take the position that no single occurrence would advance their cause more than the defeat of Pinchot."

FLAMES TRAP 3 IN OHIO MINE

MASSILLON, O., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Three members of the night crew at the Dalton Coal Company, 10 miles west of here, were trapped in the slope mine today by a fire that destroyed all the buildings at the mouth of the workings.

Those trapped were Russell Shanklon, Robert Douglas and Harvey Sword, all of Mt. Pleasant.

Barrels of water were hauled from a nearby village to aid in combatting the flames, which destroyed all the buildings surrounding the mouth of the mine.

Rush E. Heller, 50, Canton undertaker, aiding in the rescue attempts, went in the mine a few minutes, but was brought to the open in serious condition from inhaling smoke and monoxide gas. Physicians said he had little chance for recovery.

Churchill's Son Here to Lecture

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—A handsome blonde blue-eyed youth has come from England to lecture. He is Randolph S. Churchill, 19, son of Winston Churchill, and he is to tell the land of his grandmother why he is not a Socialist and all about "the silliest and sloppiest of sentimentalists" who ever sat on the bench in the House of Commons, meaning the present government.

Plane Leads Posse To Gunplay Suspect

HAXTON, Col., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—An airplane, used in a man-hunt, enabled possemen to locate a fugitive hiding in a corn field and the capture of "Blackie" Crocker, accused of shooting Ben Vermoss, 30, of Haxton, in a dispute over a card game, resulted. Vermoss is in a serious condition from the wound.

HER PARTNER FIGHTS

ONA MUNSON

Miss Munson, film actress, whose dance partner in Hollywood, Ernst Lubitsch, famed conductor, didn't like so-called "taunts" from his former wife and his former assistant, Hans Kraly, dance partners. So he walked over and punched Herr Kraly in the face!

HOPES EX-WIFE WILL MARRY

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—A fisticuffs exhibition between Ernst Lubitsch, prominent motion picture director, and Hans Kraly, film writer, which enlivened a ball given by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford here last Saturday night, apparently had reached the simmering stage today.

Lubitsch and Kraly, once close friends, met at the grand opera performance here last night and acquaintances said many glares were exchanged.

Mrs. Helene Lubitsch, divorced wife of the director, accompanied Kraly to the opera.

Commenting on reports that she and Kraly would be married some time in the future, Mrs. Lubitsch said she was not sure that she would wed the film director, declaring "only time will tell."

Lubitsch asserted Mrs. Lubitsch had told him she and Kraly intended to be married. He declared:

"I shall send them a marvelous wedding present. I hope they are married 100 years. He deserves it."

Horseshoe Rinks For City Parks Next Summer

Horseshoes?

Not immediately, but next summer.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang announced yesterday that he has surveyed 50 locations for quoit and horseshoe rinks in the parks and will install 25 next spring. The outdoor bowling green in Schenley Park also will be completed in the spring, he said.

SOLICITORS FOR CHURCH HELD

P. C. Depew, 53, of 2953 Churchview street, Brentwood, claiming to be an archbishop of the "North American Old Roman Catholic Church," and Miss Loretta Imber, same address, were given a hearing in East End Police Station today after they were arrested on charges of soliciting funds and making false statements regarding the purpose for which the money was to be used.

Miss Imber, according to police, said she was taking a census of Sacred Heart parish and asking for money.

Miss Elizabeth Kearns, teacher, and a member of Sacred Heart Church, became suspicious and called the pastor of the church, who told her the solicitor was an impostor. Miss Kearns summoned police, but before they arrived Depew and Miss Imber drove away and were followed by Miss Kearns in her own car.

The pair was arrested at Craig street and Fifth avenue.

Depew says he is organizing a church of the denomination he claims to represent at Carson and South Nineteenth streets and defended his right to solicit funds. Magistrate Charles Papale held the pair for further examination.

Wales' Talk on Air In U. S. October 30

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—The National Broadcasting Company announced that an address by the Prince of Wales at the League of Nations Union dinner in London will be broadcast in the United States over a nation-wide network from 4:45 until 5:30 p. m., Thursday, October 30.

SCHNEIDER'S CASE NEAR COLLAPSE

Andrini Repudiates His 'Confession' as Constable Faces Collusion Trial

The commonwealth's case against John Schneider, former First Ward Republican committee chairman and constable, collapsed today when the state's star witness, Harry Andrini, convicted payroll robber, repudiated a statement he allegedly made implicating the defendant.

Schneider is charged with being instrumental in Andrini's escape from the prisoner's box in Criminal Court last year and with being an accessory in crimes after the getaway. Andrini was recaptured in a McKees Rock hideout several months ago after a bank robbery. He is now under sentence of from 30 to 54 years.

As the state closed its case, visiting Judge John H. McCann admitted from the bench that the case against Schneider was weak. Attorney Louis Little, addressing the jury, defined the case against his client as a "frame" to oust Schneider from downtown politics.

DRUGGIST TESTIFIES

The most damaging testimony against Schneider was offered by Albert S. Stewart, an East street druggist, who testified he heard Andrini, from a telephone booth in his store, say:

"Officer Smith, here is Schneider on the line now."

Smith is a city patrolman, charged with having released Andrini after arresting him in connection with the robbery of an East street drug store. It was charged that Smith released Andrini after he was asked to do so by Schneider.

Smith testified he arrested Andrini on the night of March 26, but that he released the prisoner after Schneider had persuaded him to do so. He said he arrested Andrini in connection with a holdup.

ANDRINI GUARDED

Andrini was brought into court guarded by two deputy sheriffs. On the stand he denied having been arrested by Smith. Earl Adair, assistant district attorney, was surprised. Andrini then further denied that he was author of an alleged confession revealed to him by the prosecutor. He denied that the signature was his.

Schneider denied he knew Andrini, that Smith had telephoned him, and said that he did not leave his home on the night Smith arrested Andrini. He added that his official capacity as ward chairman necessitated his presence at home to meet job seekers, Schneider's wife, a bride of a year, corrobrated her husband's statements.

By agreement of counsel for both sides, the case is being tried with 11 jurors. Edwin L. Stapulis, a talesman, of 138 Wilkins road, could not appear in court.

Dreiser, American Writer, May Win Noble Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Theodore Dreiser, American novelist, was mentioned prominently in Stockholm newspapers today as a possible winner of this year's Noble prize in literature.

Although the greatest secrecy is maintained as to the actual winner, it is understood Dreiser has several champions in the Swedish Academy, which annually awards the prize.

Other writers reported having a chance to win are Paul Valery, French poet, born in 1871; Roger Martin du Gard, also a Frenchman, born in 1881, whose work "Les Thibault" throws light on the contrast between Catholics and Protestants in France, and Johannes V. Jensen, Danish novelist, born in 1873, among whose more important books is one entitled "Christofer Columbus," published in 1921.

Due to the general prosperity in Sweden and advantageous investment of the funds of the Nobel foundation, mostly in Swedish securities, the prizes this year will set a new high record, each award being valued at 172,947 kroner ($46,350).

BRITAIN MOURNS AS CRUISER BRINGS BACK DIRIGIBLE DEAD

MACDONALD MEETS SAD CORTEGE

Prince of Wales to Attend Funeral Services as King's Representative

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Britain mourned its dead today, home from abroad, while the toll of the R-101 disaster reached 48 with the death in France today of Samuel Church, a member of the crew.

Coffins containing the bodies of the other 47 victims were brought home aboard a cruiser and conveyed to London by special train, which slipped into Victoria Station in the ghostly hours of a rainy night, awaited by thousands of sympathetic and curious who pressed against the station gates.

LIE IN STATE

In the forlorn group inside the trainshed which awaited the funeral dirge were many high government officials, including Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald as well as several relatives of the dead.

Six husky Britishers lifted the flag-draped coffins from the funeral coaches and carried them slowly to the motor carriages waiting to take them to the Westminster mortuary, from which they will be removed after fulfillment of legal requirements to lie in state in centuries-old Westminster Hall next to the houses of Parliament until Saturday.

PRINCE TO ATTEND

At noon Friday a memorial service will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral at which King George will be represented by the Prince of Wales. On Saturday the bodies will be taken in solemn funeral procession through the main thoroughfares of London to the train station.

After another funeral ceremony at Bedford, the 47 coffins will be lowered into a common grave in St. Mary's churchyard at Cardington, the British dirigible base from which the dead and the living soared away in the world's mightiest airship so hopefully Saturday.

HUNT BIGAMIST IN BRIDE KILLING

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Search for George W. E. Perry, of Cleveland, was redoubled today after the body of the woman murder victim found in the Wisconsin north woods was identified as that of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, Perry's bride of last June.

Mrs. Hackett, the widow of a federal secret service man, was shot to death last July, presumably while on her honeymoon. The body was found near Lac du Flambeau and identified last night by Dr. Edward L. Miloslavich, Milwaukee pathologist. She had been shot.

Perry and Mrs. Hackett were married here on June 16 and left on a tour of the Lac du Flambeau region.

Friends became alarmed when the bride stopped sending letters, and an investigation revealed that Perry already had a wife in Cleveland, Mrs. Katherine Gebhart Perry.

Swarthmore Raises Co-ed Smoking Ban

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—The rule against smoking by women at Swarthmore College was repealed by the board of managers of the institution. The petition of the Women's Student Government Association that provision be made for co-eds who smoke was referred to the faculty committee.

The faculty committee had recommended to the board that the women's request be granted.

U. S. Narcotic Agents Seize Small Arsenal

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Federal narcotic agents and police arrested two men and seized a small arsenal of automatic pistols, machine guns, a fountain pen pistol, tear gas shells and a burglar's mask in a raid on a downtown apartment tonight.

The raid followed a month of investigation of an alleged nationwide narcotic ring.

50 Persons Missing In Mexican Flood

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Fifty persons were missing today in the City of Pachuca after a flood caused by a cloudburst had inundated it during the night. Troops patrolled the streets all during the day.

The flood was caused by the overflowing of the River Avenidas, swollen by cloudbursts.

SENATOR'S CAR BALKS BANDITS

CHELAN, Wash., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Senator Wesley L. Jones unwittingly brought about the capture of two alleged bank robbers when his automobile blocked their escape on a narrow road at Wapto Lake.

Henry Rule, 21, Campsin, Alberta, was shot and wounded dangerously as he and his companion, Audrey Robins, 17, Columbia, S. C., raced up a woody gulch after Senator Jones' automobile had blocked their car.

Bob Kercheman and Paul Younger captured the youths, who had $1,000 in currency taken in a robbery of the Miners' and Merchants' Bank here an hour earlier.

Senator Jones witnessed the capture.

2 Robbed at Carnegie Hall; Suspects Held

Two alleged pickpockets were arrested by Oakland police in the crowd that milled about Carnegie Music Hall last night trying to hear the religious discussion. Magistrate James J. O'Connor, of the Oakland station, held Frank Sanders, 38, of Mineapolis, and Harry Davis, 46, of Cleveland, for further examination.

John E. Bell, of Dravosburg, and John E. Youngson, of 936 Kenenbeck avenue, said they were robbed of their wallets.

Youth Gets 30 Days For Stealing $25

Mike Skowran, 16, of 1828 Magnolia street, today was sent to jail for 30 days by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court, after admitting he stole $25 from his brother-in-law, with whom he made his home. The youth told the magistrate he took the money, bought clothing and food and was penniless when arrested.

BRAZIL BATTLE IMMINENT

By PERCY FORSTER,
International News Service.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 8.—An important battle between Brazilian federal forces and insurrectionists is expected hourly on the border of Sao Paulo state, Montevideo dispatches reaching here today declared.

The reports stated large forces of rebel troops were advancing steadily toward the border, preceded by an airplane dropping copies of a manifesto calling upon the people to join the revolt.

Sao Paulo itself continues steadfastly loyal to the government, the dispatches said.

While the federal government of President Washington Luis continued to insist from Rio De Janeiro, the capital, that the rebellion was fast crumbling before the onslaught of federal forces, opposition leaders were equally active in contradicting these claims, with reports of victories in their favor.

PRESIDENT SEES TOUR SUCCESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—President Hoover returned to the capital today from a week's speechmaking, which embraced a triangular swing through a dozen states, feeling that he has done his bit for his party in the campaign for control of Congress.

He has delivered four speeches in widely separated sections of the country, in Ohio, in Massachusetts and in North Carolina. In each state the parties are locked in a close, keen struggle, with Republican chances looking none too good. November will tell how efficacious the presidential visits have been.

Illinois Council Strikes Over Chief

PITTSFIELD, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—The Pittsfield City Council is on a strike.

The city fathers did not ask more money or shorter hours. What they did want was the discharge of Police Chief Jeff Davis. Until he is dismissed, they informed Mayor Herbert Vertress, not one bill would be passed.

Britain increased as they had never increased before.

England's debts, left over from Napoleonic wars, with England financing other countries, as she did recently in Europe, seemed hopelessly overwhelming. But with steam, that great debt became a trifle.

We need some invention, some man of genius to do for the world now what the invention of steam did for our ancestors of more than a hundred years ago.

IN SOUTH CAROLINA yesterday President Hoover described the difference between our system of government among workers. He said:

"In the American system, through free and universal education, we train the runners; we strive to give them an equal start; our government is the umpire of its fairness. The winner is he who shows the most conscientious training, the greatest ability, the strongest character.

"Socialism or its violent brother, Bolshevism, would compel all the runners to end the race equally; it would hold the swiftest to the speed of the most backward. Anarchy would provide neither training nor umpire. Despotism or class government picks those who run and also those who win."

WHEN HENRY FORD said he must close his factories if prohibition came to an end, he was asked how he could run factories in England and other countries with no prohibition.

Today Mr. Ford announces that workers in his enormous British factory at Dagenham will not be allowed to drink "even a glass of beer at luncheon."

BRITISH REPORTERS who asked how Mr. Ford proposed to keep Britons that "never, never shall be slaves," from having their beer, he replied, "We shall attend to it in our own way," and would give no other answer.

THE BRITISH will not take kindly to any effort to force upon them, in their own land, a prohibition that has not yet been forced upon Americans, at home.

DISCUSSING the serious American crime wave, do not confine observations or thoughts to the sawed-off shotgun operators and rum runners.

Light is cast on our national state of morals by New York City investigators announcing that charges are made against "almost every one" of the magistrates sitting in judgment in Manhattan and the Bronx, two of New York's biggest boroughs.

When the criminal at the bar suspects that the judge sending him to jail is a grafter and crook, that must demoralize justice somewhat.

GIUSEPPE PIRAINO, racketeer-gangster called "the clutching hand," was murdered by competitors not long ago. Now his son Carmine is similarly murdered.

Earl Irvin Roberts, a dapper gun-man, is also murdered in Brooklyn by gangsters.

Police, that should know, say the dead bodies found represent only a small number of those "taken for a ride." Many when shot are thrown where nobody will find them. Friends and relatives make no inquiries, for sound reasons.

SCHOOL INMATE ADMITS KILLING

GLEN MILLS, Pa., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Police announced that Alexander McClay Williams, 18, Negro, inmate of the Glen Mills school for boys, had confessed he had stabbed Mrs. Vida Robare to death with an ice pick to "get even" with her husband, Fred Robare, a farming instructor at the school, for reprimanding him. Mrs. Robare was a matron at the institution.

Williams confessed after nearly three hours of grilling, the police said. The youth was removed from the school to avert any possibility of violence at the hands of the other 600 inmates.

Launch Vote Drive In Westmoreland

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—The campaign of the Westmoreland County Republican Committee to elect a ticket in November officially opens late this week. Committee members in the 225 election districts are working to get out the vote next month. A Republican rally will be held here October 20.

'GHOST' THIEVES ROB 40 HOMES

Knoxville and Mt. Oliver residents are in terror of "ghost" house-breakers, who, almost nightly for the past two months, have robbed homes with reckless disregard of police, and have left no clue except "jimmy" marks on kitchen windows.

Forty robberies in the past three weeks is the total in Knoxville, and Mt. Oliver has had more than a dozen in the same period.

In the last several nights the thieves entered five homes on Arabella street, Knoxville. The homes were those of William R. Thomas, 338 Arabella street; Len Snyder, 236 Arabella street; H. W. Hill, 234 Arabella street; William Sill, 232 Arabella street, and P. E. Rowan, 246 Arabella street.

City Detectives George Owens and Frank Norwicki and three plainclothes men from the Carrick Police Station say they have run themselves "ragged" in an effort to catch the robbers, but have nothing to report except the "jimmy" marks on a kitchen window in each place entered.

St. Vincent Clerics To Study in Rome

LATROBE, Pa., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—The Venerable Father Rembert Sorg, O. S. B., and the Venerable Father Oliver Grosselin, O. S. B., have left for New York City to sail on the S. S. Vulcania for Rome where they will take higher studies in philosophy and theology at the Benedictine International University Collegio, San Anselmo.

Both men are members of the St. Vincent Arch Abbey here, and they will return to teach in St. Vincent College after studies abroad.

Officials Indicted In Dry Violation

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Twenty-nine persons, including three officials, were indicted in connection with the alleged operations of a liquor ring in Tillman County by a Federal grand jury which reported 177 indictments to Judge Edgar S. Vaught here.

P. V. Ruch, Frederick County attorney; C. A. Wages, sheriff; Robert S. Rogers, deputy, and Bud Walls, former deputy, were indicted in the conspiracy.

New Award Made For Street Project

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—After a previous award for improvement of East Lincoln street was disapproved by the State Highway Department, Council awarded the contract to Hardy & Rankin, of Canonsburg, low bidders, at $17,426.51. A section 1,337 feet long is to be improved.

LEGION VETS CURB RIOTS IN BOSTON

Disorder Follows Frolic; Gen. Gouraud Presents Loving Cup From French

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—City and American Legion police controlled the downtown streets today after a night of disorder by mobs of hoodlums.

Overturned automobiles, the ashes of a score of bonfires that had been built in downtown thoroughfares and on Boston Common, and here and there a battered head, marked the passing of the rowdies.

Several hundred persons were treated for minor injuries during the night. None of the injuries were serious.

CONDEMN REDS

Resolutions condemning Communistic activity in the United States and regretting the acts of vandalism by hoodlums during the night were adopted at the opening of today's session of the Legion. The delegates had gathered at the hall more than an hour late.

The resolution pertaining to the acts of vandalism said the Legion had observed "with regret and disgust the disgraceful conduct of some rowdies and hoodlums, who have no connection with the American Legion, but who are taking advantage of this occasion to masquerade as Legionnaires."

Several distinguished guests were on the speaking program of today's session. These included Admiral William S. Benson, Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs at Washington; Gen. Heri Gouraud, French World War hero; William R. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Maj. Gen. Sir William Hickie, of Ireland.

FRENCH LOVING CUP

Gen. Gouraud spoke through an interpreter, and, at the conclusion of his address, presented to the Legion, through O. L. Bodenhamer, its national commander, a loving cup as a gift of the French republic.

Chief among the business items to be considered today was the selection of the scene of the next national convenion. A brisk fight for the convention was waged by the cities of Los Angeles and Detroit.

ROBBERS SLAY POLICE CHIEF

MURPHY, N. C., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Mack Carringer, chief of police of Murphy, was shot to death, and five other persons wounded, three perhaps fatally, early today in a gun fight with three men suspected of robbing the postoffice at Coker Creek, Tenn.

Two of the suspected postoffice robbers were shot down and are not expected to recover. The third suspect escaped. Policeman George Leatherwood, 35, was shot through the right lung, and Policeman Burt Savage in the arm.

Bellevue Approves Plans for School

The Bellevue School Board has approved plans and specifications for an 8-room addition to the Grant School Building and bids will be opened October 23. The plans, prepared by Edward Stotz, architect, call for a large recreation room on the first floor, that later can be subdivided into four classrooms, if needed. Work will begin as soon as the contract is awarded with the expectation of completing the addition by September 1, next year.

Workers' Insurance Prosecutions Fail

Of seven employers arraigned before Alderman Ray E. Schneider today on charges preferred by Edward Geis, state compensation inspector, six were discharged after they produced compensation insurance policies. The hearing of the seventh defendant was continued.

Critic of Women Drivers Recants Under Pressure

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Women are positively not the world's worst drivers of automobiles, and Frank Kreml, traffic chief of the Evanston police department, wants this distinctly understood.

Mr. Kreml was quoted last week as making uncomplimentary statements concerning the ability of women to drive an automobile.

But today Mr. Kreml firmly defended the driving ability of women. The amount of "fan" (or "pan") mail he has received from all over the country criticizing his attitude has been prodigious.

"Please tell the ladies," said Mr. Kreml today, "to let me alone. I didn't mean to imply that women are to blame for most of the automobile wrecks. Quite the contrary. Sixty per cent of the drivers in Evanston are women; and only 7 per cent of the accidents are caused by them.

"The ladies are to be complimented, and I hereby compliment them."

It was mighty nice of Mr. Kreml to say that—and doubtless it will greatly reduce his mail.

Coolidge and Wife Guests At Hearst Dinner Party

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER,
Universal Service Society Editor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Former President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge were among the guests who attended the dinner party given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst to mark the formal opening of their new country house at Sand's Point, Port Washington, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst acquired the property, then known as Beacon Towers, several years ago from Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont.

Since that time they have made many alterations and additions to the residence, which occupies a commanding site overlooking Long Island Sound. Last evening the guests dined in the new banquet hall.

In addition to the former President and his charming wife, Mr. and Mrs. Hearst entertained Lady Ribblesdale, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor; Mr. and Mrs. Owen D. Young, Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Mr. and Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson—Mrs. Robertson will be remembered as the one-time Cordelia Drexel Biddle; Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Conde Nast, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bayard Swope, "Tommy" Hitchcock, Jr., the celebrated polo player, and his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brisbane.

Others at the dinner were Mrs. Elinor Patterson, of Washington; Mrs. Moore Torlonia, Mrs. Nelson Doubleday, Mrs. Phyllis Browne, Mrs. Gladys Kemp, Mrs. Malcolm Meacham and Eleanor Barry.

Also present were Vincent Astor, Percy Rivington Payne II, William Rhinelander Stewart, Charles Hayden, Lytle Bull, James A. Moffett, Charles E. Mitchell and James I. Bush.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst will keep the Sand's Point house open throughout the winter season.

Charge Ashtabula Man With Murder

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Oct. 8.—Joseph Rossi, 33, proprietor of a pool room at Ashtabula, last night was bound over to the Tuscarawas County grand jury by Mayor Robert W. Maxwell, of Dennison, 12 miles south of here, on a charge of first degree murder. He is held in connection with the death of an unidentified foreigner whose mutilated body was found September 29 in a ditch in the outskirts of Dennison.

Deny Briand Victim Of Atack or Mishap

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Official denial was made of reports that Foreign Minister Aristide Briand had been the victim of an automobile accident or that an attempt had been made on his life.

It was explained that the rumors probably arose from the fact the foreign minister contracted a slight cold during the League of Nations meetings in Geneva and was keeping to his room.

La Follette to Aid Walsh in Campaign

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., of Wisconsin, a Republican, will campaign in behalf of Senator Thomas Walsh, Montana, and Edward Costigan, of Colorado, his office said. Both are Democrats.

Senator La Follette now is in Rochester, Minn., but he is to return here this week and then will go West.

Religious School Workers to Dine

Sponsors and workers of the Week Day Religious Schools of Ben Avon and Emsworth will hold a dinner at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Ben Avon Presbyterian Church, at which the Rev. Dr. Hugh Leith, of Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, will speak. Final plans will be made for a canvass of the two boroughs next Sunday for funds to support the schools.

CHICAGO HEARST FETE GREATEST IN YEARS

Thompson States Thursday Spectacle Will Make History; Oakland Date Set

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Mayor Thompson promised last night that the patriotic demonstration to be held Thursday—Chicago Day — will be the greatest spectacle seen here since the Chicago fire itself, He said:

"October 9, 1871, saw Chicago aflame and in ruins. October 9, 1930, will see Chicago aflame with the spirit of patriotism and a determination to build for prosperity."

William Randolph Hearst, who was tendered enthusiastic receptions in New York and Boston on his return from Europe, will be the guest of honor in Thursday's celebration here.

There will be two parades. One was described by the Mayor as the most colorful ever formed. The other, he said, will be the longest ever organized. The Mayor said:

"I think the people of Chicago will agree with me that I have given them some real shows. I am sure they will agree with me that the Chicago Day fete will have capped them all."

OAKLAND PLANS FETE

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 8.—Oakland and the East Bay district will extend official greetings to William Randolph Hearst on Friday, October 17, it was announced by Mayor John L. Davie today.

The Oakland reception, a tribute to the publisher's long career of public service, will follow a similar welcome to be given him in San Francisco on Thursday, October 16.

The official announcement by Mayor Davie resulted in the formation of a tentative program which will adequately convey the city's appreciation. Veterans' organizations, representatives of Greater Oakland civic and commercial organizations and city officials will take part.

The following telegram from Mr. Hearst was received by Mayor Davie:

"Thank you for your kind telegram. I will be in San Francisco on October 16. Will October 17 be agreeable for me to visit Oakland?"

Mayor Davie replied that this date would be acceptable and went into conference with Commissioner Charles I. Anderson, who will represent the Mayor in making arrangements.

VETS INVITE HEARST

Commissioner Anderson, following conferences with other officials, announced that a delegation from Oakland would probably go to San Francisco on the morning of October 17 and escort Mr. Hearst to Oakland.

An invitation to the publisher to be the guest of honor at the state convention of the United Veterans of the Republic, in Fresno, was extended today by Al W. Chase, of Oakland, commander of the California department of the organization.

Hospital Enrolls Class of 60 Nurses

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—Sixty young women have enrolled in the school of nursing in the Westmoreland Hospital, the largest number in its history. Four of the number are from the 1930 graduating class of Greensburg High School.

PROMPT ACTION TO WIN TRIPS

Hurry, girls! If you want to avail yourselves of Gloria Swanson's wonderful free trip to Paris, all expenses paid and $200 extra money to spend, or one of the five free trips to Bermuda as guests of the Sun-Telegraph, now is the time for action. Don't wait! Clip the nomination blank today, read the rules in the blank and if you are eligible, fill in the blank and send it today. By return mail the Paris-Bermuda editor will send you a letter telling you all about the plan of the awards.

The trip to Paris will require nearly a full month. The lucky girl to get this trip will sail on, or about December 6 on the French liner Paris from New York and will be given a whirlwind week of sightseeing in the gayest city in the world. And everything will be de luxe, including the steamship accommodations and the hotels in Paris.

The trips to Bermuda are also going to be de luxe in every sense of the term. The winning girls will sail on one of the big palatial Munson liners, will have accommodations at the best hotels in Bermuda and will be given extra money to spend while they are away. They will not have to spend a penny of their own and their sightseeing tours will all be arranged for in advance.

Girls, if you are interested, clip the nomination blank printed in today's Sun-Telegraph on this page and after reading the rules therein, mail it to the Paris-Bermuda Contest Editor today.

What The Normal Man Should Weigh

Ages 45 to 49

According to Leonard Williams, M. D., a gifted writer on Obesity—a man's normal weight at ages 45 to 49—

5 Ft. 7 Inches	156 Pounds
5 Ft. 8 "	161 "
5 Ft. 9 "	167 "
5 Ft. 10 "	172 "
5 Ft. 11 "	178 "
6 Ft. 0 "	184 "
6 Ft. 1 "	191 "
6 Ft. 2 "	198 "

These weights include ordinary indoor clothing. Get on the scales and see if you are overweight and how much.

The Modern way to take off fat is know as the Kruschen Method—and is well worth a four weeks' trial.

Cut out pies, cakes, pastry and ice cream for 4 weeks—go light on potatoes, butter, cheese, cream and sugar—eat moderately of lean meat, chicken, fish, salads, green vegetables and fruit—take one-half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning.

An 85-cent bottle of Kruschen lasts 4 weeks—get it at any drug store in the world.

NO INSTRUMENT NEEDED

The Wurlitzer Conservatory for the Advancement of Music believes that MUSIC is every child's birthright. Many parents do not develop this talent because they hesitate to purchase an instrument and pay for lessons unless they have some assurance that their child has musical talent. To give parents this opportunity and to stimulate interest in musical education the Wurlitzer Co., in co-operation with the Conservatory's faculty of teachers, is making this phenomenal offer possible. No instrument needed for these lessons, as they are lessons of "instruction" rather than "correction." Instruments and practice rooms will be provided without charge.

HOW TO ENROLL

This wonderful offer is open to both children and adults—enrollments are taken at the Main Offices of The Wurlitzer Co., 719 Liberty Ave., any time after 8:30 A. M. and until 9 P. M. There are no obligations—no "extras"—nothing to sign—nothing to buy. If the instrument you are interested in is popular enroll early—any member of the family may enroll for any subject that they are now studying. Registration will be accepted daily until 9 P. M. Saturday this week, final day.

THE WURLITZER CONSERVATORY of MUSIC

has during the past year taken care of more than 2,500 music students, every one of whom has started on the road to a musical education. Last year a banjo club, an accordion club and any number of dance bands were directed by our music directors. Our talent is heard regularly over the local broadcasting stations. If you have developed your talent and have taken some lessons—come in—let us try you out—let us place you. No obligation. Our purpose is only the PROMOTION OF MUSIC and the development of music in every child.

Special attention is directed to our "Melody Way" piano classes, which last year included 1,046 pupils, all of whom, to the best of our knowledge, are playing the piano exceptionally well, some even having taken professional positions.

THIS IS OUR SECOND YEAR—WITH YOUR CO-OPERATION WE EXPECT TO TRIPLE THE NUMBER OF PUPILS

GIRL ATHLETE DIVES TO DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Dressed only in flimsy lingerie, Miss Elsie E. Lander, 25, widely known as a tennis player and amateur swimmer, committed suicide by diving from a Turkish bath on the eleventh floor of a fashionable downtown hotel, according to police. Miss Lander, an attache of the United States mint, who had been in ill health, had made arrangements to use the baths, and had removed most of her clothing when she made a sudden move toward an outside window. Mrs. S. H. Ness, elderly attendant of the baths, attempted to restrain the girl, but was unable to prevent her from pulling the window open and making a perfect swimmer's dive toward the sidewalk below.

ROTARIANS TOLD OF VIENNA MEET

How Vienna will entertain members attending the Rotary International convention in that city next June was described today at a noon luncheon of the Rotary Club of Pittsburgh in Fort Pitt Hotel by Rudolf Mumb.

Nationals of each country will be seated in separate groups and interpreters will relay translations of the business transactions and addresses to them within a few minutes after the principal speaker is heard, he explained. Mr. Mumb reported six large liners have been chartered for members. He has been in the United States for the last year arranging for the convention.

The Newest Models $10 The Wanted Colors

This is a sale to interest women who can look like a million dollars without spending much at all, because together with having good taste, they know when and where to buy. They'll be first to pick up the Paris hats included in this group, and will appreciate every other advantage that the sale offers.

Beautifully fine soleil and felt hats, galyak-trimmed hats to go with fur-trimmed frocks and coats, soft velvet afternoon hats, and sequined evening hats. Hats in all-black, black with turquoise or white, and hats in the glorious autumn shades to match each of one's smart, colored costumes.

Lapin with Tweed

Imagine this effect against an autumn background, at the football games, at the country club, and driving on the highways. . . . Lapin fur in creamy parchment or nutria shade, on suits in green, red, blue, brown, tan or black tweed.

You may have one of these suits in nubby tweed, flecked tweed, pebbly or mesh-weave tweed.

It will have a long coat that can be worn as a separate sports wrap, or a coat in seven-eighths length.

It will be accompanied by a silk blouse in eggshell shade, bow-trimmed or with a bib collar.

. . . Women's and misses' sizes—

Velvet Dresses

For Women and Small Women

$25

In regular sizes, there are dresses of both formal and informal type. . . . Tailored models with a mere touch of lace, and "soft" frocks of plain velvet, of velvet broche combined with chiffon, and velvet ensembles with straight or bolero jackets and dinner and theater blouses of lace. . . . Black, green, rubytone, blue, brown.

The small women's dresses are in simple afternoon models, with softly draped necklines, and skirt fullness so placed as to make the figure appear taller.

Tomorrow—A Great Showing of

Paris-Inspired Handbags

$10

An event that will be of great interest to the woman who appreciates the distinction that quality always gives. The Paris origin of these bags is easily discerned in the artistically simple lines . . . in the carved prystal handles . . . in the colorful stone clasps . . . in the silken quality antelope suede . . . and in the platinum finish calf. Every bag is a worthy accessory for the most exquisite fall costume . . . and the fashionable shades of green, brown, wine and black are available. The silk linings, the fittings and the workmanship are all you would expect of the most expensive Paris bag.

Overcoat Sale

$28 $38 $48

The coats are Horne-standard in every detail. Fabrics were selected in the piece, many of them in England and Scotland on our buyer's special trip abroad. Mills and manufacturers, eager for business, quoted prices never before securable even for a sale of this scope. The absolute minimum of price margins was carried right down the line to the final marking in this store. Come in tomorrow—inspect them at close range. There's no telling when, if ever, such fine coats may be had for so little again.

OBITUARY

J. L. Smith Funeral.

Funeral services will be held today at his late home for J. L. Smith, 44, secretary and general manager of the Lee S. Smith & Son Co., who died Sunday night in his home, 804 Herbert avenue. Mr. Smith had been connected with the dental supply firm for the past 26 years. He was born in Pittsburgh and was a member of the Christ Lutheran Church, Monongahela Lodge No. 269, F. & A. M.; Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights Templar, and the Pittsburgh Exchange Club. Mr. Smith leaves his wife, Mrs. Bess Ault Smith; a son, Raymond; a daughter, Miss Eleanor; his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Smith, of Glenwillard, and two brothers, Frank G., of Glenwillard, and G. Lowrie Smith, of Chicago. Interment in Homewood Cemetery will follow the services.

Neely Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella H. Neely, 66, will be held at the home, 8001 Susquehanna street, Wilkinsburg, tomorrow afternoon. She died Monday. She was born in Cumberland, Md., and came to Pittsburgh 45 years ago. She leaves a son, Edwin S. Neely; a daughter, Miss Eleanor Neely, and two brothers.

Mrs. Kate Baum Shillito.

Mrs. Kate Baum Shillito, 85, died last night in her home, 340 Roup avenue. She was a native of Pittsburgh and was born in the house where she died. She was a member of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh, and was the last of a family of nine children. Funeral services will be held at her late home tomorrow afternoon with interment in the Allegheny Cemetery. She leaves several nieces and nephews.

THUG ROBS MAN IN HOTEL ROOM

Police today were searching for a man who last night held up and robbed a hotel guest in his room, and the thieves who committed a series of holdups in various sections of the city.

Frank Gaich, guest at the Roosevelt Hotel, told police that he was robbed by a man he had invited to his room after meeting him a short distance from the hotel. After robbing his victim of $22.50, the man, threatening Gaich against making an outcry, calmly walked out of the room.

A Negro purse snatcher robbed Martha Arnold, of 4030 Liberty avenue, of her purse containing $10 and a watch valued at $85.

Pete Coelle, of 807 Locust street, reported to police early today that two men held him up in front of his home and robbed him of his automobile.

Accused of snatching a purse from Mrs. Agnes Drater, of 5196 Butler street, Arthur Timons, 26, no home, was arrested and held for a hearing today in the Center Avenue Police Court.

FREE PARKING FOR ROAD FETE

Additional plans for the program celebrating the joining of the Lincoln and William Penn highways west of Pittsburgh, October 17, were made at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. It was announced that Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey has arranged for free parking space after 6 p. m. October 17, on the Monongahela wharf and along Duquesne way for motorists who have cards denoting their participation in the celebration. The cards will be available at the Chamber of Commerce here and at similar organizations in Chester, East Liverpool and Steubenville.

Following sections of the program in Chester, East Liverpool and Steubenville, delegates will return to Pittsburgh to attend a banquet, at which James Francis Burke will be toastmaster. The visitors will be welcomed by Mayor Charles H. Kline and President Jame Rae, of the Chamber of Commerce.

Shotgun Burglar Trap Wounds Man

LONDON, Ky., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—A shotgun attached to the window of a country store in such a manner that it would fire if anyone attempted to open the window seriously wounded Edward Howard, of Laurel County. The gun had been fixed by Sam Johnson, owner of the store, to rout burglars. As Howard attempted to raise the window, the gun fired. His arms were so badly shattered both may have to be amputated.

WHAT A THRILL IT GIVES HOT MOUTHS!

You'll never be sure you're "doing the right thing by your mouth" until you try PEBECO, the "iced" dentifrice. Here is a tooth paste with a "bite" that means business. It cleans, it whitens, it leaves your mouth with a refreshed sensation you have never before enjoyed. No wonder regular Pebeco users smile so readily. No wonder they praise this working dentifrice so lavishly. Try it, please, one week, and you're its friend.

thousands have said—

"I want the radio MARCONI praises"

Senatore Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of radio, leader of radio science for 36 years, who praises the new Radiola!

—with the result that the new Radiola Super-Heterodyne is the most popular instrument in Radiola history

The whole world respects the mature judgment of Senatore Guglielmo Marconi . . . the great genius who invented radio . . . the outstanding leader of radio science for 36 years.

Impressed by his statement, "The new RCA Radiola Super-Heterodyne represents a great advance in radio reception," tens of thousands have visited Radiola dealers throughout America to see this extraordinary new instrument . . . to hear it . . . and hence to buy it.

Never had they heard such glorious reproduction . . . note for note . . . tone for tone . . . voice for voice . . . instrument for instrument . . . the actual performance of the actual broadcasting artists.

Climax of 7 Years' Research!

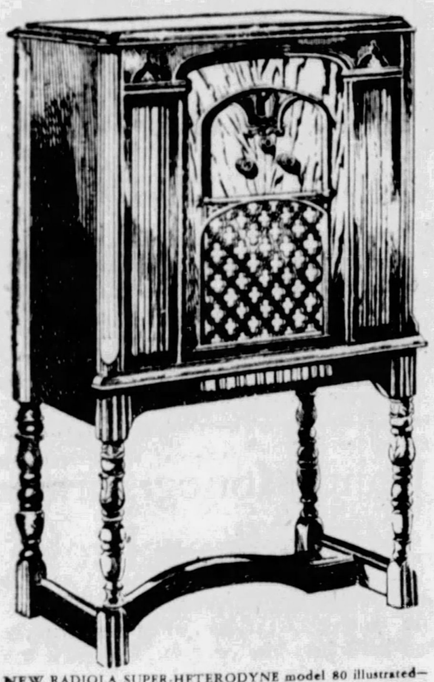
Here is the finest home instrument that RCA, the recognized leader of the industry, the creator of practically every great development in radio, can build. It is the high spot of 7 years of Super-Heterodyne development by the world's most brilliant radio engineers.

Four times more sensitive, three times more selective than any recent model, the new Radiola was designed to fit today's broadcasting conditions. As you probably know, the government assigns each station a broadcasting channel of a standard 10-kilocycle width. The new Radiola is so expertly designed that it receives all the program in the full width of the channel—no more—no less. Hence the gorgeous tone quality, lifelike realism, and the freedom from overlapping, noise and distortion.

Greatest Value Ever!

Four years ago a Radiola Super-Heterodyne console cost $570. Today, this exquisite model, with all its revolutionary improvements, comes to you for only $142.50, less Radiotrons.

See and hear this sensational new instrument. Then you will understand why Radiola factories are working overtime. Look on the dial for the famous RCA trademark—your guarantee of the ultimate in modern radio and continued pleasure for years to come.



NEW RADIOLA SUPER-HETERODYNE model 80 illustrated—with screen-grid, nine tuned circuits, latest electro-dynamic speaker, illuminated precision dial, push-pull amplification, improved "local-distance" switch, no A. C. hum, and beautiful new cabinets by famous designers.

Delightful House Frock
Pattern 2037
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Becoming lines, simple details, durable wash fabric, combine to create a most attractive frock that is comfortable for work, yet smart enough to wear when entertaining friends. The rounded collar creates a charming bodice line accentuated by the contrasting material. The inverted skirt pleat, so easy to make, is very fashionable.

Pattern 2037 may be made of wash silk or cotton print in colorful design. The trimming is effective in white or the predominating color in the design. Pique is a practical fabric for collar and cuffs.

May be obtained only in size 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

HOOVER HEARS STRIKE PLEA

DANVILLE, Va., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—The President of the United States stood bareheaded last night on the rear platform of his special train and listened patiently as a striking textile worker pleaded the cause of the laboring man.

Only once during the lengthy dissertation in which the humbly-clad striker, wearing no tie, spoke of the mill workers' intention of remaining out until they won their strike in two mills here, did the President interrupt. He said:

"The way to win all those things is to keep the peace and not through violence."

AGENTS SEIZE AUTOIST, RUM

Prohibition agents arrested Peter Zangaro, 27, of 809 Flemington avenue, early today as he was alleged to have been transporting 15 five-gallon cans of moonshine in an automobile at Lydia street and Greenfield avenue. He was held for a hearing before the United States commissioners.

Agents reported they had trailed Zangaro from the Hill district to a distillery in the Greenfield avenue district and had seen him unload a lot of corn sugar and take on the moonshine.

TROLLEYS SEEK EXPO HALL

William E. Best, public service commissioner, today heard the application of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the City of Pittsburgh, joint operators of trolley service here, for the use of Machinery Hall in the old Exposition Building, Duquesne way.

The application calls for a nine and one-half year lease at a total rental of $114,000. It stipulates that the railways company may lay tracks in Duquesne way and lower the grade of the street in the vicinity of Barbeau street. The city agrees to pay all damages to the building in excess of $2,000 and reserves the right to cancel the lease after three years by giving one year's notice. The railways company gets option to a 10-year lease after the expiration of the contract. The Pittsburgh, Harmony, New Castle and Butler interurban lines are to occupy one-half of Machinery Hall in case the contract is approved.

Hectic Days.. Sleepless Nights..

"NERVES" All Tired Out

Today, the pace of modern life is so fast, we all live under a greater strain than in years gone by. The result is we are frequently afflicted with attacks of "NERVES"—jumpy, jangled "NERVES." Each hectic day—each sleepless night adds another "jump" to our overtaxed nervous systems.

No wonder Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets are being used by thousands of nervous people. You drop one of these harmless tablets into a glass of water and watch it bubble up. Then take the sparkling drink, and you soon feel the soothing, quieting relief it brings to overwrought "NERVES."

Dr. Miles' NERVINE is made in both Liquid and Effervescent Tablet form. Your druggist will sell you either kind and guarantee to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the effective relief this time-tested preparation gives for frequent nervous troubles.

BYLLESBY PIONEERS IN PUBLIC SERVICE

PERMIT FOR BUS LINE OPPOSED

Tony Rotay, of Hellwood, Indiana County, who wants to operate a bus line between Indiana and Alverado, over a new state highway, found himself opposed when he appeared before Examiner W. E. Best, of the Public Service Commission, for a certificate. J. C. McGregor and H. W. Thomas, of Indiana, who operate eight buses between Big Run, Saganore, Mehaffey and Indiana and also in Punxsutawney, opposed Rotay's application.

Rotay testified that he has three trucks, but has never operated a bus business. It was developed that McGregor and Thomas applied some time ago for a certificate to operate between Indiana and Alverado. The commission held up the application because the road was under construction. It was finished about a month ago.

MAIL CARRIERS TO HEAR KELLY

The annual election of officers and addresses by prominent political figures will feature the fifth semi-annual meeting of the southwest district of the Pennsylvania State Association of Letter Carriers Saturday in the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport.

Speakers will include Congressman Clyde Kelly, Congressman Samuel A. Kendall, father of the 44-hour week bill for postal employes; State Senator W. D. Mansfield, P. L. Douglas, member of the national executive board and president of Branch 36, New York City, and Christ J. Halberstadt, president of the state organization of the letter carriers.

Other speakers will be J. B. Hershey, postmaster of McKeesport; David P. Dougherty, state secretary of the organization, and Harry J. Kinsler, vice president of the association.

Home Service Fund Far Short of Goal

A total of $28,819 has been collected and subscribed to the home service fund of the Salvation Army since the campaign opened October 1. The goal is $112,900 and although the campaign ends Saturday, the half-way mark has not yet been reached. Campaign officials are hopeful that donations usually made by Sunday schools and other organizations will add considerably to the amount already in.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

The Bride of Death

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Robin Dale goes to California to report on the case of Elsie Donahue. On the night of her wedding Elsie disappears after entering the house she had built and furnished as a new home. He interviews Roy Carroll, the husband. Elsie was last seen by Fred Wagner, a former suitor. Wagner ran after her toward the beach which fronts the house. The other wedding guests followed. Both Elsie and Wagner disappeared.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER III.

Robin Dale hesitated a moment so that the picture would remain with him. Here, undoubtedly, was the foundation of the tragedy.

"Did anyone every run after them?" he asked next.

"All except Louise. She had remained upstairs with her mother, who required constant attention. Of course, I can't be sure, for I started to run toward the beach and it seemed as if everyone else rushed pell-mell after me. Also, there was no concerted effort, each of us acting independently . . . But I am sure everyone joined in."

"Did you all run as far as the shore?"

"Yes—but before we got there the sound of the motor launch was heard. Most of us ran out on the dock, but it was a dark night, with no moon . . . the launch was gone and already out of sight, although it could be heard for quite some time."

"You have never seen Fred Wagner from that time?"

"Never—and no one else has. No one thought of checking up at the time for, almost immediately, they ran off down the beach."

"What was your idea at the time?"

"It seemed simple enough . . . Elsie was going to the yacht. They all had the same thought and the rush along the beach was to find a launch on which to follow her to the yacht."

"Did they go aboard immediately?"

"No—it was quite late—no available launch was found. The search continued for probably 20 minutes. Then we learned that our launch had been returned."

"Who returned it?"

"We have never found out. Louise was the first to see it tied up to the dock. We all gathered a few minutes after that. I remember checking up then. Every one was present except Wagner, Norcross and Elsie. For a moment I wondered where they were but soon dismissed the thought. But I was sure Elsie had boarded the yacht.

"How did you account for the launch being there?"

"At the time I gave no thought to it—it seemed natural enough. Elsie had gone to the yacht, one of the men brought back the launch, had probably reported at the house and found no one there. You see, we were not due to sail until morning and those who brought it in were taking their last shore leave that night. On previous trips to Laguna the launch had always been used by anyone going to and from the yacht."

"Did you go aboard then?"

"Yes. The excitement had died down considerably. The crowd insisted upon a celebration and as Elsie was undoubtedly on the yacht they decided to go, too. In order to avoid delay in the morning I agreed to this, providing the boys helped to get our luggage aboard. This was done. It was loaded on the launch and we headed for the yacht."

"Your wife was not aboard?"

"We were all unloaded, most of the guests scampering about the yacht in search of Elsie. Finally I spoke with Capt. Myatt. It was then, for the first time, that I heard the startling truth. Elsie had not come aboard. The launch had not been near the yacht that night."

"Do you believe Mrs. Carroll is still alive?

"I don't know—I can't even bear to think about that. At first I was sure she was. It caused me to do the one thing I'm ashamed of."

"And what was that?"

"After that first tortured sleepless night spent in frantic searching, a mad, insane jealousy gripped me. I was suddenly haunted by the harrowing thought that Elsie had run off with Wagner. He was a—a sweetheart of hers, you remember. That morning the thought almost drove me crazy. I had made another fruitless trip to the yacht. I was tempted to jump into the sea. Finally I decided to end everything by going away, disappearing. I put my own luggage back on the launch and drove to shore. I went to the house for the last time, and there I came to my senses. I realized that I was leaving Elsie's mother and sister to face the tragedy alone. Trying to assuage their grief my own mad thoughts left me. I'm ashamed of them now."

"Nothing else of importance has happened from that time?"

"Nothing. We are no further in our quest, even with the aid of the police, than we were on that morning."

"I wonder might I speak with Miss Louise? There are just a few questions I would like to ask her."

Carroll hesitated for a long moment. He then spoke dubiously.

"You know, of course, that Mrs. Donahue has changed for the worse since Elsie's tragic disappearance. That was the shock the doctors had warned against. There was a chance, even then, of blindness. We could not keep the news from her. She has been stricken hopelessly blind. It is difficult for Louise to leave her for very long. I'll go upstairs and see if she may come down."

Carroll left the porch. Dale walked to one of the opened windows and gazed out across the sea. The dock was visible. The launch was made fast to it. Two miles out he Sea Gull, the Donahue yacht, was riding gracefully at anchor.

Scarcely five minutes had passed before Carroll returned. With him was a young lady, not more than 20. The hand of tragedy lay heavily upon her. Her wide blue eyes were lusterless, bespeaking sleepless nights and tears; her features were drawn and wan: there was a listlessness about her whole bearing. Carroll introduced them.

Louise sat down. Carroll stood behind her, his hands resting upon her shoulders, encouraging her gently during the ensuing conversation.

"I'm sorry to trouble you, Miss Donahue. I'll be very brief."

"Roy said it would be all right." There was a pathetic sweetness in the tone of her voice. "If you're going to write about poor Elsie, we'd want you to have the real truth."

"Mr. Carroll said you were the first one to see the launch after it was returned to the dock. Is that true?"

"Yes. Mother had just gone to sleep when Fred Wagner started to shout in the garden. I remember I quickly closed the window so that it would not awaken her. Fifteen minutes later I went downstairs. Everyone was gone. That seemed strange, so I walked out in the garden, going slowly toward the beach. I walked out on the dock and saw the launch tied up. I wondered where everyone was and started back toward the house."

"Did you see the launch being tied up, or anyone coming off the dock before you reached it?"

"No. I did not. But after I stepped off it someone threw their arms about me from behind. A man's voice, in a low but excited tone, spoke to me. He said, 'I love you, dear. I can't let you go on with this!'" She paused and covered her face with her hands, as Carroll gently patted her shoulder to give her courage.

"You discovered who the man was?"

"Yes. It was Edward Norcross. When I freed myself from his arms I turned and faced him. There was a look of utter dismay on his face. Without a word he ran off toward the house. I heard his car starting just as the others came running along the beach. I didn't tell anyone then, but at the house I explained to Roy."

"Norcross was gone," Carroll explained. "In the darkness he thought, of course, that Louise was Elsie. He probably was too ashamed to face anyone after that terrible mistake."

"That's all." Dale said. He thanked them and left.

The following morning the real tragedy was unfolded.

At 8 o'clock Alonzo Franks called Dale at his hotel. The body of Elsie Donahue had been found, washed up on shore, a mile south of Laguna Beach.

A clear skin is irresistible . . .

in fact, popularity depends upon it

YOU KNOW your skin is constantly undergoing a change!

Invisibly you shed the old skin and take on the new. The quality of the new depends very largely upon the quality and the vitality of your red-blood-cells—those vital "cells" that build, nourish and repair tissue.

Whatever treatment you may use for your complexion, remember the important fact that natural beauty—a clear skin and a rose-petal complexion—comes from within.

More red-blood-cells and of the right quality! That's the answer to a sallow complexion and to pimples and boils.

The way to regain the red-blood-cells is to take S.S.S.—the Tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin will clear up! Your whole body will be strengthened!

If popularity and a clear skin are slipping away from you try S.S.S. Its successful record of over 100 years is a guarantee of satisfaction.

Complexion cleared up beautifully

Miss Mary Rank, Clearwater, N. Y., writes: "My face was blemished with many pimples. No treatment I used did them any good. I also had boils. My appetite was poor. My weight was off and I felt nervous. After taking S.S.S. my complexion cleared up beautifully. My appetite improved. I now rest well at night and am greatly benefited in every way. Because S.S.S. helped me I think it is the best blood medicine!"

Pimples and blackheads disappeared

Mrs. Mary E. Parker, Bahama, N. C., writes: "Because of a rundown condition my appetite was poor. I felt tired in the mornings and was troubled with pimples and blackheads. Red bumps came on my face once or twice monthly. After taking S.S.S. the pimples and blackheads disappeared and my skin became clear. I do not feel tired upon rising in the mornings. I had tried a number of medicines but S.S.S. is the one that helped me."

Blood is Life!

You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

Pimples and boils, body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness and sallow complexion are symptoms of a low blood count. These may indicate that you need S.S.S.

Real Estate

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board yesterday heard E. A. Smith of the real estate department of the Philadelphia Company talk on the lakes and fishing streams in the primitive country located about 850 miles northwest of Toronto, Canada. He illustrated his talk with motion pictures.

T. A. Robinson has sold to Frederick Gwinner, III, a brick center hall residence at 6659 Kinsman road, Fourteenth Ward, for $35,000. The lot is 60x120 feet and the house contains nine rooms and a two-car garage. O. R. Minnemeyer was the broker.

A brick duplex dwelling and garage at 358 South Highland avenue, Seventh Ward, has been sold by Louis Arfield to Sallie Greenstein. The lot is 25x140 feet.

A frame dwelling at 206 North Euclid avenue, Eleventh Ward, has been sold by E. F. Engelhard to Beatrice Wallace. The lot is 22x62 feet.

A three-story brick building and garage at 217 West Main street, Carnegie, has been sold by Max Strauss to Ernest G. Roesler and Christian Mueller. The lot is 23x116 feet.

A property in Stanton avenue, Tenth Ward, lot 85x207 feet, has been sold by Patrick B. Kearns to Charles Gable.

A brick house of English design at Lowann and Irene streets, Glenshaw, has been sold by Wilbur R. Houggy to Dr. L. K. Barry. The lot is 46x120 feet. The deal was made through H. L. Gerdes.

Building permit applications included:

Nineteen Ward—J. Laufer, brick and tile dwelling and stone garage, 1703 Greenleaf street, $14,000.

Fourteenth Ward—E. E. Rowley, brick and tile dwelling, 6617 Woodwell street, $8,000.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has just made a wonderful discovery. Realizing the expense of constantly buying silk hose and lingerie, she learned that with perspiration comes an oily excretion from the sebaceous glands that causes silks to rot.

Soap and water she found were inadequate. Only a solvent like Energine cuts this film of oil.

So when next washing silk hose or dainty undergarments, add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new, fresh cleanliness—see how the original color is revived so easily and with less rubbing. After using this new method, you'll be amazed at the difference in results from washing in just soap and water.

And when you see how many more weeks' wear you get from silk hose, you'll be more than delighted—it's real economy. Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, shoes, gloves, ties. Large can 35c.

KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE HIS CASE NEEDED

Former Sufferer Glad to Tell What New and Different Medicine Did for Him.

After all, what mightier recommendation can a medicine get than the grateful words of those who, to their everlasting joy, found in Konjola the very medicine they needed; the medicine they should have had in the first place.

MR. G. R. CHARLTON

Konjola wins victory after victory because all of Konjola's 32 ingredients work together in cleansing the system and stimulating the ailing organs, bringing quick and glorious relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Consider, for example, the case of Mr. G. R. Charlton, 527 Woodward Avenue, McKees Rocks, near Pittsburgh. Think it over, and then resolve to meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city. Hear from him the remarkable record of this remarkable medicine. But now read the words of Mr. Charlton, who said to the Konjola Man:

"For years I suffered with a very bad case of stomach trouble. Food did not digest, and did me little good. I tried several medicines in two years, but none gave relief. Six months ago I started taking Konjola, and found it to be the very medicine I needed. I am feeling better than in years, and can eat all kinds of food. Gladly I recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did. Konjola relieved constipation, too, and I do not have to take laxatives of any kind."

So it goes, everywhere Konjola is put to the test. Konjola is for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Police Are Unable to Make Cathie Change Story

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Papers sold like hotcakes.

"Uxtry! Uxtry!"

"All about the Moider!"

"MRS. FARNSWORTH MURDERESS, SLAIN MILLIONAIRE'S SON AVERS!"

"Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, beautiful 19-year-old widow of the slain millionaire, was formally charged with murder today. She is being held in the city jail on a warrant sworn to by the dead man's son by a former marriage, Chester T. Farnsworth, also of this city.

"In a sensational interview with newspapermen today Farnsworth stated that he had long foreseen the tragedy, and had repeatedly warned the aged millionaire. The elder Farnsworth, he states, had finally listened to him, and agreed to divorce his beautiful young wife on the grounds of infidelity. Had he lived another day papers would have been filed, and the will, leaving half of the million and a half estate to Mrs. Farnsworth, destroyed.

"It was to discuss the matter of the will and divorce that he went to the family home, 2870 Presidio Terrace, shortly after 2 o'clock on the night of the murder, Farnsworth states. He left his wife at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Bull, who reside in a penthouse on the roof of the Kittinger Apartments. A party was in progress there. It was his intention, he says, to go quietly to his father's room. These nocturnal visits between father and son were a regular thing, due to insomnia on the part of the elder Farnsworth, and the antagonism on the young wife's part. The Farnsworth's occupied seperate suites, and as young Farnsworth possessed a latchkey he was able to go and come unobserved.

"It was while on one of these nightly visits to his father, Farnsworth states, that he first became aware of the young wife's infidelity. After accusing her, a fued developed between them, and she sought to turn the aged man against him.

Denies His Story

"Coming into the house on the fatal night, Farnsworth says he heard a commotion in the servants quarters in the basement, and upon investigating, learned that the several Chinese who made up the household staff had been aroused and alarmed by noises and cries upstairs.

"Accompanied by the boss Chinaman he made his way rapidly upstairs and into his father's room. The dead man lay with his head shattered from a shot which must have been fired with the butt of the gun directly against the back of his head. The pistol, his own property, was on the floor.

"Rushing at once to notify his young stepmother, Farnsworth found her room empty, and repeated calls failed to bring her to his aid, Farnsworth states.

"While he telephoned headquarters the servant found her in the maid's room on the third floor.

"Farnsworth's accusation, coming immediately upon the coroner's findings of death due to a pistol shot from the hands of an unknown person, threw police circles into excitement.

"At the city prison, Mrs. Farnsworth, young and beautiful widow whom Farnsworth charges with the heinous crime, stuck to her original story that she found the body shortly before 2 o'clock that night, and was in no way implicated in the killing.

"After a severe grilling by Inspectors Horgan and Bidwell, Mrs. Farnsworth's story remains unshaken. She protests her innocence, denies that there was a quarrel of any kind and refuses to discuss her alleged affair with the unnamed man whom young Farnsworth implicates.

Grilling Continues

"It is expected that Farnsworth will tell what he knows of the affair some time today. Servants at the family home, 2870 Presidio Terrace, are under surveillance and it is expected that valuable clues in the possession of the district attorney's office will be made public within the next few days.

"Mrs. Farnsworth is at the city jail. Motion for her release on bail made by her attorneys, Allan and Gunther, was denied."

"You might as well make a clean breast of it," Inspector Horgan told Cathie. "They'll have the whole thing before night. It would be to your advantage to beat them to it. Don't be afraid. We know there were extenuating circumstances. He didn't treat you very well, did he?"

Cathie lifted eyes, heavy as lead. "Yes, he did treat me well, and I HAVE made a clean breast of it," she said wearily. "I have told you everything I know. Do you want me to make things up? Tell you I did it when I didn't? Tell you someone else did—when I don't know?"

"But you know what people will think? You know who'll swing if you don't confess?"

My, what a loud voice Inspector Bidwell has, Cathie thought. It never gets tired, either.

"Yes, do you know who'll swing?" Inspector Horgan bellowed right after him.

Cathie tried to pay attention. She knew they considered it an important question, but she couldn't help it. They had asked her questions all yesterday afternoon, and all last night, and all this morning, and she was beyond answering, beyond caring, beyond everything but tiredness and pain . . . pain in her head . . . pain in her eyes . . . pain everywhere . . .

Questioned About Gordon

Inspector Bidwell was shaking a finger at her. "Gordon Moore will hang! Think of that, an innocent man! And you won't confess to save him!"

"But I did. I've told you everything I know. And I told you he went home, long before the shot."

"Of course. Sure he went home. But isn't it peculiar that he hasn't come forward? Isn't it peculiar that he hasn't been heard of since?"

Cathie made a great effort. She gathered her wits together. Gordon . . . They were talking about him again. Chester Farnsworth had said terrible things about her and Gordon in the newspapers. Gordon's name had not been mentioned yet, but it would be pretty soon because the police knew it, and pretty soon the papers would print it. . . . Poor Gordon . . . that was what came of knowing her . . . And now these stupid inspectors making believe they thought he was a murderer!

"You told me he went back to the dam," she flared. "You told me he was seen there, and that he told his brother David he was going away for a few days!"

"Yes. But why did he go away without leaving a forwarding address? Was it to avoid testifying against you? Or to save his own neck?"

Cathie didn't answer.

"Listen!" Inspector Bidwell was shaking that miserable finger in her face again. "Listen. If you didn't do it, he must have. You agree to that, so that leaves us to think—"

Stained Garment Found

"I can't help what you think! I've been telling you ever since I got here that I'm innocent. Ever since you began asking about Mr. Moore I've told you he's innocent. I don't know why he's gone, but he'll come back and clear himself. I know that . . . I know it because—because I do!" Her anger was cooling. She hadn't the strength left to fight. Her eyelids were so heavy she could hardly hold her eyes open to look at the inspectors and see how they were taking it . . .

"I'm so sleepy!" she wailed. . . . "You make me sick, all of you. Always talking. You ought to join one of those talking marathons . . . You're worse than Mrs.—Mrs.—" She was going to say Mrs. Henpessy—but she never got that far. Down went her head. Cathie was asleep. Asleep sitting up, in a cell in the women's quarters in the city jail.

Inspector Horgan looked at Inspector Bidwell. They exchanged rueful grins. They hadn't accomplished much. But neither had anyone else. She was certainly sticking to her story.

"I think she's innocent," said Inspector Horgan.

"Beginning to think so myself!"

Too bad that Cathie was asleep and didn't hear them. When she opened her eyes two hours later both gentlemen had had occasion to change their minds.

Cathie's blood-stained nightdress was found that afternoon.

Household Hints

Two large spools tacked about three inches apart on the back of the kitchen door will make a splendid broom handle holder, effacing that article very nicely.

When food sticks to the bottom of your cooking utensils, use a wooden clothespin to loosen it, never a knife. The clothespin will not scratch the surface.

If you do not have a butter kettle, keep the butter in the carton in which it was bought. The flavor and odor of other foods cannot penetrate this glazed cardboard.

The best way to remove the feathers from wild ducks is to dip the ducks in boiling water and then wrap in a heavy cloth. The steam will soon loosen the feathers and the "pins" are very little trouble.

Fay King Doubts Popularity of Long Skirt, Defending Free Knees

SUCH A NUISANCE
HER HEEL CAUGHT IN HER DRAGGING DRESS AND SHE TOOK A MEAN STUMBLE
LONG SKIRTS ARE A REAL MENACE WHEN WALKING DOWN THE DARK, STEEP STAIRS

By FAY KING

Women have become used to the freedom of short skirts.

Now long dresses are being introduced again. The tiresome technique of train-holding and hem-hopping must be mastered again.

So far the dragging dresses have been mostly for evening wear.

In this day of hurry, long dresses are dangerous.

Only the other evening I saw a girl take a mean stumble on the sidewalk. Her heel caught in the yards of lace skirt as she stepped from an automobile.

I've seen some nasty stumples on steep, dark stairs when wearer's feet fumbled in the loose ends of her long skirt.

I don't think long skirts will ever be popular again.

Madge Meets With a Surprise

I think I understand how many murders due to sudden rage are committed. Of course I had no real desire to slay kindly Mr. Train who was doing his best to take care of us in our dilemma due to the detective's trailing us from the Hasbrouck home. But his efficiency, together with his assumption, unconscious, but irritating, that I was in the eighth-year class as far as taking care of myself went, had rasped my nerves inordinately. And, at his last proposal, that his wife should accompany me on my walk which he had already mapped out on paper, I had hard work to keep them from snapping. For a second I saw red, and could have annihilated him with the nearest weapon.

"I'd love to have her go," I said, mendaciously, "but Mrs. Underwood isn't very well, and—"

"Of course, of course," Mr. Train agreed heartily, "and I've really outlined this very clearly. I don't believe you can go wrong."

"I'm sure I can't," I returned heartily, and listened and watched carefully as he showed me the map of my proposed walk which he had made, together with the names of the streets which I was to cross.

Then, at last I was out of the door, with the crisp glorious winter air cooling my face. I kept the map in my hand until I had turned first the corner to the left and then the one to the right, which carried me beyond the vision of the Train windows. I was reasonably sure that from those windows Mr. Train's vigilant eyes were watching to see that I did not vary from his instructions.

The walk which he had outlined for me was a surprisingly long one, and I had the sense of throwing off a depressing burden as I walked briskly along with the assurance that I would tramp two miles at least before coming back to the Train domicile.

For a few minutes I did no thinking at all, simply reveled in the bright sunshine, the cold invigorating air, and the pleasant succession of well-kept homes with snowy lawns and ice-tipped trees not yet denuded by the sun, past which I walked rapidly. Then, as the tautness of my nerves lessened, and my unworthy irritation against Mr. Train fled incontinently, I began to consider the espionage of the private detective who had trailed us from Long Island to the hotel in New York, and on to the Catskills. He must have comprehensive and detailed knowledge of our plans and movements, knowledge which he could have gained only from someone close to us. In no other way could I account for the way he had found us at the Catskills after the skillful manner in which Harry Underwood had thrown him off our trail on the Boston Post road. He could not possibly have trailed our car in that mad dash through little used roads which had brought us out upon the road to Kingston. Yet he had appeared at the Hasbrouck home but a few hours behind us. That must mean that he had spent some of the intervening time in getting into communication with someone who knew of our destination.

I brought myself up with a round turn for I had come to a mental gate marked distinctly "No Thoroughfare." Only the people at the farmhouse, Dicky, Mother Graham and Katherine, knew our destination. Katie and Jim had been told that we were going on a journey of about 200 miles, nothing more. And even if those two faithful servitors had known exactly where we were going, they were too canny to reveal it to any chance questioner.

I was in a mental treadmill, getting nowhere, and I switched my brain engine on a new roadbed with another puzzling query:

Why was a private detective trailing us?

I fancied that Harry Underwood had a fairly shrewd idea of the answer, but he had told me that his theory was a wildly fantastic one which he would not name, so unworthy of credence was it. But for myself no light glimmered anywhere. I was thankful for one thing. Mr. Underwood had said he was sure Jack Leslie was not concerned in it.

I was near the block where Mr. Train had directed me to turn when I finished by speculations with the determination to indulge in them no more, but to await further developments with what patience I could muster. I had paid no attention to the cars on the thoroughfare, but just as I passed a corner, I heard a sudden protesting shriek of brakes quickly applied. I turned to see a big limousine maneuvering swiftly for a turn into the street I had just passed. Surely I knew the car—and the driver, though he was bent low in queer fashion over the wheel. Otto—it must be he—and Philip Veritzen's car!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, October 9

This should be a day notable for substantial growth and progress, with both new undertakings and long-established enterprises feeling the impact of a stablizing force. It is time for pushing forward with diligence and determination, seeking the advice and assistance of elderly persons or institutions if need be. Although the mind will be equipped to meet all fresh stimuli practically and successfully, yet a word of warning against purely personal entanglement may not be amiss.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of steady progress for all old enterprises and are encouraged to launch forth on new ventures with an assurance of firm foundations and substantial growth.

A child born on this day may have an enterprising mind stabilized by profound insight and the pronounced tendency to diligence, indomitable will and constructive effort in practical lines.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

The Job—Or the Vanity Case

The question of what to do with old razor blades, once so ardently discussed by columnists and paragraphers, has been displaced by the problem of what to do about old business women.

* * *

By "old business women" I mean paragraphers, secretaries and other office workers who are tottering along toward the advanced age of 25 or the decreptitude of 30.

No man appears to consider his office force complete these days unless he is surrounded by a bevy of beauties from the rosebud garden of flappers; and to find a job for a woman past 30, the agencies say, is harder than to find a motion picture actress with an inferiority complex.

Of course, no woman under 40 IS "over 30" in these bright days of permanent waves and face lifts. And a battered business woman, like a used car, can have the dents taken out, be covered with a new coat of paint and manage to run along for quite a while if her style and shape are good.

Work keeps a woman young and snappy, and she can get away with "24" until she is bothered with astigmatism or loses her ability to laugh spontaneously at the Boss' jokes.

Still the day must come when neither the peroxide bottle nor the weekly facial will hide the traces of the years, and she faces the possibility of having her job shot from under her by some pink-nailed, 16-year-old cutie.

Don't think I'm joking. I'm getting letters from middle-aged business women all over the country, who are protesting against this tragic situation of the working girl, who finds herself stranded at 30 or 35.

Happily, most girls either marry before that time or graduate from the ranks and become bosses or beauty shop proprietors or lawyers or brokers themselves. And also, happily, there are still many business men whose passion for efficiency exceeds even their love of beauty and who prefer an experienced old employe to a decorative new one.

But it behooves the girl who goes into a business office to decide early in her career just how she is going to get OUT of it.

No girl wants to live and die a stenographer; but, even if she did, she'd have to die before 30 to attain her ambition.

And yet there are men who peevishly wonder why the average stenographer does not seem to take a vital interest in her work and throw her whole heart into her job. How CAN she, when she knows that she is only "doing time."

* * *

It is years since I wrote that old line, "Success in business, for a woman, consists in finding some man who will marry her and take her OUT of it."

It's a little time-worn: But to a business girl, who has no other ambition outside of her job and no desire or ability to run a business of her own, it still has a ring of truth.

* * *

If business men want office workers to take more interest in their jobs than their vanity cases they'll have to show them a reason. A woman always wants to know WHY!

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Selecting the Bridal Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister-in-law is having a church wedding, and is having her sister as maid of honor and three bridesmaids. She has not asked me to be a bridesmaid, which was quite a surprise to me. I think that she should, but my husband said that it was all right because she knew the other girls very well. They asked my husband (her only brother) to be their best man. What do you think? ANXIOUS.

I think just as your husband does, dear lady. Naturally your sister-in-law would have her sister as her maid of honor, and just as naturally she would have three of her closest friends as her bridesmaids. Unless you happened to be one of her closest friends, as well as her sister-in-law, there is no reason for her inviting you to be one of her attendants. And the fact that your husband has been invited to be the best man at the wedding doesn't alter this. The bride may love you very much, and may wish that she were to have a larger wedding party so that she could include you in its membership, but still she probably has many other friends whom she has known for many more years and more closely than she has flnown you.

The Date for Sending Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be proper to send wedding invitations before I resign my position? If so, how long before the wedding must the invitations be sent, as I am going to be married in church? We have planned to be married five or six days after I resign. F. F.

If you are going to send formal wedding invitations, they should be sent about three weeks before the date set for your wedding.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Do Long Engagements Pay? There Are 2 Sides to This!

Is it fair to ask a girl to wait for you six or seven years, and demand that she shall have no other interests during that time?

Dad Jenkins thinks it isn't. He has a beloved motherless daughter, whose Prince Charming wants her to hang around and admire him—and him alone—until he's finished his medical course and collected the wherewithal.

Dad J. said they were courting trouble. Even offered to set them up in home, out of his own pocket, so that daughter could be a Missis while the B. F. was becoming M. D. But the young lovers turned him down cold. Said they could take care of themselves—love would be the sweeter for the long wait.

Dad still doubted, and we agreed with him. Now here's G. Jay, good 'n' sore, with his opinion.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I usually get quite a kick out of your answers to people who write to your column. But I've just finished reading the one you gave to Henry Jenkins, and I think you're all wrong.

"You see I'm especially interested in the subject of long engagements, because I too am a medical student, with one more year to go to school before I graduate.

"I went with a girl for two years before I was given the chance to go to college and dental school, but she wouldn't take a chance on me. She didn't see any reason why she should wait until I graduated.

"However, I met another young lady very soon after that, and she absolutely made me start school immediately.

"I must say that it was due only to the encouragement of this young lady and my mother, that I have reached the heights I have thus far attained. Many and many an evening we have done without shows or dances, because we couldn't afford them, but we have many plans for the future.

"My former girl is married now, to another man, and is satisfied to buy everything on time, whereas my present fiancee had the good sense to decide seven years ago that she would rather stick to me until I could first make something of myself.

"Even her friends have often said to her that I would never stick to her . . . that I'd find another girl at college and leave her flat, but her faith in me was stronger than in them.

"If a girl thinks anything of her sweetheart, she will be willing to wait 10 years if necessary to marry him. I am sure that if I were a girl, I would rather do that than rush into marriage and live hand to mouth . . . or break with a man because the marriage can't be immediate. And I don't think that you have any business to try to discourage girls from feeling that way. "G. JAY."

Yeah? Well, I admit things seem to be pretty soft for you, G. Jay. Though I notice you don't mention much about the Girl Friend. You're having a lot of excitement acquiring your stuff, but, how about her? Are you her only amusement? Seems to me that seven years of just sitting around looking at you is a fairly monotonous program for any ambitious girl.

Be that as it may—what's your answer to this?

"Dear Sally—I've just read your answer on the question of long engagements and I want to say that I certainly do not advise them. I happen to be the victim of one.

"Jack and I went together when we were both kids, and I was sure that we loved each other deeply and truly, but I guess I must have been mistaken . . . about him, anyway.

"His folks didn't have a great deal of money, so he couldn't go to college if we married, and he wanted to study to be a lawyer. So we agreed that we would wait. That was six years ago. Jack was 20 then, and I was 19. So he went away to school, and I went to work. We saw each other at holidays and vacations, and we wrote to each other regularly. I was just as true to him as I could be, and I had all the faith in the world in him. He was smart and got along fine at school. And I did everything in the world that I could to encourage him. I stayed at home and didn't go out with other fellows.

"Then, two years ago he graduated, and went into an office to practice law. Of course we still had to put off marriage, because no young lawyer makes a lot. We saw more of each other then than we had while he was at school, and still I had faith in him and looked forward and planned for the home we'd have.

"And gradually, we began to get on each other's nerves, for no reason at all. We'd have little silly quarrels, and feel irritated with each other. It was really a terrible strain, belonging to each other, yet not belonging. We'd make up, but there was always a tension between us. Then he began staying away from me. He excused this by saying he was working nights on briefs and things. He still said I was the only girl. But I soon found out that he was lying to me. He was going out with someone else. And about the time I found out about that, he went off to another town and married her.

"So here I am. Through my foolish belief in him and in long engagements, I've wasted six years of my life. And what have I got out of it? Nothing but heartache and broken faith. I wish now that I had married him six years ago. If I had done that, I'm sure things would have turned out all right. I could have gone on working, and we'd have made it and been happy. As it is, I still love him, and here I am out in the cold. "LAURA."

There are the two sides to the story—which is right?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Mental Illnesses on the Increase Today

No greater affliction can come to man than loss of reason. When mental control is lost, direction of the body and its acts is gone.

There is much alarm in the ranks of the medical profession today over the steady growth and complexity of mental diseases. The problem of the mentally defective is always a serious one.

DR COPELAND

The American Medical Association, at its recent meeting, took action to bring about a more scientific handling of these problems. To further scientific investigation it was thought desirable to appoint a special committee. This will concern itself solely with psychiatric services in the criminal courts and prisons. It will co-operate with hospitals and other organizations in the care and treatment of the mentally ill.

The efforts to deal justly and wisely with criminal offenders are often handicapped. They fail because some lawyers and judges do not have the same conception of the factors that lie behind an offense. Through a psychiatric service, if it is sensibly conducted, something more than mere penal treatment may be given offenders. A sharper line can be drawn between criminals and those suffering from mental disorders.

The mental hygiene problems of today are exceedingly complex. Mental troubles are far more prevalent than ever before. Life is more complex than it used to be. Many persons have difficulty to adjust themselves to society and to the requirements of living.

The health of the body and the health of the mind act and react on each other. If we are to be really happy our mental attitude must be healthy.

Worry drains away a large store of nervous energy. Many sorts of mental conditions or attitudes bring about real disease. By simply correcting one's attitude of depression, irritability, cynicism and dissatisfaction with life in general one can bring physical well-being.

2 WITH CARDS, DICE HELD

As Peter Stilo, a barber, of North avenue, and Philip Clemins, a tailor, of Bluff street, both known, according to Detective Lieutenant Frank Ferris, as card sharps, were walking in Sixth avenue this morning they encountered the homicide head.

Ferris—"Where to, boys, so early?"

Stilo—"Taking our exercise, Frank."

Ferris—"Get in my car; I'll give you a lift."

Stilo—"No thanks, Frank, we prefer to walk."

Ferris—"Well, get in anyhow."

They got in, and after a search at the detective bureau revealed two decks of marked cards, a set of loaded dice, some slot machine slugs and a bottle of ink, believed to be for card marking, Ferris arrested the pair.

When the men, money in hand, smilingly asked Ferris to fix the bail, Ferris declined, saying they "were in for the day."

BOAT ON ROCKS, 23 IN PERIL

CUDAHY, Wis., Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Braving Lake Michigan's pounding waves, six boats were standing by today ready to help pull the freighter Burlington off the rocks, on which it was hung when the craft ran aground in deep fog late yesterday.

Reports that the heavily laden freighter had sprung a leak, due to high waves, were confirmed at midnight when the Burlington's crew sent out an urgent call for pumps. The message did not say how badly the hole was leaking.

Throughout the night several steamers, tugs, lighters and coast guard craft stood by, awaiting a chance to lighten the freighter by removing part of her cargo as soon as the waves subside.

The freighter is manned by a crew of 23 men and is carrying a heavy load of steel from Gary, Ind.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

Two Simple Creams Destroy Ugly Hair Forever

Unwanted hair removed for good from any part of the body—face, lips, arms, legs or under arms—by an astonishing NEW method that is rapidly replacing all ordinary methods because it is so simple, safe and harmless. Imagine, using two creams every other day for a few months, having the hair growth gradually fading out and then find that it will not grow back again. NEVER. The fastidious use of these two marvelous, NEW and proven skin creams will astound you with their work. NAX TWIN CREAMS for removing and destroying superfluous hair growths are guaranteed through two years of taken laboratory experimenting and positive work. Even the fairest complexion for this formula has destroyed most of his own beard. It will be an easy matter for you to rid yourself of any embarrassing hair growth for good. These creams are applied like any good skin cream, left on for only a few minutes and then washed away. The hair eventually disappears while the skin remains absolutely unstained, soft and smooth as satin. NAX TWIN CREAMS ARE ON SALE AT KAUFMANN'S DEPARTMENT STORE AND ALL HUDNUT-RIEGEL DRUG STORES IN PITTSBURGH.

In the fashion salons of Saks-Fifth Avenue, modernism in decoration reaches its most convincing heights. Here, good taste, chic and smart elegance prepare a background against which some of the loveliest models in America are displayed.

SAKS-FIFTH AVENUE draws its clientele from smarter New York. You've but to step inside its gleaming doors to recognize the subtle air of difference that distinguishes this famous fashion store.

You pass a counter of smart accessories . . . each one so crisp, so fresh, so right. On, past a stocking counter . . . laden with sheerest, delicate stockings. Up . . . through modernistic salons . . . sportswear so authentic . . . even the infants' garments wear a look of incredible chic!

"Use Palmolive Beads," say salesgirls

How, one wonders, can one keep the beauty of these lovely things past their first washing?

Saks has the answer. "Use Palmolive Beads" is advised throughout the store! "Use Palmolive Beads," says the salesgirl who sells you a pair of cobwebby hose. "Use Palmolive Beads," they say, when they show you exquisite baby woolens.

A new soap discovery

Palmolive Beads is an entirely new soap discovery . . . made to correct all the mistakes of other forms of soap. Scientific analysis shows many soaps are too strong. Others don't dissolve perfectly. Or the suds don't last. Or the soap won't rinse out.

Palmolive Beads has none of these old-time faults. Not one! Here's why:

Palmolive Beads are hollow, microscopically thin beads of soap; they go into thick, all-through-the-water suds before you can say "swish!" They dissolve in water of any temperature. Now, hot water need never injure garments nor redden hands.

And instant-dissolving means your garments rinse out soap-free in one water. No bits of gummy, half-dissolved soap remain to rot delicate fabrics.

The cleansing action of this new bead soap is safe and mild. No hard fats—no tallow—no coarse animal fats are used in the making of Palmolive Beads. Only gentle, protecting olive and palm oils.

Sponsored by Committee of 17

Palmolive Beads is the soap which 17 distinguished American women helped develop. Please read the list of famous women (at the left) who gave their time and talents to give America this perfect soap.

Your dealer has Palmolive Beads. Use it in perfect safety on the most delicate laces, the most fragile silks.

Diners Gaze at the Garbo And Out She Walks Without Eating

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.

Greta Garbo figures in an incident which has revived an old argument—is a motion picture star entitled to privacy off the screen?

It seems that the Swedish star emerged from her retirement to dine at a restaurant where the prices are scaled to exclude the general public. But even the costly coterie that frequent this establishment are not too proud to gaze at a Garbo.

Greta Garbo.

The result was that Greta walked out on her meal.

Hollywood, generally defends Greta's and all other stars' right to privacy.

Ann Harding says:

"I suppose I should admit that my all belongs to my public, but I certainly don't think so. Nobody likes to live in a gold-fish bowl. Whatever charm and dignity an actor may possess is ruined if delved into too deeply. I must confess, however, that, while I resent the theory very much, I don't seem to mind the practice. If anybody asks me questions about myself, I always answer them."

Charles Bickford, who is red-headed, retorts:

"My private life is none of the public's business. I think it is one of the most disgusting things in the world to print the intimate details of picture peoples' lives."

The gentle Ramon Novarro concedes:

"As long as I put myself in a public position, I have to pay the penalty for it. It is a necessary evil."

Ruth Chatterson replies tersely:

"The public cannot possibly find my private life anything but dull."

And so it ends, like most arguments, with everybody sticking to his original opinion.

PUZZLED

A New England miss of an old and proud family was put under contract by one of the studios to sing in the talkies.

When she arrived in Hollywood the musicals had hit the toboggan, and since then the studio has been using her to pose for publicity pictures.

Recently, a photographic layout in a magazine disclosed her in bathing suit and negligee.

In a few days she received a wire from her grandfather:

"Thought you went out there to sing."

MUCH IN DEMAND

Robert Warwick, one-time matinee idol of the screen, not only is staging a comeback, but is the subject of a tug-of-war between two studios.

Robert Warwick

Several days ago, the actor signed with Fox to do a part in "Once A Sinner."

Simultaneously, R-K-O called him for the second lead in "The Queen's Husband." It develops that Warwick made a test for this picture, but nothing came of it, and he accepted the Fox offer.

Each studio claimed his services.

Fortunately, a Solomon was at hand to effect a compromise. Warwick will do the R-K-O film, and later go to Fox for some other picture. C. Henry Gordon supplants him in "Once A Sinner."

Martyr

It's harder than I thought to stay away
(Although you've said that it is only right.)
I always dread the close of every day,
And fear the torture chamber that is Night.

For you are in my arms again, it seems.
I hold the fragrant youngness that is you,
And wage a futile fight against the dreams
That have a way of never coming true.

Though fair new lips would tempt me to be glad
I get a bigger kick from staying sad!
—Melancholy Baby

Not New, but Clean

From Lester Allen comes the one about the newly sealed couple who were honeymooning on the Atlantic City boardwalk. The bridegroom, who was a poet at heart, stopped and turned to the Atlantic. Raising his arms he cried:

"Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean, roll!"

"Oh, Gerald!" ejaculated his bride, "how wonderful you are. It's doing it!"

Observation

Take it from Bugs Baer, the brokers are whistling happy days, but they're using a fountain pen full of red ink for a flute.

Just for the Records

The recent controversy here over the stylist who coined the expression "the blues" is flaming again. Handy claims it and others would have you believe that Handy didn't.

Now, however, it appears that in 1837 a gent tagged Ingoldsby wrote a tome christened "The Ingoldsby Legends," and in it he makes mention of a "fit of the blues."

Explanation

Long white boxes and well cut flowers,
Little white cards and costly hours
At theater, at speakies, at all sorts of places,
Where waiters have proud and arrogant faces,

Yes, he, he is kind and with gold in his coffers,
With reverence and marriage in all of his offers.
Oh, he has the bait to be eaten and hung with,
While you're just the boy I used to be young with.

—Mad Hattie.

Or Was It Helen Hayes?

George Jean Nathan said in a recent Vanity Fair that, occasionally, he has overestimated a play. He confessed to having been tricked by the suavity of the general production, together with the persuasiveness of a scene or two, into seeing virtues in the play as a whole that were not there. "Coquette," frixample.

Nathan, along with the rest of us, wrote of it in terms much more commendatory than he should have, and for weeks received abusive letters from admirers who were "amazed," and who deplored his "lack of acuteness."

And then, to top matters, the producer of the show, Jed Harris, finally encountered George.

"Your review disgusted me," groaned Jed. "You certainly were fooled. It's a bad play and I've lost a lot of respect for you!"

"Coquette" was one of the better theater "smashes" New York ever enjoyed.

The Retort Proper

A certain theatrical producer, noted for his bad checks, was button-holed by Russ Brown, of "Flying High." Russ wanted to know when the phoney was going to pay a debt long overdue.

"Come to my office now," said the two-timer, "and I'll give you a check."

"Not me!" snapped Brown. "I know you too well. You're Check and Rubber Check!"

Elegy for Ignorance

I am not so old
And yet
I've made mistakes
That I almost forget.

Long ago, I did
Believe
All life must cease
Were just One to leave.

Now fancy that! I Didn't know
A heart can break
For a dozen or so.

—Janet Sonnen Strahl.

Oh, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for Frank J. Wilstach's Simile Dictionary:

Eunice Allison's "As slow as a snail at another snail's funeral" . . . Al Weiss': "He felt as cheap as a $22.50 suit" . . . International Newsreel's: "Standing alongside Carnera made you feel as thin as the phone directory with the Smiths and Joneses taken out" . . . Ambrose M. Feeley's: "He sunk so low he struck oil!"

Me, Too

Among other things that make reading the morning mail a fascinating job is discovering this type of unexpected confession from an out-of-towner. So many of the letters that come from the provinces would have you believe that they wouldn't live in New York "if you gave it to 'em!"

Comes this believable part of a small town gal's letter:

". . . don't know Broadway yet . . . Only saw Broadway for the first time a year ago . . . The big town made me sick . . . Sick for more!"

SHOWS TO PLAY HERE BEFORE GOTHAM OPENINGS

"Paran Lady," a drama by William DuBois and starring the dynamic Lenore Ulric, will be the attraction next week in the Nixon, prior to its premiere in New York. The play will serve to mark Miss Ulric's return to the legitimate stage, after a period of 18 months serving the cinemas. Miss Ulric's last stage appearance, incidentally, was as the star of David Belasco's "Mima."

"Hello Paris," starring Charles (Chic) Sale, the author of "The Specialist," will come to the Alvin Monday prior to its Broadway premiere. This new musical comedy will be presented by the Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert.

Traditions of the theater form the background for the drama, as well as some highly satiracle comedy in "The Royal Family," which will be the offering of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week.

MR. DENNY TO APPEAR WITH 'FRENCH GIRLS'

Fifi Dorsay, piquant French actress, is one of "Those Three French Girls" in the cosmopolitan picture of that name opening Friday in the Penn. The other two are Yola d'Arvil and Sandra Ravel. Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards (Ukulele Ike) are the featured male players.

The story was written by P. G. Wodehouse, noted British humorist, and tells of the riotous adventures of a young British nobleman in gay Paree. It is when he lands in jail along with three charming French damsels and two slightly inebriated Americans that the story takes on a hilarious hue, reminiscent, it is said, of "The Cock-Eyed World" and "Caught Short."

THREE LITTLE WORDS

All her life she waited to hear those three little words—I LOVE YOU.

But he was too careless or too busy to speak them.

They might have made a difference—those three little words—might have softened the drudgery of her existence, the sting of his failure.

Yet from those unuttered words there grew enduring love, linking them forever—a story of such compelling beauty every heart will respond to its magic.

"I was weak and rundown, could not sleep and had the troubles which come at my age (43). Life was a misery. Nothing did me any good until I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am on my third bottle and I cannot recommend it too highly. I feel like a new person now and I really think I would have been dead if I had not taken it. I think every lady ought to take it at the Change."—Mrs. Eunice Worthy.

The Loudspeaker

Mike in Senate.
We Want Debate.
Fifty Millions.
KDKA Service.

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The spirited debates that regularly characterize the sessions of Congress never fail to remind us that the bill providing for the installation of microphones in the Senate chamber, lies buried in the recesses of Capitol Hill.

Louis Reid

We hope by the time another Congress convenes it will be taken from its pigeon hole and given the consideration it deserves.

The broadcast of such debates as these upon prohibition, Supreme Court appointments, and other matters of front page importance would not only be of vast appeal to the drama-hungry ears of the nation, but they would serve to awaken public sentiments—the very goal of all Senatorial discussion—as it could not otherwise be awakened.

The Hearst newspapers and the Hearst Radio News Service are now sponsoring a movement to have the proceedings of Congress broadcast as a means of bringing about a better understanding of national affairs. The plan already has the backing of many prominent speakers in the national arena including Ruth Hanna McCormick and Representative John Garner, Democratic leader of the House.

Mrs. McCormick predicts that the broadcast would become not only most interesting but most popular. She declares that not as many people like to read speeches as there are who like to hear them and while newspapers keep people informed as to what is going on in Washington, reader interest and reasons of state prevent them from reporting the proceedings in detail.

It is our belief that the "people," the body politic, or the folks at the crossroads, or whatever you choose to call the voters of America, have become more Washington-conscious, more Senate-conscious since broadcasting became established than in all the previous years of the nation's history. Politicians are not easily fooled. The more successful of them are among the wisest of wise men. They know they can best get their message across when they attract the largest audiences. Consequently they are relying more and more upon radio.

Can't we have a little action, Senator Dill? Can't we get the bill reported and favorably acted upon this winter? Can't we have it in time to be of service in the war of words which will begin this December and which won't be ended until the votes are counted on Election Day, 1932?

Radio Would Welcome Debates From Capitol

The broadcasters would gladly find time for you, Senators. They would welcome the opportunity to transfer your discussions made in the open forum to the microphones. It would solve their afternoon program problem, now chiefly a matter of time-stalling. It would place radio upon an even more secure base than it now occupies. Finally, it would bring greater interest in the affairs of Government and inspire in you a greater zeal for service to the country, because it would bring your voices into every—well, nearly every—home in the land.

Senatorial talks and even talks from the members of House of Representatives on the air, save when they are concerned with political campaigns, are today too cut-and-dried, too concerned with theory rather than fact, too lacking in what the Broadway boys still call "punch." Microphones on Capitol Hill would banish this effect. The words of the lawmakers would reach the ear-cuppers in all the vigor and drama given them in debate. With microphones there would be no moaning at the bar of public opinion, as there is now, when the sharpshooters of Capitol Hill put out on the radio sea.

More than $50,000,000, it is said, will be spent by national and local advertisers in radio broadcasting this year. Many large advertisers spend from $250,000 to $500,000 a year for one hour on the networks for the purpose of creating good will in the minds of listeners.

There would be no question of the good will created, it seems to me, were all air advertisers to limit their ballyhoo to a few seconds at the end of the periods.

Radio Brings Cheer To Isolated Peoples

Eight years have passed since KDKA began its service of bringing comfort and cheer to the isolated peoples of the Arctic region. Today, it maintains contact with civilization for explorers and others, not only in the far North, but in the Antarctic and the jungles of the tropics. The effect of listening to its messages is like eavesdropping upon the neighbors or reading a country weekly. One hears intimate gossip of kinfolk and friends and household pets.

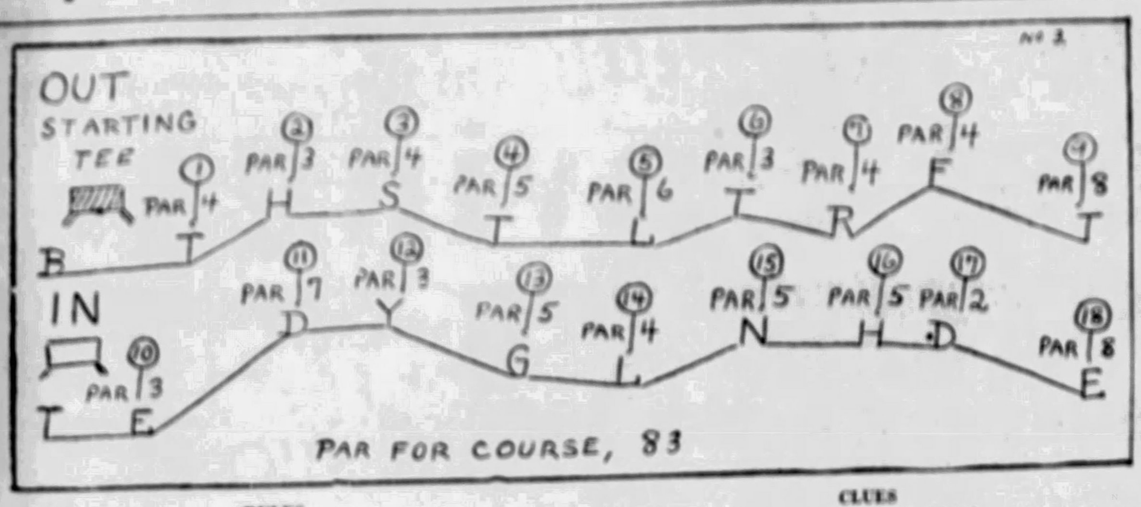
PENCIL GOLF



RULES

Proper nouns, slang and words that offend good taste cannot be used. SCORING: The first and last letters of each word do not count as strokes. A longer or shorter word can be substituted, but at a penalty. If a longer word is used, each letter above par counts as a stroke; if a shorted word is used, each letter below par counts as a stroke. If player cannot insert a suitable word, add 3 strokes to par for hole and proceed to next hole.

CLUES

1—Outlaw.
2—Impart knowledge.
3—To torment.
4—A scholar.
5—Grateful.
6—Not heavy.
7—To moderate.
8—To beat back.
9—Obtained by fraud.
10—Rigid.
11—Tired out.
12—A daily record.
13—Gaping.
14—Merry mood.
15—A portable light.
16—To feed.
17—Solid.

ZONING CHANGE PROTEST FAILS

In spite of opposition headed by the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, Council in committee yesterday affirmed an ordinance changing the zoning regulations of the northeast corner of Ridge and Galveston avenues from "residence" to "commercial." Councilman Robert Garland recorded the sole negative vote.

Ordinances changing the zoning on other corners were held over, some for hearings and others for investigation.

Patterson Heights Airport to Close

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 8.—Because of the hazard to motorists on Route 51, the Patterson Heights flying field will be abandoned, it is announced by Samuel B. Markley, lessee. The state highway parallels the field. An effort to have the state reroute the road failed. An inspector of the Aircraft Bureau of the Department of Commerce had condemned the field as too small for airport purposes.

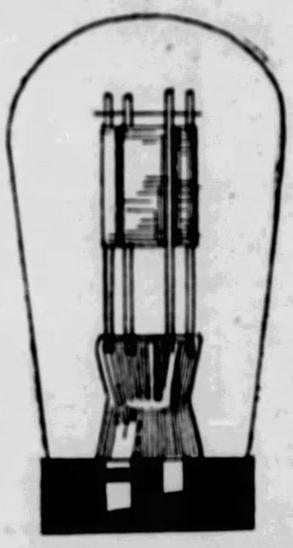
KAUFMANN'S considers the new Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar tube a distinct advance in radio tube engineering. For this reason we have added it to stock. The exclusive, patented 4-pillar construction is said to resist dangerous bumps, withstand vibration from the new powerful dynamic speakers, and in general give great satisfaction.



4 PILLAR RADIO TUBES

Eveready Raytheon Radio Tubes rest on four-point foundations . . . anchored at four points, like the modern suspension bridge, four-square like the Egyptian pyramids. If your tubes are giving you trouble, give these remarkable tubes a trial. We'll warrant they'll give you a new thrill.

EVEREADY RAYTHEON

Prices are the same as those for other standard tubes. If you buy a complete set we'll install them and check your set without charge for the service.

He wanted to stay in bed all day

It was the zero hour that marked the end of a restless, disturbed night and the beginning of another miserable day. Wearily he crawled out of bed and struggled into his clothes. Backache aggravated his nervousness. He was a tired, run-down man who worried about his kidneys and who looked and felt much older than his years.

He Eats the Purest Foods in the World...and still has
SYS-TEM-IC POISONING

OLD ideas have been abandoned in medical discussions and now many kidney, stomach, intestinal and nervous disorders are attributed to infection that lurks in the delicious foods we enjoy eating.

When your back aches and your kidneys bother you; when you toss and turn all night and drag yourself out of bed in the morning feeling miserable, nervous, utterly fagged out or so upset that mere thought of food is nauseating...You are probably the victim of the foods you have eaten. SYS-TEM-IC POISONING is undermining your health and robbing you of energy.

Every morsel of food that enters your mouth passes right through the stomach into the small intestine where the important task of refueling the blood with energy and health is completed. If this food does not move on immediately it generates millions of dangerous germs that pollute the blood, attack the kidneys and stomach, and upset the nervous system.

HOW TO GET RELIEF

What can be done to correct this condition and regain buoyant health? Neither harsh purgatives nor strong drugs will help you one bit. Such doses cause false stimulation that gives only temporary relief and leaves you feeling worse than ever.

To get relief and recover health..you must purify the system, rid it of poisonous germs just as an effective antiseptic cleanses an open wound.

The very first thing in the morning take a spoonful of Jad Salts in a glass of water and just 30 minutes later you'll feel much better.

SIFTS AWAY INFECTION

Jad Salts is totally unlike anything you've ever taken—vastly different in action and result. It is a scientific blend of ingredients that leading authorities recognize as most effective for relieving food infection.

This remarkable blend gently sifts through the body and quickly sweeps away all noxious germs that cause SYS-TEM-IC POISONING. When Jad Salts is taken with plenty of water the sluggish kidneys are stimulated so that they again discharge poisonous food debris.

As the system is thus purified, nerves are calmed, blue mornings vanish, glorious health and energy soon return.

Now beware of food infection. At the first warning sign of SYS-TEM-IC POISONING take a spoonful of Jad Salts in a glass of water as soon as you get up and you'll sit down to breakfast feeling fine. Start each day with this exhilarating, bubbling drink that Jad Salts makes and you'll soon look and feel better than you have in years. You'll sleep sounder and greet the morning clear-eyed, clear-headed, keenly alert, vigorous and ready for the day.

WHERE FOOD INFECTION STARTS

Stomach
Duodenum—9 inches
Small Intestine—12 feet
Large Intestine—5 feet

Foods allowed to remain in the small intestine generate poisonous germs that breed infection and cause SYS-TEM-IC POISONING . . . recognized by kidney trouble, upset stomach, indolence, backache, dull mornings, sallow, blemished skin, nervousness, or restless, disturbed sleep.

700 CITY JOBS READY NEXT WEEK

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM DFARR

We know the answer to any question about what's become of the younger generation. The younger generation is becoming a generation of assistant head waiters.

There are two of them in the Italian dining room of the William Penn Hotel. They're 12 or 13 years old. They stand behind the head waiter, who bows to incoming patrons, steps aside and, magic-like, reveals his two miniature assistants, who thereupon escort the customers to their tables.

A gentleman who has been in Italian dining rooms all over the hemisphere was startled by this picture a few days ago, but he quickly recovered his composure.

"Ah," he whispered, "a couple of Austin cars!"

We tried to get the lowdown on the billposter situation from Joe Keally, but we didn't get very far because it's hard to keep on one subject with Joe. You have heard of him. By day he posts bills, by night he referees fights.

He knows as many people in Pittsburgh as anybody else. He is a big, good-natured man, although every now and then he gets successfully mad. When he is introduced at fights, the bleacher customers always let loose a bellowing boo, not so much because they dislike Joe, but because he is from out the Strip way and they know he is big enough, as they say, to take it. Possibly the $1 customers booed him just to see him answer.

Joe has been posting bills for 20 years and, if we do say it ourself, probably has posted more bills than any other billposter in, let us say, Western Pennsylvania. Joe told us that, in posting the big 24 sheets, the poster begins at the upper left corner and works away from that spot.

But that is much less interesting than what Joe told us a few weeks ago, just before his wife was to return home from an all-summer vacation. He said: "Young fella, I been married all my life and my wife's been away all summer, but I've never been lonesomer in all my life."

The morgue building has been moved away from the Fourth Avenue Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which means that no longer can people mistake the building for the railroad's ticket office. Stanley Guzenski, the night deputy at the morgue, remembers the time the foreigner trooped into the morgue, walked up to the desk and said, merely, "Steubenville."

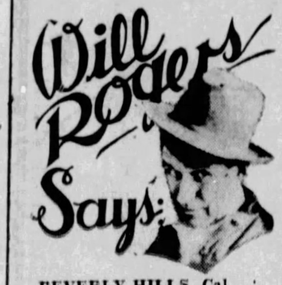
The man in charge, tired of explaining, grabbed an identification tag, stamped it and handed it to the visitor.

The foreigner took two $1 bills from his pocket.

"Tickets free today," the morgue man said, "it's the boss' birthday."

The foreigner walked out and boarded his train, identification tag in hand.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 8.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

I used to try to get what I thought would be some funny political angles over the radio, and it was awful hard. But along came my old friend Nick Longworth on the air and hit on a humorous angle that I had never thought of and I bet none of you had either. He blamed the Democratic party for the financial depression that is enveloping the world. It's really the biggest advertisement that the Democratic party have ever had. Why, if they were that important, they wouldn't be Democrats. They would be Republicans. But it was a new reason at that. Did you ever notice, there has never been a year when alibis were as scarce. Yours,

WILL.

CHURCHMEN, DARROW IN FORUM

Religious Leaders, Agnostic Cite Beliefs Before Great Throng in Carnegie Hall

Four representatives of as many beliefs presented a religious forum last night in Carnegie Music Hall, following a near-riot in which 1,000 or more, unable to buy tickets, sought to break into the auditorium.

While no one was hurt, Inspector James N. Hoey and a squad of patrolmen labored for 10 minutes restoring order. The opening of the program, with James Rae presiding, was delayed half an hour, with 2,300 jamming the place.

Softening the barbs with humor and a friendly consideration, Quin O'Brien, Chicago attorney and Catholic; the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, Pittsburgh Methodist minister; Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, well-known rabbi and Clarence Darrow, agnostic attorney, gave reasons for their religious attachments and beliefs.

DARROW SHARPEST

Darrow was sharpest in his cuts, and based his logical demands for approbation on an appeal for "the evidence". He humorously admitted his doubts, but denied that he knew anything certain.

Rabbi Goldenson emphasized that the forum was not a debate, and presented himself "more as a teacher than one who would argue." Dr. Day spoke brilliantly on Protestantism, its "approach to intellectual living, its realism."

O'Brien Speaks First

Quin O'Brien opened the discussion, ballots for place having previously been taken. He attacked agnosticism as the "know-nothing party," because its answer to the question of a God is "I don't know."

He declared the Jews, brilliant and shrewd race, had made their biggest slip when they failed to recognize Christ; that Protestantism, glorying in private judgment, has disintegrated into 350 sects, none agreeing on anything fully. He said, however, that the Protestants, Jews and Catholics should be allies fighting against the certain advance of agnosticism, and added:

"Many of my church's stories and fables were written for the childhood of the race. My church has never demanded that they be taken literally. Nor has it denied evolution, which 1,000 years before Darwin one of the saints, Augustine, presented as a theory of the development, not of the soul, although possibly the body of man."

SUMMARIZES REASONS

Summarizing his reasons for being a Catholic, he said:

"I am a Catholic because outside the Catholic Church there is no unity, authority, consistency or permanancy in religion. Our separated brethren glory in private judgment, but private judgment has made Protestantism into 350 sects.

"Outside the Catholic Church belief in miracles and the supernatural is dying. They do not believe in the Virgin Birth, which the Bible commands, but they do believe in birth control, which means few births and no control. Their prayer is more modern and modernistic, it is, 'Oh, God, if there is a God, bless my soul, if I have a soul.' They do not believe in fighting immorality by the confession of sins, but they do believe strongly in teaching sex.

"Impartial history records that the Catholic church is the gulf stream of civilization flowing through the ages, giving them warmth, color, light and life."

Dr. Day's Views

Attacking the basis of Agnosticism's denial of immortality, and its demand that nothing is actual unless seen or felt, Dr. Day said:

"Immortality in a material universe is unthinkable, but immortality in a spiritual universe is entirely apropos."

Giving his reasons for being a Protestant, Dr. Day based them on its encouragement to a creative intellectual approach to all problems of religion and life. Of this he said:

"There is the difficult question of authority in religion. Some have urged us to trust in an infallible pope. To many of us such a trust is impossible. The exegesis which claims to find any reference to pope or

5,000 APPLY AS COUNCIL RUSHES AID

Fern Hollow, Nine Mile Run Sewer Bond Issues Affirmed; Buy Tools

The first group of 700 laborers to be hired by the city to relieve the unemployment situation are expected to be put to work next week.

Council is rushing through the legislation needed to begin the construction employment that will enable the city to hire the men at $4.40 a day.

Two bond issues, affirmed yesterday by the councilmanic finance committee, will pass finally Monday. They are $132,000 for the Fern Hollow branch of the Nine-Mile Run sewer and $95,000 for various sewers and catch basins.

Another bond issue of $150,000 for the construction of a swimming pool at Lake Carnegie, Highland Park, sponsored by Councilman John S. Herron, passed unanimously Monday.

5,000 SEEK JOBS

Applications for the jobs continued to flood the office of the Civil Service Commission, reaching close to the 5,000 mark, about seven times more than there will be jobs available. Only citizens of Pittsburgh will be hired.

Council yesterday also approved an emergency appropriation of $25,000 for the purchase of picks, shovels, wheelbarrows and other equipment needed to carry on the work of its own labor instead of letting the jobs to contractors.

This appropriation was asked by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang after a conference with Controller James P. Kerr, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, Director of Supplies B. L. Succop and his engineers. At that conference it was decided that the city shall secure its own foremen and timekeepers to direct the projects, hiring only laborers to make up the 700 jobs that will be available within a few weeks.

BRIDGE PLANNED

In addition to the bond issues Council in committee yesterday affirmed an ordinance setting aside $90,000 for the construction of the Elizabeth Street Bridge approaches by hand labor and for a number of sewer projects, including a $90,000 relief sewer on Wightman street, Squirrel Hill.

BABY DESERTED, SEEK MOTHER

A 23-year-old woman was sought by Carrick police today for abandoning a baby girl in the home of a woman who befriended her three weeks ago.

The infant, 9 days old, was born at the home of Mrs. John Brimich, at 133 Laughlin avenue, Carrick, police said. The mother, without funds then, told Mrs. Brimich she was Mrs. Alice May Lang, 23, of Allison street, Philadelphia. Her husband, Mrs. Lang asserted, was killed two months ago when a bus he was driving crashed near Pittsburgh.

Yesterday the young mother left, telling Mrs. Brimich she was going to the downtown postoffice for a money order. When she failed to return last night, Mrs. Brimich became alarmed and notified police, who instituted a search for the woman. The baby was taken to the Roselia Maternity Hospital.

WEIGHT MEN MEET HERE

Speakers on eight subjects will be heard today on the second day's program of the eighteenth annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Weight and Measures in session at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

One government representative will be heard among the speakers during the morning. On the early program will be Ralph W. Smith, of Washington; Chester Rimbey, Beaver County; B. W. Ragland, Richmond, and Paul R. Baker, Somerset.

Scheduled for afternoon addresses are E. D. Brown, Harrisburg; R. M. Laverty, Pittsburgh; Reed B. Keck, Clarion and Forest counties, and F. X. Colgan, Adams County. The conference will close tomorrow with election of officers and suggestions from manufacturers' representatives as a feature.

Receive Donations In Hospital Week

Canned goods and merchandise are being received at school buildings of the North Boroughs in the annual donation week of the Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue. A musical tea was scheduled for this afternoon in the directors' room of the hospital under auspices of the women's advisory board, Mrs. Nellie E. Robertson, chairman. Money offerings are being received by Miss Eva M. Braun, superintendent. Tag day for the hospital will be held Saturday.

Council to Purchase Site for City Dump

Council has decided to purchase the John E. Born property on the Forward Avenue extention for a city dump. It will replace the Highland Park dump, abandoned after Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence and other officers and members of the Garden Club of Pittsburgh entered protests.

According to the Department of Public Works the new dump will cost $10,000 and hold 1,000,000 cubic yards of dirt. It is assessed at $9,000 plus.

26 of Mine Board Accept Invitations

Twenty-six members of the mining advisory board to the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the United States Bureau of Mines have accepted the invitation of President Thomas S. Baker to attend the fall meeting and dinner of the board tomorrow evening in Carnegie Inn, Woodlawn avenue.

Following the dinner, Dr. Baker will call for committee reports and new data on subjects now occupying the attention of the research men.

Reed Plans to Consider Postmaster Aspirants

Senator David A. Reed expects to return to Pittsburgh next Monday to consider applicants for the postmaster's position, vacant since the retirement of George W. Gosser.

He came here Monday to attend the funeral of his brother, James H. Reed, and remained over yesterday to dispose of an accumulation of personal business. Before leaving for Washington, the Senator said:

"I intend to recommend a candidate for postmaster in time for President Hoover to transmit his appointment to Congress for confirmation when it convenes the first Monday in December."

Announced aspirants for the job are Assistant Postmaster James B. Anderson, M. J. Shortley, manager of the local veterans' bureau; and L. L. Hill, assistant superintendent of mails here.

Ben Avon Host To Mission Meet

The semi-annual meeting of the Allegheny Presbyterial Missionary Society, United Presbyterian Church, will be held tomorrow in the Ben Avon United Presbyterian Church, with Mrs. Charles W. Fulton, president, presiding. A meeting of the executive committee and treasurer's report will be held in the morning, to be followed by luncheon and a series of sketches, "Scenes From the Mission Fields," in the afternoon. Miss Elizabeth White, of Cairo, Egypt, will speak.

Secretary Davis Dormont Speaker

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis will be the guest speaker at a community meeting Monday evening, November 3, in the Hillside Avenue School under the auspices of the Men's Bible Class of the Dormont Methodist Episcopal Church.

Morningside Pupils Will Present Play

Eighth grade pupils of the Morningside school, assisted by several seventh grade children, will present a play entitled "Around the Blue Wigwam" tomorrow evening at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association. The play is in two acts.

MERCY VERDICT FOR KILLER

Harry Cain, 30, alias Slim King, Negro, of Elm street, on trial for his part in a murder following a lover's quarrel, was sentenced to serve from one to two years in the penitentiary today after a jury found him guilty of voluntary manslaughter with a recommendation of mercy.

Cain was tried for the murder of Gilbert Smith, 30, Negro, of Clark street, last February 8, it being alleged he had held Smith while Elizabeth Howard stabbed him through the heart in a lovers' quarrel. The woman pleaded guilty June 10 and was sentenced to serve three to six years in the workhouse.

The murder case of Charles Jones, 10, Negro, of Hazelwood avenue, charged with shooting John Guilford, 35, Negro, of Monongahela avenue, six years ago, was expected to go to the jury today.

GIRLS ANNOYED, SHEIKS HELD

James Finnerty, 22, of 1423 Boyle street, North Side, and William Swartz, 21, of 21 East Forrest avenue, Bellevue, were arraigned in North Side Police Station today on a charge of violating a city ordinance. A policeman charged they were cruising about the streets in an automobile and accosting girls.

Finerty was fined $5, with alternative of five days in jail. Swartz was discharged by Magistrate Ray Schneider, who turned him over to a constable with a warrant charging him with giving a bad check to the T. C. Allison Realty Company, 812 Federal street.

DAVIS STARTS WHEELS OF NEW BYERS IRON PLANT

URGES IDLE MEN BE PROVIDED WITH JOBS

Labor Secretary Recommends Immigration Restriction; Voice Turns Wheels Over

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, an old-time iron puddler, today started the wheels of the new plant of the A. M. Byers Company at Economy that spells the doom of the old process on manufacturing wrought iron by hand-puddling. Davis' voice, through a mechanical control, turned the first machinery.

The secretary, speaking, stressed the need of ending unemployment in the nation, and congratulated the Byers officials for providing work for the hundreds of employes who are displaced by the process in the company's new $12,000,000 plant.

'CURB IMMIGRATION'

He said the country would be safe economically only when employers of labor provided jobs for men who are displaced by labor-saving machinery such as in use at the Byers mill.

Another method of providing work in America must come through the restriction of immigration, Mr. Davis declared.

He said:

"Under present general unemployment conditions the need for restricting immigration is imperative. I predict that President Hoover, under terms of the new immigration law, will pevent the entrance to America of 150,000 immigrants during the coming winter."

SEES BIG MARKET

Secretary Davis predicted the new method of wrought-iron making would result in a wide extension of markets for this material and the winning back of markets that have been lost through slow manufacture.

A. H. Beale, president of the Byers company, presided at the dedicatory exercises and introduced the speaker.

VOICE STARTS MACHINES

The Aston method of producing iron, heralded as one of the most far-reaching inventions in the industry, replaces the old system of puddling by hand, and speeds up production.

Before the secretary's voice set in motion the machinery, James Aston, one of the inventors of the new system of producing wrought iron, started one of the preliminary processes by passing his hand over a grid glow tube. The grid glow tube and the telephone control are some of the latest innovations of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's research laboratory.

Secretary Davis first made his dedicatory address. He then uttered the words starting more than 1,500 pounds of iron through the new process. A giant ladle poured approximately one ton of white molten iron into a cup of seething slag.

Invitations to attend the dedication had been sent to Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Company; Eugene B. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Company; A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer; James A. Farrell, of the United States Steel Company; Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, R. B. Mellon, W. L. Mellon, and many others.

The plant covers 126 acres on the Ohio River and has a capacity of from 45,000 to 50,000 tons of iron per month.

CONTO SUSPECT FACES HEARING

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Oct. 8.—A coroner's jury meeting in Apollo yesterday found that Joseph Conto, Leechburg pop manufacturer, whose headless body was discovered at Shady Plain, September 16, came to his death from shotgun wounds at the hands of persons unknown. The jury recommended that the county continue its investigation.

Constable William Raper, who is being held in the county jail at Kittanning on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Conto, is scheduled for a hearing today before Justice of the Peace Frank J. Atkins at Kittanning. Raper is supposed to be the last person to have seen Conto alive. The prisoner was at the inquest.

SHRINERS PLAN CEREMONIAL

All living past potentates of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., will participate in the fall ceremonial of the Shrine in Syria Mosque Friday. Delegations from many sections of the tri-state district will attend according to Charles H. Landefeld, potentate.

A business session will open the ceremonial in the afternoon. Following a banquet, a number of novices will be initiated into the mysteries of the Shrine. The veteran patrol, Shrine chanters and the Legion of Honor will entertain during the ceremonial.

Bowling Alley Tax Hearing Scheduled

A hearing on the proposal to tax bowling alleys $2.50 per alley was scheduled this afternoon before Council. The tax on miniature golf links, at $1.66 per hole, is in the same ordinance. Hearings on nine proposed zoning changes also are scheduled.

PLUMBER NOW STAR GAZER

From the plumber's bench to the stars and back again, so moves the life of Leo Scanlon, 24, of 106 Van Buren street. Each morning Leo takes his kit and spends the day fixing leaks and repairing someone's kitchen sink.

Then, when the whistle blows and the rest of his fellow workers hurry home to rest, Leo goes to his home and looks at the stars and dreams of ways to see more of them.

A little more than a year ago a group of amateur astronomers organized for the purpose of research work.

Aside from the instrument Scanlon made and used, Mr. Scanlon had started work on a larger and more complicated telescope.

Mr. Scanlon then decided that the club's research work could be carried on more successfully if they had a place in which they could set up the telescope permanently.

The building will be completed in three weeks at which time the research of the embryo astronomer will begin on a larger scale. Mr. Scanlon said:

"This is not to be a public convenience, but if anyone comes out with a real interest in astronomy, we will not turn him away, but I her, to show him some of the real pleasure that I have experienced in the planning and erection of this instrument and building."

MOTOR DEATHS SHOW DECLINE

Adult traffic fatalities in Allegheny County made no gain over last year, and child autocides showed a slight improvement during September, according to an analysis of County Coroner W. J. McGregor's figures. Thirteen traffic fatalities, three of them children, increased the nine-month toll to 136 and the child total to 23.

This year there have been 136 traffic fatalities, compared with 127 for a similar period of 1929, 112 in 1928, 126 in 1927 and 102 in 1926. Traffic fatalities in September, 1929, showed 10 adults and four children, compared with 10 and three this year.

CITY OFFICIALS GET TRIPS TO CONVENTIONS

Health Department, Public Works and Engineers To Send Representatives

On to a convention, seems to be the motto of city officials. Council, in committee yesterday, approved three requests for permission to attend such meeting, with expenses paid.

One approved request came from Dr. C. B. Maits, head of the Department of Health. With two aides, he wants to travel to the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Public Health Association at Forth Worth, Tex., October 27 to 30.

Council approved this, after making an amendment including one councilman in the junket. Another request came from Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, asking permission to send an engineer to study the electric equipment at the Chicago waterworks. As the cost is only $50, this was granted.

Director Lang also asked and received permission to send Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, Thomas Reed, head of the Engineering Bureau, and himself to the convention of the American Association for Municipal Improvements at Richmond, October 13 to 17.

Reed, present in Council at the time, announced he could not attend the convention. He remarked:

"I'll be too busy putting these laborers to work. Count me out."

STILLS SEIZED, 3 MEN HELD

Prohibition agents reported making raids on an alleged whisky aging plant and a distillery in Soho and a distillery in Woods Run yesterday.

One hundred and fifty gallons of moonshine were seized in the aging plant at 2212 Tustin street, where, agents said, John Toth was arrested and later released on his own recognizance. Next door, at 2214 Tustin street, they reported confiscating a 50-gallon still, and destroying 1,250 gallons of mash.

Charles Kos and Andy Zura were arrested at 2914 Preble avenue, a stone's throw from the Woods Run Police Station, in connection with the seizure of a 100-gallon still, it was reported. Besides the still, the agents destroyed 400 gallons of mash.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: Are women more superstitious than men?

H. KROMELOW, manager: Yes. I believe women are and always have been more superstitious than men. In saying this, I do not mean to imply that women are pessimistic, but that they seem to be more easily influenced by the great mystery that surrounds coming events.

Mr. Kromelow

EDDIE RECH, Mt. Washington, helper: Women are more optimistic than men in some cases, but it seems to me that the old superstitions have a greater influence over their daily lives; men are occupied with too many other things.

Mr. Rech

EDWARD LEBASKY, North side, salesman: Women are and always have been more superstitious than men. It seems to me that each generation passes this trait, if it may be called this, on to their younger sisters—and so on down through the ages.

Mr. Lebasky

MRS. JOHN KENNETT, North Side, housewife: Yes, it just seems that women are naturally more superstitious than men. If a women is told that if she does some one thing something is bound to happen, she most probably won't do it. Perhaps the reason is that women are more cautious, by nature.

Mrs. Kennett

MRS. JOHN FLAHERTY, North Side, housewife: I believe that a woman is by nature more superstitious than a man. A man would not let a mere superstition keep him from doing anything he intended to do; a woman might do just that. Sometimes superstitions, so-called, are really womens' intuitions.

Mrs. Flaherty

MISS DOROTHY MILLER, North Side, unemployed: Yes, they are, of that I'm sure. I can't say why this is so, but this superstition seems to be a quality peculiar to women. I do believe that a superstitious man is one man in a million.

BOY HUNTER KILLED

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—An investigation of the fatal wounding of Lawrence Hall, 18, of Middle Run, Doddridge County, while he was hunting, revealed that he probably was shot when his gun was discharged accidentally while climbing over a fence.

Hall's body was found on a farm at Middle Run. He was wounded in the leg and died from loss of blood.

Minister to Enact Role of Pershing

A clergyman playing the part of Gen. John J. Pershing will be one of the features of "The Woman-less Wedding," Thursday and Friday evenings at St. James' Hall under the auspices of the Methodist Men's Bible Class.

The clergyman will be the Rev. Ira Freeman. Dr. A. B. Dietrich will have the leading role as the bride, James T. Fox as the henpecked husband, David Rodgers as Mme. Schumann-Heink and Kirk Heselbarth as the vampire. A cast of 80 men will take part, most of them in feminine roles.

Woman Held in Dry Raid on Restaurant

Arrested when county detectives raided her restaurant in Anderson street, Helen Davis, 30, alleged proprietor, was arraigned before Alderman George Anderson on charges of violating the Snyder act. In default of $1,000 bail she was lodged in the county jail. The raid was made following complaints being received by the county sleuths.

Dr. Baker to Speak At Coal Meeting

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology will speak at the thirteenth annual meeting of the National Coal Association in Detroit, October 16. RAPPE WINNER IN DAHLIA SHOW

Herman Rappe, of the Watson Home for Crippled Children, today held highest number of awards in a dahlia exhibit which marked the thirty-fifth anniversary of the Civic Club of Allegheny County. It was conducted by the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club.

Three first awards were taken by the Rappe entries, including honors for the largest dahlia in the exhibit, which measured 11 inches across the bloom. Other prominent winners included Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., first prize in the Civic Club class; John Jones, of the Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., estate, one first place and one second award; William C. Degelman, of Bridgeville, first award for 1930 seedling; Gus Sauer, Glenshaw, one first prize and second award for 1930 seedling.

In the florist class, Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc., took two first awards for a basket and a center piece. The exhibit was held in the Civic Club rooms at the William Penn Hotel.

STATE ADDS AID TO JOB HUNT

for action. A number of needy were placed, both reported.

Hansbury conferred with Mayor Charles H. Kline yesterday and later announced he had received the promise of full co-operation of the executive in giving work to the needy.

Hansbury said:

"We will do everything in our power to further the cause and I am more than sure that if employers send in the coupons offering jobs we will place those who are unemployed. I think the movement is one of the finest started here in a long time."

STATE CO-OPERATES

Commenting on the effectiveness of such a plan, Mitchell said:

"We want the state employment office to be a clearing house for all types of labor. We want to co-operate with all offering jobs. As soon as we receive a coupon from the Sun-Telegraph we will send an applicant for an interview. No matter how small the job might be, or how little or how much it pays, we want to know about it. We'll see that the job is filled."

There are thousands of men and women—all needy—out of work in Pittsburgh, census records show. The majority of these are capable workers with good references. They are seeking any kind of labor that will tide them and their families through a period of temporary depression.

ANY ODD JOB

Hundreds of persons here have work that must be done this autumn. This includes walks to be fixed, cellars to be whitewashed, furniture to be moved and lawns cut and cleaned.

The effort of the Sun-Telegraph to secure jobs for the needy is directed at this time to employers who have work to offer and is not to be construed as a request for unemployed to send in their applications for work.

These can be taken care of at the state employment office or at the City Civil Service Commission office, Fifth floor, City-County Building.

Every man and woman sent to interview employers will be known to the bureaus.

72, DIVORCES WIFE, 20

DR. ISAAC NEWTON BOYD, 72 — MRS. BOYD, 20

The December-May romance of Dr. Boyd, physician, and this young girl, 17, when they married in 1926, ended in Pittsburgh divorce court. They met after a trolley flirtation, it was testified.

DIVORCE GIVEN AGED DOCTOR

The marriage bonds of Dr. Isaac N. Boyd, 72 and enfeebled, and his 20-year-old wife, Mary Louise, which were tied following a street car flirtation, were severed yesterday in Common Pleas Court when a divorce was granted Boyd.

The Boyds were married in 1926 and lived together for nearly a year when, according to testimony, Mrs. Boyd left her husband. A cross suit was filed by Mrs. Boyd, who charged her husband put her out of their home, 71 Knox avenue.

Contesting her husband's divorce action, Mrs. Boyd said her acquaintance followed a street car flirtation, and that when he first called at her home she thought he called to see her mother. She also charged in her testimony that her husband maltreated her to the extent that she lost 36 of her 142 pounds.

This was denied by the physician, who testified his wife described the home he made for her as a "so-and-so shanty."

Additional Essay Data Now Available

Children in the second and third divisions of the Better Traffic Committee's essay contest being conducted this month may obtain additional reading material from the Pittsburgh Motor Club, officials of the club announced today. Special material has been prepared for those writing on downtown parking problems and the proposed codified traffic ordinance. This information may be obtained by writing to the club's headquarters in the William Penn Hotel.

$1,000 Fire Laid To Eletric Iron

Damage estimated at $1,000 resulted from a fire in the S. Gerson Dry Cleaning Plant, on the first floor of a two-story brick building at 1913 Murray avenue early today. The fire was believed to have started from an electric iron.

Darrow, Church Leaders Debate

infallibility is so thin and so torturous as to command no conviction. As a matter of history, popes have not been infallible. Heinrich, Catholic apologist, saying, 'To submit a decision upon papal authority to historical science is the utter denial of the doctrine.'

"Protestantism has wide open arms for those who, prepared to get along without infallibility, recognize that experience is the final test of all truth which is capable of human testing."

Dr. Goldenson Speaks

Dr. Goldenson, following, said:

"The first and most obvious answer to the above question is that I was born in a Jewish home and that from the earliest days my parents quite naturally and deliberately brought me into association with such Jewish people as would transmit to me the values taught by Jewish history, literature and life. There is certainly no novelty in this answer, but it is important to make it for the sake of completeness and also to satisfy certain types of mind who might feel that unless this very obvious thing is said, one hasn't been completely frank. Such persons might miss the acknowledgment that one's way of thinking and one's belief have been influenced by one's forbears and by the cultural and social environment erected for him.

"But to think that this is the whole story or to stress this unduly is very wide of the mark. Surely this audience knows full well that 99 per cent of the children born in the Jewish home tend to become Jews and 99 per cent of those born of Christians tend to become Christians. But what I believe is not generally realized is that in addition to the fact that children almost universally tend to follow the beliefs of their parents, they by reason of their kinship and intimate association with their people, are led to have an understanding and appreciation of these beliefs that it is difficult for the outsider to attain."

Darrow's Talk

The 70-year-old Clarence Darrow, the last speaker, drawled his words to the audience, ridiculing the beliefs of his predecessors on the rostrum with amiable indifference. He spared none of the beliefs of the three great religions. He spoke slowly, in contrast to the piercing O'Brien, fiery Day and the soft-voiced, paternal Rabbi.

"I've learned a few things," he began, "especially that I could pick two beliefs and they'd be better allies to me than to my friend O'Brien.

"I've long realized how useful an agnostic can be in this world. But how long have Protestant ministers spoken such sense as Dr. Day did tonight? Not until the rise of the agnostics. How long has the Jew? Well, longer, I'll admit. The agnostic is said to be the person who doesn't know anything. What do you know about that?

"The biggest fools I ever knew, knew most—most things that weren't true.

ALL DOUBTERS

"They say we are doubters. Well, they are too. You can't be a Catholic unless you doubt, say, the truth of the Protestants. The agnostic is one who says 'there are many things we don't know.' He says he doesn't know if there's a God or not, and won't guess.

"Friend O'Brien said all the Old Testament was fables, writtene for the childhood of the race. I learned hat from a Catholic. Well, that applies also to the New Testament, doesn't it? Take for example Adam and Eve, she being made out of a rib. Isn't that a lovely purpose to put a perfectly good rib to? Truth or fable?

ASKS MIRACLE PROOF

Demanding evidence concerning the Virgin Birth, and other miracles, including the raising of the dead and curing of the sick, Darrow asked.

"Are these necessary for Christianity?

"I'm not trying to make any converts. I'd help the Christian church get rid of every superstition and fear. I know the churches are changing. And it doesn't speak well for those who are not, because everything else has changed."

PLAN SECOND FORUM

January 15 has been set, tentatively, as the date of a second symposium of religion, duplicating last night's record meeting.

George W. Whitehead, forum director, said today:

"Considering the fact that as many people were turned away as were accommodated, it seems logical to bring Darrow and O'Brien back to Pittsburgh, after the first of the year.

"Both of these men—the agnostic and the Catholic, have agreed to take part January 15. Rabbi Goldenson and Dr. Day have been invited, and have the matter under consideration."

Church Sessions Start Today Following Close of Allied Body's Annual Meeting

By THE REV. L. W. RUPP,
Special Correspondent.

(The Rev. Mr. Rupp will write daily exclusive dispatches for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, featuring those highlights of special interest to Pittsburgh district Lutherans during the sixth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church now being held in Milwaukee.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 8.—The election of several Pennsylvanians to office in the Brotherhood of the United Lutheran Church featured the brotherhood convention in session at the Hotel Schroeder here. Carry Cope, of Greensburg, was elected a member of the executive committee of the brotherhood yesterday and the Rev. J. C. Michaels, of Johnstown, was elected a vice president.

G. R. Edgar, of Charleston, W. Va., was elected secretary; H. E. Isenhour, Salisbury, N. C., president; Charles Driever, Chicago, and Charles P. Obenhack, Niagara Falls, N. Y., vice presidents; C. W. Howe, Chicago, treasurer, and H. C. Poffenberger, of Baltimore, and C. E. Schallberg, of Omaha, additional members of the executive committee.

PLAN BOYS' SCHOOL

The brotherhood decided to parallel work of the Women's Missionary Society in its school for girls at Konnarock, Va., by establishing a similar school for boys at Ironmountain in the same district. It is planned to purchase the center of the Hassinger Lumber Company, including buildings, farming equipment, orchards, sheep, cattle and 300 acres of land.

The Rev. H. H. Bagger, president of the Pittsburgh Synod, organized the Pittsburgh delegation yesterday afternoon in the hotel. A full Pittsburgh delegation attended the convention of the brotherhood which closed late yesterday.

CHURCH SESSION OPENS

The sessions of the United Lutheran Church began last night in the Church of the Epiphany. Today there will be a business session at which President Dr. F. H. Knubel, of New York, will make his report. The executive committee also will hold a session today.

Bud Guest Of Honor At Tea

Entertainments for the newest members of the grown-up social world are beginning to vie in number and brilliance with fetes for autumn brides-to-be. This very afternoon brings a tea in honor of one of the buds of the season.

Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl and her daughter, Joan, who made her bow during the past winter, are giving the tea this afternoon in their home, Hobart street, and the guest of honor is Helen Louise Tunnell, daughter of the E. Paul Tunnells, of Aylesboro avenue.

Helen will make her formal debut on December 1 at the first bachelors' cotillion in Baltimore, the former home of the Tunnells.

Autumn flowers are used in decorating the Diehl home. The debutante is wearing a gown of delicate peach lace and has a corsage of variegated orchids. Mrs. Diehl has chosen a black chiffon and lace gown, and Joan is wearing beige chiffon and lace.

Mrs. Tunnell is in black velvet and lace, and Miss Lillian Washburn Newlin, of New York and Newport, Mrs. Tunnell's sister, is appearing in mauve chiffon, and Martha Murray, a Baltimore debutante, is in black velvet. Miss Washburn entertained in her Newport home this summer for her niece with a novel barn dance. And Joan Diehl was among the guests.

The debutante named as her aides Barbara Irwin, Virginia Drake, Elizabeth Childs, Eugenia Nash, Elizabeth McKay, Elinor Tucker and Carolyn-Clare Snow, all sister buds. And Joan Diehl asked Lydia Irish, Nancy Allerdice, Laura Evans, Jane Sloan and Harriet Fickes, all buds of the past winter, to be her aides.

Margret Brill, debutante daughter of the Alfred P. Brills, of St. James street, who was to have been an aide at the Diehl tea, left last night for New York, where she'll continue her academic studies at the French School and her study of the harp with Salzedo. She'll be back in town for the Thanksgiving holidays, and again at Christmas time.

Resume Studies

Lois Virginia Tack, daughter of the Harry Sweetser Tacks, of Pine road, Sewickley, left last night for the French School, too. Her brother, Frank Martin Tack, has returned to Lawrenceville for his senior year.

Last night the Porter Sawyer Kiers, of Darlington road, entertained 150 guests at a dinner dance in the Longue Vue Country Club. Autumn flowers decorated the tables and the ballroom. Mrs. F. Lowry Wall, of Miami, Fla., and the Wilbur Lee Jacks, of Cleveland, house guests of the Kiers, were the guests of honor.

There is nothing, I believe, that folks are more interested in hearing about, besides a wedding, than parties for a bride-to-be. They seem to fit in with the fall atmosphere, too, somehow. One of October's most feted brides-elect is Sara Westwood Lewis, daughter of the Bertrand West Lewises, of South Pacific avenue, whose marriage, you'll recall, to James Scott Miller, son of the Harry A. Millers, of Wheaton, Ill., will be an event of Saturday, October 18.

Much Feted

On September 6 Elizabeth Phillips gave a bridge in her home in South Pacific avenue for Sara, and on September 23 Mrs. G. G. McKee, of Wood street, Wilkinsburg, gave an evening bridge in her home. On September 27 Janet Clark was hostess at a bridge-luncheon in the Stanton Heights Country Club.

Last Saturday Anne Negley, of South Negley avenue, gave a bridge-luncheon in her home for Sara, and last night Mrs. Elmer Kidney, of Orchard avenue, Bellevue, was hostess at a dinner in her honor.

This Saturday Alice Meyer will have a bridge for her in her home in Callowhill street, and on Tuesday the Edwin S. Scheetzes will be the hosts at a luncheon in their St. James terrace home. Wednesday, October 15, Virginia Rossell will give a luncheon in her home in Homewood avenue, and on Friday, October 17, Sara's aunt and uncle, the Edwin K. Morses, of North Craig street, will be hosts at a buffet supper in their home for the bridal party and the out-of-town guests. On the morning of the wedding, Elizabeth Snyder and Marguerite McLenahan, who will be among the bridesmaids, will give a rehearsal breakfast in the University Club.

Have you ever seen a more stately wedding than that yesterday morning of Kitty Schley and H. Allan Machesney, Jr? And I doubt if any bride has ever had a more golden wedding day. Yesterday I talked about the bride's gown, the decorations and the colorful autumn gowns of the attendants, and now I want to tell you who some of the guests were.

Stately Wedding

Mrs. John G. Frazer I noticed leaving the Cathedral. She wore a brown printed autumn crepe dress and a brown felt beret.

Arriving with her mother, Mrs. Frederick W. Edmondson, was Martha Edmondson, who wore a vivid orange wool coat with black galyak bordering the cape and a black felt hat. Her mother wore a green tweed coat with a felt hat to match.

Mrs. William Zang, wearing cricket green crepe with a green felt hat, and her daughter, Neil Stewart Zang, arrived just before the bridal procession. Neil wore a brown velvet suit with an eggshell satin blouse, and a beige felt close-fitting hat.

Miss Eliza Armstrong was there, wearing a black ensemble, and Mrs. Alan Cooper Stevenson arrived with her daughter, Peggy Lynn Stevenson, and I believe I caught sight of her younger daughter, Mary Moody Stevenson, too. Mrs. Stevenson wore a smart Paddy green crep dress with a green felt hat to match, and Peggy Lynn wore red crepe with a felt hat to match.

Many Guests

I caught a glimpse of Barbara Ewing, wearing a cricket green crepe frock, a fox fur and a black felt hat, and of Mrs. Leonard K. Guiler.

Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., wore a black ensemble, and Mrs. Mortimer Miller chose plum-colored lace with a velvet hat of the same shade.

Virginia Furey in a black ensemble arrived with her mother, Mrs. William M. Furey, and Mary Mellon McClung wore a beige tweed coat over a printed crepe dress and a beige felt hat.

Louise Reed chose a black wool dress and coat and a fabric hat to match, and Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys looked smart in black, too. Mrs. W. W. Blair, Jr., wore a trim black suit, and a black felt hat, and I saw Mrs. E. J. McCague, too.

Black Smart

Mrs. Stephen Stone in a black tailleur and black felt hat was there with her daughter Marian, who also wore black. And Helen McCance, wearing Nile green crepe, and her sister Betty, wearing sapphire blue crepe with a hat to match, I saw leaving the church with their mother, Mrs. Frank K. McCance, who chose a black ensemble.

And among the out-of-town guests were the John Langdon Gateses, of Cincinnati; Miss Sara Chew, of Winchester, Va.; William Hyde, of Hagerstown, Md.; Mrs. Francis S. Chambers, of Elizabeth, Pa.; the Frederick A. Yeagers, of Johnstown, Pa., and Mrs. Charles Walter, of Chambersburg, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. MacLane, of Churchill road, Wilkinsburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lois MacLane, to Walter D. Wilkison, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Wilkison, of New Castle, which took place on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock. The ceremony took place in the bride's home with the bridegroom's brother-in-law, the Rev. H. S. Evans, of Birmingham, Mich., officiating.

Married Tuesday

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of sunset net and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Miss Sally Baird, of Swarthmore, the bride's only attendant, wore a gown of brown crepe and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Thomas Gibson, of New Kensington, was the best man.

There was a breakfast and reception in the Edgewood Country Club, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wilkison left for a motor trip through the New England states. They will make their home in Churchill road later.

Mrs. Wilkison attended Ohio Wesleyan University and Mr. Wilkison is a graduate of Westminster College.

Hobby Class To Start At Y. W.

One of the most popular hobbies of the day will be demonstrated at Central Branch Young Women's Christian Association tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. For several years soap sculpture, as the fad of small groups, has been of sufficient interest to warrant international competition. Now, however, it is becoming increasingly attractive to large groups everywhere and its value in art training, as well as its possibilities as a means of self-expression is meriting widespread attention. Soap sculpture is rapidly coming to the forefront in "hobbies for fun."

William P. Bohn, who will give tomorrow's demonstration, is the winner of three prizes in the international contests. Mr. Bohn is a graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology, School of Fine Arts, and has specialized in sculpture. He will conduct a hobby group every Thursday night and will also have a group in sketching.

The first meeting of those interested in the new Business Girls' League now being offered at Central Branch will be held tomorrow evening. An inexpensive club supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock, and will be followed by a program set up by the temporary committee in charge. Miss Mary Jane Paul and Mrs. Carl Carlin will give readings and Miss Minnie Fischer will sing. Miss Betty Chorba will preside. Just what the activities of the league will be and what business girls may expect to find in the Y. W. C. A. will be explained by Miss Marguerite Jane Maus, executive of the business girls' department. Following the supper, Miss Maus will demonstrate leather tooling. Several classes are open in English, bridge, social usage, poise in public speaking and presiding, ukulele, gym and swimming, but for girls who do not wish to join any of these a social time will be provided.

As an added feature of entertainment at the benefit to be given Friday night in Webster Hall by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, there will be peasant dances by Roslyn Krokover, Janice Neaman and Rose Lichter, under the direction of Miss Krokover.

Members of the house committee of the College Club will keep open house tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. James M. Graham, Jr., chairman of the committee, will be assisted by Mrs. William H. McCune, Mrs. Nathaniel Spear, Mrs. Walter C. Leonard and Mrs. Frank R. Bailey. Miss Helen Kendall, New York decoration consultant, will speak on "Varying Rhythms of Successful Decoration."

College Club

Mrs. Joseph B. Drake, district chairman of motion pictures in the State Federation, will address the Housekeepers' Club tomorrow afternoon in the Congress clubhouse. A roundtable discussion on "Magazines," "Health Activities of the Dairy Council in the Schools" and "The Crisis in India" will be conducted by Mrs. Emma Crosby, Mrs. J. C. Heckman and Mrs. Charles Morris Johnston. The club plans a card party for October 23 at the Oppenheim-Collins auditorium.

BLACK AND RED REGARDED AS MOST IMPORTANT COMBINATION

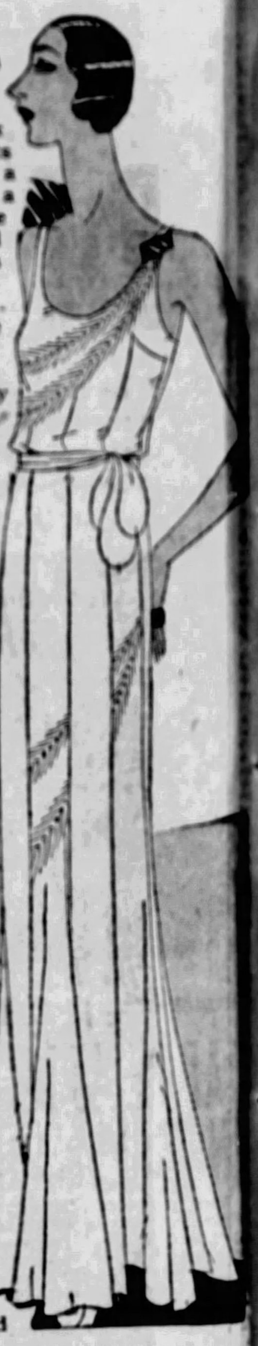
Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.



PARIS, Oct. 8.—It isn't only at the Casino that red and black is a popular color combination. It is equally at home in the sartorial world. To the smart woman a dress of black accented with red is something that she accepts and wears whenever she feels that she needs a dash of color. To the more timid woman a dress of black with red is an adventure to be approached with caution and accepted with misgivings. This should not be so. The only reservation necessary is that the combination be tasteful. Otherwise the result can be frightfully blatant and cheap, no matter how expensive the frock may be. But if you have taste and realize that a dash of color should not become a splash of color, we advise you to add a black dress with a dash of red to your wardrobe. You will find it a sartorial tonic.

TO SHOW you how smart and effective a black and red frock may be, we are sending you a sketch of a model done in the best Lanvin manner and typical of this house. The material is heavy black crepe and the model is long skirted. The red note is introduced by a deep bertha of red crepe de Chine worked in lattice-like strips that completely covers the front of the bodice but stops just over the shoulders. The same idea is used for the flaring sleeve flounces which are attached at the elbow. The skirt is laid in vertical pleats stitched part way down and then released to form flaring godets. This type of skirt is seen throughout the collection.

WE WALK in white these nights in dresses that add a soupcon of sparkle to their charms and so manage to successfully compete with the twinkling stars that light the sable velvet pall of night. Cold print cannot unfortunately show to any advantage the sparkling embroidery of the Lucile Paray model sketched here. It is of soft white crepe romain with a bloused bodice and a paneled godet skirt. The dress is beautifully trimmed with double sprays of strass and silver beads.

CARDS PUT NEW LIFE IN WORLD SERIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Regardless of the outcome, the sensational comeback of the Cardinals behind Bill Hallahan and Jess Haines after a double defeat at the start and their success in turning what had threatened to be a rout into one of the hardest fought World Series in history, has been a saving influence for the annual title series itself and for baseball in general. It has proved just the tonic needed to put new life in a diamond fixture that was becoming decidedly weak.

Bill Hallahan

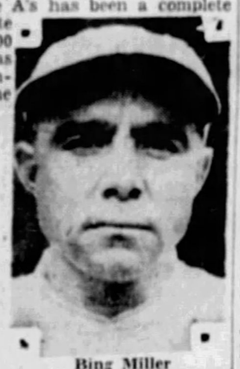
The loss of four games in succession by the National League in 1927, followed by four more in a row in 1928 and four out of five in 1929 put the big series on the verge of a decline as being too one-sided to be attractive or interesting, and if the American Leaguers had cleaned up again this year in four or five games, as they appeared to be on the point of doing after the second contest, the so-called derby would have dropped in public opinion almost to the level of a mere exhibition series. The general trend of sentiment was reflected in the facetious query of an American League wag, who asked after the Cards had dropped the first two games:

"When does the American League start drafting from the National?"

SO IT IS not hard to guess what would have been the fate of the big fall show if it had ended again this year in something akin to a clean sweep for the junior circuit. The public was beginning to get the impression that the older league did not class with the younger, one more rout would have made it a conviction, and it would have been a mighty hard matter to get fandom steamed up over the post-season affair again for a long time to come.

But the come-back of the Redbirds in the third and fourth games had the effect of changing all that, and whether or not they are beaten in the end, they have succeeded in making the 1930 series one of the greatest title fights of all time, and offering the hope that in the future the annual meeting for baldom's highest honors will be a tussle between the champion clubs of evenly-matched leagues instead of merely a good workout for the American.

ONE OF THE disappointments in the series from the viewpoint of Athletic rooters is Bing Miller. Like Jim Bottomley, a total loss on the St. Louis side, the rightfielder of the A's has been a complete bust as an offensive force for the White Elephants. Bing was one of Mack's .300 hitters during the regular season, and was rated as being almost as dangerous as Simmons, Cochrane or Foxx in a pinch, but the Cardinal flingers stopped him cold.



Bing Miller

MILLER'S RECORD WAS within a few points of being as bad as Bottomley's for the first five games, for while the St. Louis first-sacker fanned eight times, knocked only two balls out of the infield and made only one hit in 20 times at bat for the sickly average of .050, Miller was right at his heels with one hit in 18 times up for the rather unimpressive mark of .056. Barring such exceptions as Gelbert, Simmons and Bishop, few of the hitters on either side have approached their normal averages against the strong pitching encountered in the series, but Bottomley and Miller have been the chief goats.

MACK'S DECISION AFTER the fifth game to complete the series with two pitchers, George Earnshaw and Bob Grove, the same pair that he had depended upon since the start, and the same pair that pitched the fourth and fifth events of the string, is hailed as an extraordinary proceeding in these days, yet it is not without a precedent.

Fifteen years ago, John McGraw sent the Giants through a whole series to a triumph over the A's while using only two flingers. Three of the Giants' victories in 1905 were pitched by Christy Mathewson and the other by Joe McGinnity. The latter hurled the only game lost by the Giants.

SPEAKING OF THE 1905 series, that still stands as one that produced the greatest title pitching of all time. The present series has surpassed all others of recent years, for remarkable hurling, but the show of 15 years ago continues to top the list.

Every one of the five games played in that series resulted in a shut-out. Mathewson blanked the A's three times, and McGinnity did the trick once, while the Giants were white-washed by Chief Bender in the only game they lost. In the three games pitched by Mathewson, only one Mackman got as far as third base.

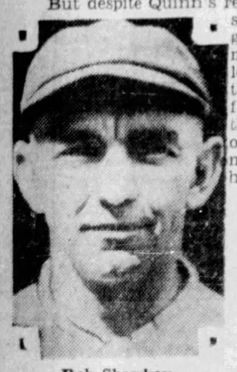
ONE OF THE questions asked along the World Series sidelines has to do with the probable new connections of Bob Shawkey, deposed manager of the New York Americans, when Joe McCarthy takes charge of the Yankees as manager for next year. There is said to be a chance that Shawkey will go over to the National League. He and Rogers Hornsby are close friends, and it is rumored that one of Hornsby's first moves in reconstructing his organization in Chicago may be to appoint Shawkey as one of the coaches for the Cubs.

THERE IS CERTAIN to be at least one coaching vacancy in the Cub camp, as Jimmy Burke, one-time Pirate infielder, who coached in Chicago under McCarthy for several years, is considered certain to go to the Yankees with Joe to fill a similar post on that club.

If Shawkey does not go to the Cubs, Hornsby's new coach in Burke's place probably will be Mike Gonzales, veteran Cuban catcher. In fact, there is said to be a possibility that Hornsby will take on both Shawkey and Gonzales, dropping Ray Schalk as well as Burke.

MEANWHILE, BOB QUINN, president of the Boston Red Sox, insists that reports of McCarthy's going to the Yankees as manager are premature. He says he has not heard a word from McCarthy since he laid before Joe a write-your-own-terms offer to pilot the Red Sox and declines to believe that McCarthy would hook up with another club before formally replying to the Boston proposal.

But despite Quinn's report that the former Cub chief has not yet said "No" to the Boston Club, it is a forgone conclusion that McCarthy will be manager of the Yankees next year. It is learned from reliable sources that everything was settled and closed at a recent conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yanks, and that Ruppert is waiting only until the World Series is over to announce officially the signing of McCarthy as his new skipper.



Bob Shawkey

EVEN THE PUBLICITY that the Yankees have been getting from a new angle during the World Series as a result of their proposed managerial change has not kept Babe Ruth out of the limelight. The National League lost an asset when it let Joe McCarthy get away, and the New York American League Club has come in for a lot of advertising through its success in landing him, but Ruth will continue to be the big man of the Yankee outfit in the public eye no matter who may be the manager. When Ruth walks into the ball park each day he attracts more attention than anybody else on the grounds, including the players of the A's and Cardinals.

The fact that Hack Wilson beat him out for home-run honors this year has not lessened the Bambino's popularity. He still is baseball's greatest drawing card. That's why he gets $80,000 a

DUKES DEPART FOR CHICAGO TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

Everything was going very sweet at Carnegie Tech's practice yesterday in the Tartan Bowl (which was secret, except for some half dozen or so old grads perched at vantage spots along the sidelines) until Maxie Hannum, the publicity gent, came rushing out on the field with a big sheet of paper.

Joe Morbito.

Maxie, completely out of breath after running from his office to the field, a distance of almost 150 feet, had the weights of the Georgia Tech line, which will face Carnegie's rampaging Tartans in the Stadium this Saturday. After the Techites found out the size of the forward wall they have to face Saturday, things weren't so hunky-dory. You wouldn't feel hunky-dory either if you suddenly discovered you were going up against about 1,400 pounds of beef and brawn in a few short hours.

JACKET LINE HEFTY

Examining Maxie's figgers, it was discovered that the Georgia Tech line will average 199 pounds from end to end. That is a lot of average. A 199-pound line is nothing to kid with, even if you are only foolin'. It means that win or lose, the ball club is in for a kicking around, for four or five 200-pound huskies can play the very dickens with anyone's attack.

The announcement of the size of the Yellow Jacket line did one thing, however, that was worth seeing. It increased the humidity of the battle for the fullback job being waged by Joe Morbito and John Karcis. This battle, by the way (and I'm giving away a state secret now) isn't as torrid as one might think. Both Joe and John are good fullbacks, but both fit into a different system, so you see, they have to wait their turn.

It all depends on the type of football Coach Waddell decides to start against the Jackets whether John or Joe will be in there for the opening gun. If Bob decides to go out and get 'em right off the bat, then (guess who) will be in there. If he decides to play along for a while, then (———) will get the call.

Returning to the matter of the weights of the Yellow Jackets, have a look at this:

The ends, Jones and Herron (not the famous Pat) weigh 185 and 183, respectively. Marsee and Spear go 215 and 212. They are tackles. The guards, Brooke and Ezell, tip the beam at 188 and 210. Ike Farmer, the center, hefts an even 200.

McArthur weighs 170. He plays quarterback. The halves, Capt. Dunlap and Hart weigh 185 and 170, and Cain, fullback is a 195-pounder.

Dukes Leave

Just to make sure that his gridders get plenty of rest and practice in the Windy City, Head Coach Elmer Layden of Duquesne is taking 22 of his Night Riders to Chicago tonight. The remainder of the Duke gridders and the special train of rooters will entrain at the Lake Erie Station at 9:30 tomorow night, the same time the advance forces go aboard tonight.

The Loyola University Ramblers have been pointing for Friday night's game with the Dukes, since they seek revenge for last year's 7-6 setback in the final minutes of play. Eddie Norton, who worked under Dan Lamont last season, is now head coach at the Chicago school, and the word from Chicago has it that Duquesne passes will be no more effective against the Ramblers than

A short time after crossing the date line, the Tahiti sent out the first S. O. peared to have been taken at noon.

LINEUP CHANGED

The fielding practice of the A's showed a change in the Philadelphia lineup. Manager Mack decided to lift George Haas, the onetime Pirate, and to use Jimmy Moore instead. Moore was sent to left field and Simmons shifted over to center.

Manager Street finally saw the advisability of a batting order change which he had been urged to make ever since the second game. Jim Bottomley, the batting weakling of the series, who made only one hit in 20 times at bat and struck out eight times in the first five games, was taken out of the cleanup notch and dropped to sixth place. Frankie Frisch was put in the important fourth position, and George Watkins was given Frisch's old place in the third hole.

Manager John McGraw, of the Giants, appeared on the field just before the game. He shook hands with Mack on the Philadelphia bench and then walked over to the St. Louis dugout to give the Cards a few last words of advice and encouragement. The Giant leader said he still felt confident of a National League victory in the series.

EARNSHAW MACK CHOICE

Mack finally selected George Earnshaw as his pitcher for today and the big righthander against whom the Cards had scored only one run in 16 innings pitched in the second and fifth games opposed Bill Hallahan, the Cards' choice.

Among the new arrivals to mingle with the baseball men on the side lines today were President William Veeck and Manager Rogers Hornsby, of the Chicago Cubs. They were absent from the first part of the series on account of the city championship game with the White Sox in Chicago. They admitted that while here they expected to lay the preliminary ropes for a couple of trades which they hope to make during the off-season.

A'S GET EARLY LEAD

The A's got away to a lead in the first inning after Earnshaw had retired the Cards in order, striking out two of them. Following Bishop's out, Dykes drew a pass and then Cochrane smashed a double past Bottomley and when aWtkins fumbled the ball in right field, Dykes scored and Cochrane reached third. Simmons struck out, but Foxx walked and Miller next hit a double to right center for his second hit of the series, scoring Cochrane and putting Foxx on third. Moore's fly to Douthit ended the inning.

The strain of pitching two games in three days appeared to be having no effect on Earnshaw and was strong as ever during the first two innings. Hallahan, on the other hand, was wild and unsteady and seemed to be pitching with an effort. He gave two more walks in the second to Bishop and Dykes, but there were two down at the time and he got out of the hole without damage when Cochrane fouled out to Adams.

E. PITTSBURGH PLAYS BURNS

GAMES TONIGHT.

CONFERENCE GAME.
East Pittsburgh at Burns A. A.

INDEPENDENT.
Majestic Radios at Johnston Prospects.

By TOM BIRKS.

The Burns Club of New Kensington will play its second home game of the season under the flood lights this evening at Parnassus High School field with Joe Wambaugh's East Pittsburgh Club providing the opposition.

Both teams finished on the short end of last Sunday's games. Both teams held practice sessions last evening, and when those sessions were over, Goldberg and Wambaugh had plenty to say to the boys on the payroll.

Burns can go into the lead in the Conference standing by winning this game tonight, but it is going to be a fighting aggregation that will meet Toby Uansa and Tom Parkinson for four periods.

Fans in the district are commenting upon the clean play in the Conference games to date. It might be interesting for the fans to know that a rule in the Conference fines a player $25 for being ejected from a game for fighting.

For the benefit of two players in the Conference who have written for the information, the rules state that a player competing with any club in a Conference game is the property of that club, and cannot play elsewhere unless released by his manager. After he is released, he is out of the Conference 10 days before he can play with another club.

That ought to be clear. The managers are fully protected from other managers trying to raise the ante. Should a player agree to play for two managers in the Conference, he is the property of the club for which he first plays.

Altrock, Tired of Series, Hopes It Ends Today

By NICK ALTROCK
Famous Baseball Humorist

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—We are back in Philadelphia and Connie Mack can polish off this World Series today if he jots down the right numbers on that magic scoreboard he carries. I have nothing to do until next Spring, but I am tired of watching this series and they can finish it up right now. And there are 50,000,000 other Frenchman like me.

The National League has already proved it is possible to win more than one game in a series and that ought to be enough for this year. Next season, if it wants to, Heydler's circuit can prove it can win a whole series, but that would take too long now.

Of course, the Cards now have their backs right up against the masonry and they have got to win today to keep this series going. I didn't see how Gabby Street can stick anyone in the box but Bill Hallahan. Today is really Flint Rhem's turn to pitch, but Gabby will probably give him the day off for good behavior or else let him go out and get himself kidnaped. Anyway, it is up to Hallahan to save the day.

Nick Altrock

Connie Mack can shove in Earnshaw or Grove, and either one of them is liable to stuff the Redbirds for a parlor ornament. Connie couldn't be sitting prettier if he bought his seat from a scalper. Even if he stuck in Grove to do the shooting and Lefty got winged off the rubber, Connie would still have Earnshaw up his cuff for the next day.

LITTLE REST TO BE HAD

Pitching has certainly made this World Series what it is today. Outside of Flint Rhem, not a flinger has been paged by the bench, and the rest of them, even the losing pitcher, has kept his hits down to a minimum that looks like a Scotchman's checking account.

Throwing Hallahan at the A's is a kind of a risk because the little feller needs plenty of rest between games. And you can't count that trip back from St. Louis to Philadelphia a day's rest, if Hallahan put in a trip like mine. I was on the special train they ran for the experts, and if you think experts spend their time absorbing the dope, you are wrong unless the dope is in liquid form.

I tried to get a little sleep in on the trip East, but I had a contract bridge game in the next berth, right up against my ears, and all through the night not a one of those guys sounded like a dummy.

TOUGH LIFE EXPERTING

I not only had the Milton C. Works of the Fourth Estate at my ear, but in the berth the other side of me, closest to my feet, another group of hard-working experts were tolling all night over some cubes. That goes for ice

WILSON VOTED MOST VALUABLE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Hack Wilson, centerfielder of the Chicago Cubs, has been voted the most valuable player to his club in the National League. The selection was made by a committee of baseball writers, representing the eight National League cities.

Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the second choice of the writers, and Bill Terry, of the New York Giants, the third.

The selection was made on the point system. Wilson received a total of 70 votes, Frisch 64, and Terry 58. Other National League players who were mentioned in the balloting and the number of votes each poled, were as follows:

Hermann, Brooklyn, 35; Klein, Philadelphia, 33; Cuyler, Chicago, 27; Wright, Brooklyn, 27; Lindstrom, New York, 17; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, 14; English, Chicago, 13; Lopez, Brooklyn, 12; Hartnett, Chicago, 10; Grimes, St. Louis, 9; Maranville, Boston, 9; Berger, Boston, 8; Jackson, New York, 7; Mancuso, St. Louis, 6; Malone, Chicago, 6; Douthit, St. Louis, 4; Traynor, Pittsburgh, 3; Gelbert, St. Louis, 2; Grantham, Pittsburgh, 2; Kremer, Pittsburgh, 2; Vance, Brooklyn, 1; Heilmann, Cincinnati, 1.

The members of the Writers' Association Committee asked to make selections, were:

Greensburg to Play Connellsville High

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—Greensburg High School's unbeaten eleven invades Connellsville Saturday for its first away-from-home game of the 1930 season. The Brown and White, despite the Cokers' defeat by German Township last Saturday, expects a hard game.

Norwin High plays at Turtle Creek, meeting Union, Saturday, while Jeannette High, another district team, seeks a win over Vandergrift at home.

M'CARTHY OUT, QUINN SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Joe McCarthy will never manage the Boston Red Sox, owner Bob Quinn announced last night.

In a pointed statement, Quinn said the former manager of the Chicago Cubs had declined what Quinn described as "the most generous proposition ever made to anyone ever connected with the game of baseball."

Quinn indicated that McCarthy had not permtorily refused to accept the Red Sox terms, but had temporized in order, Quinn put it, to shop around.

With none of the amenities that usually grace such announcements, Quinn declared that evidently McCarthy preferred a club that required little or no attention."

HALLAHAN WILL STOP A'S, STREET SAYS

CARD LINEUP TO REMAIN INTACT

By GABBY STREET,
Manager St. Louis Cardinals.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Well, we said we'd come back to Philadelphia, in spite of those two straight defeats at Shibe Park, and here we are undiscouraged by the fact that the Athletics are one game ahead of us and need only one more victory to clinch the title.

Gabby Street

We all feel that the Cardinals have shown themselves to be a great ball club and when we get through we're going to have the world championship back in the possession of the National League.

I have decided to pitch Bill Hallahan today in the sixth game of the series. He stopped the Athletics without any trouble in the first contest at St. Louis and he proved that he was one of the greatest lefthanders and one of the greatest pitchers in the business, and the world will have more words of praise for him when he has done his stuff tomorrow.

I realize that we have to win tomorrow and the Cardinals are ready to throw all of their strength into the battle.

PAT ON LINEUP

It might be appropriate for me at this time to say that we are going to stand pat on our ball club. It is true that some of our hitters, at the top of our batting order, have not been delivering with base hits, but we refuse to be thrown into a panic by that fact. Now you take Jim Bottomley, for instance. Jim is a great ball player, a winning ball player, and he's liable to come out of his slump any time. He had his slumps this year, a season in which he had numerous misfortunes, but he was always dangerous up there and his base hits always have counted.

Jim is going to stay there at first base and I'm looking for him to come through with hits now that we need them most. If he and Hafey can come close to their normal hitting stride, the remaining two games will be just a breeze for us.

We know that we have been up against excellent pitching.

Grove and Earnshaw have done great work for the American League team, but they also have been blessed by having the luck with them, and when you take into consideration the fact that Grove and Earnshaw have pitched great ball and have been lucky to boot, you have the explanation of the one-game lead Connie Mack has at the present time.

Of course, the big break of that game yesterday, most plainly seen, was that home run by Jimmy Foxx, but an important bit of luck made that possible.

BREAK HELPS A'S

In the eighth inning, Wilson threw out Haas stealing second and Umpire Geisel called Haas out, but then decided that Frisch had dropped the ball and reversed his decision. I was in the dugout, in no position to see what happened, but Frisch insists that he didn't drop the ball, so, to say the least, the Athletics got a break there. That would have been the second out and Foxx probably wouldn't have come up in the ninth.

Of course, he might have hit the homer in the tenth, and, as we didn't make any runs, it didn't take much to beat us in the way of an attack.

I want to say I'm proud of the way my ball club has played. Wilson and Mancuso have played rings around Mickey Cochrane, and if your inquire around you'll find that I'm not the only one singing that song.

Gelbert also has been an outstanding star, and my pitching certainly has been great.

We've been coming from behind and breaking records all season, and we intend to go right along and be the first team to win a seven-game World Series after losing the first two contests.

My ball club is good enough to do that, good enough to do anything.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 27.

Connie Mack.

It was in the summer of 1906 that it was my good fortune to acquire a young baseball player who was going to play a conspicuous part in the success of the Athletics team for many years afterward. One of my former players wrote me a letter that he had played a game with a summer team of collegians who had a player who seemed to him to have every chance for development into a star.

He strongly recommended that I investigate. I had an extra catcher named Jimmy Byrnes, a California boy, whom I could spare and I told him to go to Rockville, Conn., and watch the player recommended to me.

In those days, the best players on college teams generally went to summer resorts and played on teams there during the long vacation.

If I am not mistaken, the colleges no longer permit this on the ground that it smacks of professionalism.

Byrnes accepted the commission and on his return from Connecticut made a laconic report:

"Get that guy quick. He's going to become a star."

This Rockville club was managed by Billy Lush, a former major league outfielder, who also coached Yale with success for a number of years. Lush is a man of character and always ready to help a player.

MEETS EDDIE CLLINS

On the long-distance telephone one night, I had a talk with Lush, who agreed to bring his player to me at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York for a talk.

At the appointed time, I encountered Lush in the lobby accompanied by an undersized, frail, expectant-looking youth, togged out in the collegiate style of 1906. He wore a sunken-in soft hat with a light blue and white band, a flannel suit and low cuts.

So this was my first meeting with Edward Trowbridge Collins, who was to serve me with such distinction in later years.

To tell the blunt truth, I had many misgivings over his being able to solve any of my problems when I took my first look at him. When he arose I had a second look and saw that he was all legs. He was not tall by any means, but all of his length seemed to be disposed in legs.

When he started to talk, he began to impress me. He was modest about himself, but not at all timid, and spoke fluently and to the point about his ambitions.

I then saw in him a wholesouled, ambitious, bright-eyed youth enthusiastic, whose one goal was to make good in the major leagues. I quickly forgot about his lack of stature. I was eyeing him all the time and sized him up as being strong and muscular even if he did not bulk big.

CAPTAIN AT COLUMBIA

Eddie told me that he was a student of Columbia University and would receive his diploma in June of the next year. He added that he had been elected captain of the Columbia team for the spring of 1907. We quickly came to an agreement. I pointed out to Eddie that I wanted him to finish his college course and he agreed to join the Athletics after he received his diploma.

I thanked Lush for his interest, shook hands with both and departed.

Just before we were ready to leave on our last western trip that season, I was surprised when the skipling Collins came to Columbia Park and asked permission to take the last western trip.

I demurred and recalled the agreement, but I found that he was so anxious to make the trip that I didn't have the heart to refuse him. So he went West with us and played a few innings or batted in a pinch under the name of Sullivan.

It was most carefully concealed that he was Capt. Eddie Collins, of Columbia University.

Collins never was destined to exercise his captaincy and play for Columbia that next spring, but through no fault of his relations with the Athletics.

ILLNESS DELAYS EDDIE

It seemed that colleges were beginning to look askance at summer baseball in general and the Rockville (Conn.) team in particular, so Eddie didn't play baseball for his alma mater in 1907.

He continued his studies, however, and duly received his diploma in June. He joined us immediately. He didn't play enough that year to get into the official averages, but I remember one afternoon when I sent him to bat for Monte Cross against Walter Johnson and he tripled to the clubhouse.

In July of that year, I loaned him to Newark for a week and he came right back to us. Eddie was unable to join us at the start of 1908 because he had contracted typhoid fever and was not able to play until the season was well under way.

When he recuperated sufficiently to play, I tried him at several positions, including third, short, second and the outfield, but I didn't seem to find a place where he could fit.

Many of my friends frankly told me that Collins never would do when they saw him play a few games. Nevertheless, I never lost faith in him and told skeptics to wait. His illness had stayed his development and I knew that he was not strong at any time in 1908.

It was in 1909 that Collins was to win the reputation of being the greatest young infielder in the majors. On the training trip, I placed Eddie at second base on my second team and worked with him all the time in the South.

I didn't even go North with the first team, which was scheduled to meet the Phillies in the annual spring series in Philadelphia, but put the veterans in charge of Harry Davis.

Playing second base for the Yanigans, Collins at once convinced me that he was worthy to be my regular second baseman. I decided to have him replace Dan Murphy, whose fielding was not just what I wanted, although he was a marvelous hitter and base runner.

Still, Murphy meant so much to the team at bat that I had to place him. I then hit on the scheme of transferring Murphy to rightfield and playing Collins at second.

These two changes made our 1909 team and put us on the road to a real championship team. Collins became better all of the time, while Murphy amazed everybody with his rightfield play.

In a short time, Collins was admittedly the hardest hitting and most skillful fielding infielder in the fast set.

Collins was my playing mainstay until our team was broken up in 1914. He now is back with us as captain. While no longer taking part in the playing end, Eddie is proving just as valuable on our board of strategy as he was on the field in his best playing days.

MALONEY WINS OVER CARNERA

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp, is not a knockout menace when he is confronted with a nimble-footed and reasonably courageous foe who possesses some boxing ability.

Jim Maloney.

This is the impression some 15,000 Hub boxing fans had today after watching Primo meet his first American defeat last night at the hands of Jimmy Maloney, of Boston.

Carnera, with a 65-pound weight advantage and almost eight inches taller than Jimmy, could not even knock down Maloney, who has suffered knockouts at the hands of Jack Sharkey, George Godfrey, Leo Gates and Tom Heeney.

For all of Carnera's 23 American victories, 22 by knockouts, Primo found that Maloney wasn't the least bit awed when the opening gong sounded. Jimmy was unusually belligerent. He stood up against the massive Italian as if he felt sure of winning.

In fact, after getting over the first round, Jimmy seemed to get additional confidence and fought back savagely. He maneuvered himself inside of Carnera's leads with greater frequency, feinted the big fellow beautifully and made Primo miss badly.

The defeat was disappointing to Carnera's retinue, for Bill Duffy, et al, had closed with the Garden to have Primo meet Young Stribling in Miami. Whether Primo's failure to bring down his Boston rival will cause any change in these plans is not known.

The fight was not the financial success anticipated. Receipts were $70,000. Carnera's slice was $40,000 and Maloney's cut $15,000.

Carnera was a 5-to-2 favorite. Carnera proved that he could take it on the chin in his mixup, just as he did against George Godfrey in Philadelphia, when he was awarded the decision on a foul.

STANFORD PARTY LEAVES

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Thirty-three Stanford football men left here yesterday for Minneapolis, where they will play the Minnesota team Saturday. Coach Pop Warner made a last-minute change in the list of men making the trip, substituting Tom Lamport for Quido Vaccaro, halfback, who suffered a shoulder injury.

COUNTY LINKS TO OPEN

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

It has come at last—the announcement county golfers have been waiting to hear for many a long day. On Saturday, October 18, or a week from next Saturday, the South County Park golf links will be officially opened with proper ceremony—an automobile parade to the park and an inspection of same preceding the links opening.

The County Commissioners, Joseph Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles McGovern, will be on hand—with hot dogs at the festive table—to see that the new golf course, one of the finest public links in the world, gets off on the right foot. Director of County Parks Paul B. Ellis, who has worked so hard to make the county golf courses all that they should be made, and City Office Manager of County Parks John Jay Burke also will be on hand.

Stanley Hern, of the St. Mungo firm, won the Collingwood Day tournament of the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, staged at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday. He had a gross 85. Dr. H. H. Sargent, chairman of the Pittsburgh chapter golf committee, won second honors with a 90, followed by W. H. Cuppyell, 92; Dr. Guy D. Engle, 94, and M. C. Adams, 96.

MAY VACATE ORDER

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—A motion to vacate the order that Jacob Ruppert, baseball magnate and proprietor of the Yankees, Edward Barrow, field manager, and Ed Mulligan, secretary and all other members of these clubs who faced indictment by Chief Judge Udo Wolfert yesterday, be ordered stricken from the record will be argued September 15 by Judge William V. Bruckner.

RAZOR NEWS SHAKES COUNTRY

Startling New Inventions Excite the Nation

GEM MICROMATIC BLADES BASED ON VITAL NEW PATENTS

Different Structure and Surgical Steel Add to Keenness and Life

The new Gem Micromatic Blade is different. It looks different. And there's an amazing difference in the shaves it gives. Men never believed they could get such marvelous comfort. Men never hoped they could start their day with such pleasing shaves.

A Shaving Marvel

So keen is the new Gem Micromatic Blade that it fairly floats down the face. It hardly seems to touch the skin—yet every whisker is completely smoothed off.

Surgical Steel—A Great Discovery

Surgical steel makes this superkeen edge possible. And surgical steel adds substantially to the number of shaves you get from each blade.

Patents Granted

The important features of the new Gem Micromatic Razor and Blade have been recognized by the government which has granted the manufacturer Patents No. 1,739,280 and No. 1,773,614

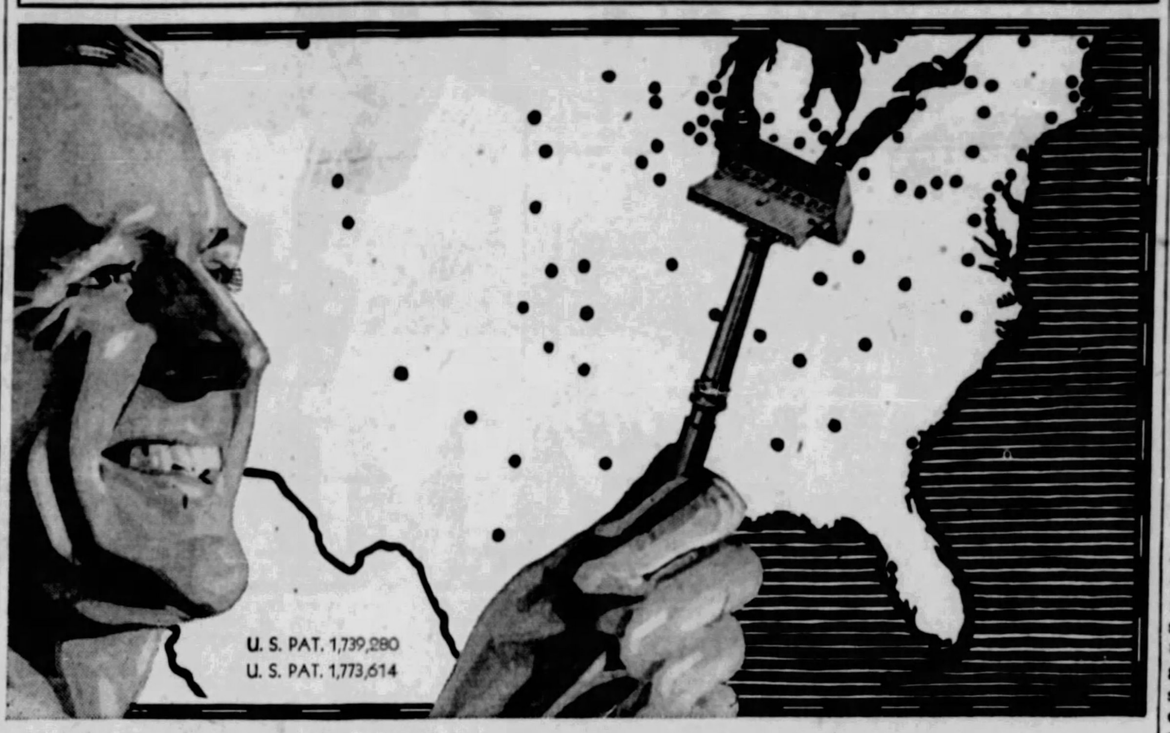
ONE-PIECE CONSTRUCTION A BOON

Everyone who has tried to assemble a razor of many parts, will appreciate the absolute simplicity of the new Gem Micromatic. It is all one piece. There is nothing to take apart. You do not have to play hide and seek under the wash basin for sections of your razor that have rolled away—because there are no sections to roll.

This is especially welcome when you clean or load your razor.

A BATHROOM TRAGEDY

GEM MICROMATIC RAZOR AND BLADES REVOLUTIONIZE SHAVING HABITS



"Marvelous" said 95% of Men as 102 Cities Make Razor Test

MEN ACCLAIM MICROMATIC RAZOR

The entire country has been amazed by the news of an entirely different new safety razor. Men who have shaved with this new Gem Micromatic Razor acclaim it as the one real razor advance in twenty years.

Automatic Operation

The Gem Micromatic opens and closes automatically when the handle is twisted. Automatically the blade moves into the correct shaving position and is locked there.

Nothing to Take Apart

Made of one piece, it is the easiest razor to load, to clean, to use. You do not have to "assemble" it when you use it. Its shaving qualities are so superior to any other razor that we advise our readers to buy the new Gem Micromatic today.

A disinterested group in each of 102 important markets covering the entire country gave the new Gem Micromatic Razor the most trying tests to which a razor was ever subjected.

7,392 men received razors and blades. No name or price was indicated. No mark of identification was on either razor or blades. The men were asked to shave themselves critically and tell their experiences.

They were enthusiastic

6,991 men, or 95%, made reports enthusiastic with praise. Most of them preferred it to any razor they had ever used. And if 95% like anything, it must be a radical improvement. These are the same razors and blades now being marketed in this city. In the next column are a few typical comments.

NEW GEM RAZOR Analyzed

RAZOR

1. Radically different frame. A precision micromatic instrument for shaving. Gold plated.

2. Invisible control locks blade automatically in correct shaving position. Held rigidly at five points. No vibration.

3. Patented substantial Corinthian handle—tapered to fit your hand as though it grew there—perfect balance, comfortable grip.

4. New principle of shaving—you place razor-head flat against cheek—assures the right angle and stroke—shaves under nose easily.

5. Easy-to-clean, easy-to-load, one-piece razor. Nothing to take apart—no sections to clutter the wash basin.

6. Simple to operate. Twist handle and the razor opens. Twist it again and razor closes.

BLADE

7. Patented blade construction and drastic manufacturing changes insure keener shaving edge and micromatic uniformity.

8. Newly developed surgical steel—tougher, sturdier—each blade gives many extra shaves—resulting in lowest cost per shave.

9. New blade fits all Gem Razors—but to get full benefit use new blade in new razor.

RISK-PROOF GUARANTEE

10. New Gem Micromatic Razor and Blades must give you vastly better shaves—or your entire purchase price will be refunded.

RUTH EXPECTS FREE-HITTING SIXTH GAME

BABE THINKS HURLERS MAY BREAK DOWN

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Well perhaps we'll be going home tonight. It all depends on Bill Hallahan. The little left-hander who started the Cards to victory two days ago will have to carry the burden again this afternoon, I figure. I don't see how Gabby Street can start anyone else. Coming over on the train from St. Louis there was some talk among the boys that he might shoot through with either Haines or Sylvester Johnson today and have Hallahan for tomorrow, but that's foolish. A mistake today and there won't be any tomorrow.

MUST GIVE BEST

When a team is up against it like the Cardinals are, there's no time for st. tegy. You've got to shoot the best you have and let the other game take care of themselves. So far as that's concerned, I don't see how Connie can gamble much either. About the only advantage Connie has is that he needs only one game to win, while the Cardinals need two. So far as pitchers are concerned, I think the Cards have the edge. They have both Hallahan and Haines ready. Both men have pitched great games in this series, both of them will go into the game with the full confidence of their teammates, and both have had ample rest. Connie has only two pitchers who have shown anything at all—Grove and Earnshaw. Both of them have been overworked, but I figure Connie has got to depend on them just the same.

I don't know who he will start today, but it will be either Grove or Earnshaw, and you can bet on that. Personally, I would not be surprised to see him start Earnshaw. George is a big strong fellow who can stand a lot of work. And I figure it would be good baseball to start George today and then use Bob for relief work, if necessary.

However, that's Connie's problem, and I'll say one thing for him, he doesn't need any advice from me or anyone else. He knows how to run his club and he's a cinch to make the right move.

LAUDS PITCHING

Here's another hunch I have. I've got just a sneaking feeling that we're apt to see some real hitting out there this afternoon. Thus far in the series the games have been just one pitchers' battle after another—and with hitters of the caliber of these two clubs, it doesn't stand to reason that the series will be played without at least one free hitting contest. Neither the A's nor the Cards, you know, have been hitting up to form. The Cards are hitting only a little more than .200 for the series, and the A's are hitting even less than that. Yet here are two clubs that pounded that ball plenty during the season.

All of which is a fine tribute to the pitching during the series—but just the same I've got a hunch that we'll see some hitting today.

I still think the A's will win, and I wouldn't be surprised to see them end it this afternoon. Granting that Hallahan is a great pitcher (and he has proved it plenty), I doubt very much if he can be as effective in his second start as in his first. He won't have those white shirts in the bleachers to pitch out of this afternoon.

However, we'll have to wait and see. Anyhow, it won't be long.

The dirt is out on Harry Klaas. The swell fistic announcer who has escaped from Hickey Park, Millvale, to work in evening clothes at Motor Square Garden is none other than the former first tenor of the old Gazette Times Quartet . . . . Bill Lysaught sang second tenor, Don Brockett bass and Billy Kegg baritone on this famous outfit . . . . Lysaught and Klaas renewed their friendship as Klaas made his Garden debut in soup and fish last Monday night . . . . Did you hear the one about Burleigh Grimes planning to sue the Cardinals for non-support because they made only one run behind him in two full games?

The draw decision in the Tony Herrera-Joe Glick fight at the Garden Monday night saved a lot of dough for the smart talent, which was betting 10 to 4 on Tony to win . . . It is unlikely that the pair will meet again, because Glick is getting too heavy. He had seven pounds on Tony here . . . It is a good bet that the latter would be returned the victor in a return bout, judging from the manner in which he finished after his poor start on Monday . . . Franklin Hood, the big fullback, who finally is coming into his own at Pitt, has averaged five yards per plunge in his first two games this season. He made 100 yards in 22 attempts against West Virginia and 80 in 14 tries against Waynesburg.

Motor Square Garden will observe Columbus Day in a fitting manner next Monday night by sending Emmett Rocco, the Ellwood City Italian, against Tom Heeney in the main bout . . . The Garden, by the way, played to almost a $5,000 gate with its opening show last Monday, which is just about $1,500 better than last year, when it opened with the Perlick twins in a double windup billing . . . The real name of Charley Gelbert, the kid shortstop star of the Cardinals in the World Series, is Magnus Ott Gelbert . . . He became Charley by his own decree when his teammates in high school at Ambler, Pa., began to call him Maggie.

Mike Korch, of Rankin, is the most likely looking quarterback at Syracuse University this fall, after having starred on the freshman eleven there last year . . . Needless to say, he is the kid brother of Joe Korch, former boxer, now a big garage man in Rankin and a front row patron at all of the mitt shows.—HARRY KECK.

cubes as well as ivory ones. When we finally got to Philadelphia, I looked like I had been to a four-alarm fire. In fact, I looked like I had been rescued from the top story after eight tons of smoke had got in my eyes. That is why I am dictating this essay from bed and the nurse is taking it down in shorthand on the back of the prescription blanks.

So all I hope is that Bill Hallahan got more rest than I did coming East. If he gets knocked out of the box today you will know that he drew a compartment between a flock of bridge nuts and some sharpshooters at craps. I don't wish the kid any hard luck, but they can wind it up today and it will be satisfactory to me. Exerting this series is altogether too much like being official timekeeper of the Thirty Years' War.

Breach of Promise Suit Against Ace Dropped

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 8.—(INS.)—A telegram indicating a settlement of the $160,000 breach of promise suit brought by Rhea W. Hill against Ace Hudkins, middleweight boxer, has been received by the Evening Herald from a woman purporting to be the plaintiff. The text of the telegram read:

"Miss Rhea Hill has withdrawn all charges against Ace Hudkins.

"RHEA W. HILL."

At the office of S. S. Hahn, attorney for Hudkins, it was admitted that a similar telegram had been received, indicating Miss Hill was dropping all charges. Hahn declared, however, that he had not been apprised of any move to settle the suit out of court and that as late as last Sunday Miss Hill was in Los Angeles endeavoring to serve papers in the suit on Hudkins.

Orange AMERICAN GAS is to AMOCO-GAS

AUTOMOBILE manufacturers recognize that there is more than one market for motor cars. Some people want a large car--some are content with a more compact, less expensive model.

Leading makers cater to both markets. And The American Oil Company follows the same policy. In the field of regular-priced gasolines, there is Orange American Gas--a wonderful value, a truly great regular gasoline. And in the premium motor fuel field, there's Amoco-Gas, first to enter the field and first in performance and economy today as always!

But remember this! While Amoco-Gas costs more than regular gas at the pump--it's really far cheaper by the mile. And low cost per mile is what counts!

MACK PREDICTS FINISH OF SERIES TODAY

VETERAN PILOT OF A'S SURE OF VICTORY

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager of the Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Just one game behind our schedule. We could not bring the world championship back with us from St. Louis, but we are so near it that the ends of the big banner are fluttering in our faces.

Every man on the Athletic team confidently expects to win at Shibe Park today and bring the series to a close. The advantage is decidedly in our favor. We are one game on top of the Cardinals, and all remaining play will be in Philadelphia, and the Missourians have yet to beat us at our own park.

After winning the first two games at home, we figured that we would win two straight or at least two out of three in St. Louis and end the games there.

SETBACKS IN ST. LOUIS

However, we were mistaken. The fighting Cardinals came back and steered ome wonderful pitching on the part of Hallahan and Haines, they gave us a setback in their own park by winning two straight to deadlock the series.

Even those unexpected events did not destroy our confidence one iota, for in the final game in St. Louis, which resulted in one of the greatest pitching duels ever seen in a World Series, Jimmy Foxx hit a home run to put us in front again by the margin of a game.

In my opinion this was the key game. To win it means that the World Series is going to be ours, especially when it is pointed out that all of the battling to come will be in Philadelphia.

Don't worry about tickets for that mythical seventh game. There will be no seventh game. The series will end today around 3:30 in the afternoon.

While our boys so far have not hit up to expectations, every day I'm looking for them to bring their bats in action and I predict they will come through today with some real hitting.

So far we have not had one of our famous big innings so common with us in the pennant races of 1929 and 1930 and the World Series of last year. The big inning is coming yet.

Foxx's spectacular home run in the ninth inning on Monday may be a hint of heavy hitting yet to come. Since the opening of the series I have been looking for Jimmy to blast one out of the park as he did so frequently in the pennant season and he finally delivered at a time that spelled victory for us.

EXPECTED LONG HIT

That pitching duel Monday seemed to me to be a battle that would be decided by one smashing hit and sure enough Foxx connected with one of the three curves that Grimes threw during the afternoon and plastered the ball high in the bleachers to score Cochrane ahead and win for us under the most dramatic circumstances.

So we won with one punch and it proves the danger that lurks in our batting order that even when the general hitting is thin that we have at least one man who at some time during the game is going to come through with a winning blow.

In my opinion there has been only one World Series before this year's where the pitching was as air-tight. In 1905 the Giants beat the Athletics four games out of five and every contest resulted in a shut-out.

Mathewson blanked us three times and McGinnity one. Then Chief Bender shut out the Giants to give us our only triumph. Both Matty and Joe have passed to the Great Beyond. I wish they could have lived to see this series. This 1905 series, however, was before the era of the so-called lively ball.

I think that the Athletics and Cardinals players will take the stand just now and testify that they have not found anything so lively about the ball in play in this series. Hitting has been light in every one of the five games played. On Sunday Grove lost one of the toughest games possible for a pitcher to lose. There is no doubt that if he had proper support he would have shut out Haines instead of having three runs chalked against him.

He was simply unhittable when I sent him back the very next day to relieve Earnshaw after the seventh inning.

WILLING WORKER

Few pitchers would be willing or able to take the tough spots that this great lefthander has done all season. Not only does he pitch his own game but he is always ready to finish other battles and save them.

It was a ticklish moment when I decided to take out Earnshaw, who has been pitching shut-out ball. No manager wants to do this. I was forced to take this action in the eighth inning, when I had runners on third and first, one out and Earnshaw coming up. I needed runs to win and I could not resist the temptation to use a pinch hitter and I have a remarkable one in young Jimmy Moore, who has made good twice for me in this series in an emergency roll.

As it turned out Grimes quieted the storm without us scoring, but it did swing the batting order around and made it possible for Cochrane and Foxx to bat in the ninth, and Mickey's pass and Foxx's homer did the trick.

Both in Philadelphia and St. Louis Earnshaw has been an outstanding performer, and in 16 innings he has held the National Leaguers to one run. You can't beat that kind of pitching. In St. Louis Monday he did not let a man reach third in seven innings, and oered no real scoring chances.

Grove and Earnshaw between them have won three games and have pitched like machines every time they have been used.

At this time I am still undecided on who will be our pitcher today. I am not nearly as worried about pitching selections as I was on Saturday in St. Louis. Things have cleared immensely in the last 24 hours. While we are almost certain of seeing Hallahan again on Wednesday, I feel sure that our boys will not find him as troublesome as he was in St. Louis, and I am looking for a couple of our players, who up to thi stime have not been hitting well, to make Hallahan feel the effects of their bats.

We are just going to win this game and that's all there is to it.

Big Party Expected For Nebraska Trip

Four Pullmans will be attached to the "Pitt Booster's Club Special" which leaves here Thursday night, October 30, bound for Lincoln, Neb., where on Saturday, November 1, the Panther football team opposes the strong Nebraska eleven.

More than 100 grid fans in all are expected to join this four-day excursion trip, with stop overs in Chicago at the Stevens Hotel and at Lincoln, at the Cornhusker Hotel. C. W. Isles, 447 S. Pacific avenue, who may be reached at Montrose 1128, is in charge of the trip.

Gridder Freed On Promise to Star in Game

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Judge Samuel R. Harrison, 77-year-old police magistrate, is a rabid Northwestern University football fan, which explains a lot of things that happened in his court today.

"Left halfback on a slice off tackle?" he questioned of Sidney Burnstein, star back of the Northwestern team, to see if he knew his signals.

"Six—twenty-three—eighteen—forty-one," barked Burnstein.

"Check," said the judge. "Now, right halfback, on an end run."

"Twenty-two — forty-six—eighty-two — ninteen," called Burnstein.

"You may go now," said the court, "but remember I'll be observing you in that game against Ohio State Saturday, so watch your step," whereupon Burnstein walked out of court without paying a fine for speeding, for which he was corralled by a policeman last week.

GARDEN BOOKS M'CAFFREY AGAIN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Tom McCaffrey, the Youngstown middleweight slammer, who knocked out Al Becker, of Sheraden, in the second round of their bout at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, will be back on the Garden card next Monday, it was announced today by Matchmaker Jules Beck, who has signed him to oppose Snowflakes Wright, Negro, in the second bout. McCaffrey is managed by Al Zill, who also handles Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City heavyweight, who boxes Tom Heeney, the Australian veteran, in the 10-round main bout.

With the exception of an opponent for the popular Patsy Pirrone, of Canton, in the eight-round semi-final, Beck has his card complete, for he has paired Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight, with Len Johnson, Buck McTiernan's Swede stablemate, in the six-round opener.

WEIGHT SNAGS MATCH

A weight hitch is holding up the closing of the Buck McTiernan-Bucky Lawless match for the Garden, one week from next Monday. McTiernan wants the bout at 154 pounds and Lawless is holding out for 152.

The McKeesport program for tomorrow night has been rounded out with the signing of Gus Britner, of Charleroi, a protege of Eddie Pinchot, former featherweight star, to box Joe Bazone, of McKeesport, in the second bout and Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, to oppose Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, in the first bout. In the two 10-rounders, Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, boxes Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, and Johnny Warner, also of Clairton, takes on Dan Billick, of Duquesne. Gornick, by the way, fought a fine battle against Bobby Barnes after being almost out in the second round at Motor Square Garden last Monday night.

SLUGGERS AT MOOSE

A hard-hitting tussle is on tap for the fans in the main bout of the double windup card at the Moose Temple Friday night, between Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Larry Madge, of Cleveland, and a knockout finish would not be surprising. Jimmy Reed, of Erie, and Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, should put up an interesting battle in the other 10-rounder. In the two sixes, Tiger Joe Clark, of the South Side, boxes Muscle Scholles, of the North Side, and Don Frazier, of Herron Hill, engages Elmer Waner, of the North Side.

Between Rounds

Jackie Rodgers, local Negro featherweight ace, who operated on for an injured eye in the Allegheny General Hospital a few days ago and will be up and about and ready for his next bout shortly.

Put down as one of the upsets of the year the victory of Mike Dundee over Benny Bass, the junior lightweight champion, in their bout at Darrowood, Monday night. Other surprises were the defeat of Babe Hunt by Jack Renault at Philadelphia, Georgie Manley's victory over Dusty Rhodes at Toledo, Ohio, and the knockout of Abe Mendelsohn by Dominick Bernardone, both in one-ring Jim Maloney's triumph over Primo Carnera at Boston last night.

Babe Hunt bosses Franzie Simms at Cleveland, October 14, and Jack Gagnon in Boston two weeks later.

Bernard Cavalcante, kid brother of Manny and Stanley Cavalcante, former big league pitchers, is a welterweight boxer in New York.

K. O. Christner and Young Stribling meet at Newark, N. J., October 20.

Two Track Marks Equaled at Laurel

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Track records hung in balance as W. R. Coe's "Black Majesty" and the Nevada Stork Farm's Tarpaulin sped over the Laurel oval to win the twin feature event at the opening of the Maryland State Fair race meeting yesterday.

Equaling the six-furlongs track record of 1:11 2-5, Black Majesty accounted for the Capital handicap and $5,325, while Tarpaulin covered the 5½ furlongs in 1:05 4-5 to equal a 16-year-old track record and win the Rock Creek purse for 2-year-olds.

Navy and Colgate Badly Handicapped

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—With their first major football games only a few days away, Navy and Colgate suffered casualties yesterday that may seriously handicap them Saturday when they take the field against Notre Dame and Lafayette, respectively.

In the course of a two-hour scrimmage at Annapolis, Lou Kirn, one of Navy's most consistent backs, suffered a wrenched knee that forced him to the sidelines and may keep him out of the line-up against Notre Dame at South Bend.

At Hamilton, Colgate's triple-threat back and captain, Leslie Hart, was confined to the infirmary with a severe cold and may not get into the game with Lafayette.

Defending Champion Reaches Semi-Finals

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Alphonso Smith, of the University of Virginia, defending champion in the Middle Atlantic intercollegiate tennis tournament, won his way into the semi-finals yesterday by defeating Robert St. Clair, of Greenbrier Military School, in the second round, 6-1, 6-1.

OLD GOLD VOTED BEST by World's keenest TASTE TEST!

Nation's leading Coffee Tasters pick OLD GOLD 2 to 1 in "Ripley Test" of Four Leading Brands

By Robert Ripley, Himself

"Believe it or not . . . these men together earn over $250,000 yearly . . . on their sense of taste!

"They are the world's finest judges of flavor. Big coffee importers and packers risk millions in coffee purchases on their taste-judgment.

"They can detect the minutest difference in flavor or aroma. They know to a T what the American public will like.

"So when I put the four leading cigarette brands up to them, I staged the toughest test a cigarette ever faced.

"They went at it seriously. Sampled each cigarette with names concealed. Once, twice, three times. Rated them on flavor, mellowness, body, aroma, general appeal.

"I was impressed when OLD GOLD won. I was stunned when I looked at the final score.

"Believe it or not, the keenest judges of taste the whole world knows picked OLD GOLD two to one over its nearest rival!"

JACKETS' BACKFIELD STAR

EARLE DUNLAP

Dunlap is the captain of the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, who invade Pittsburgh to play Carnegie Tech at the Stadium next Saturday. A former quarterback, he has been shifted to halfback, where he scored three touchdowns in Georgia's 45-0 victory over South Carolina last Saturday. The Yellow Jacket leader is the only senior in the backfield.

Forbes

What America Owes George Westinghouse

—By B. C. FORBES—

B. C. Forbes

NOT ONE of the speakers at this week's dedication in Pittsburgh of a monument to George Westinghouse brought out adequately the biggest thing of all he did for the human race.

It was George Westinghouse who made possible, through his developing of alternating current, the transmission of great quantities of electric power over long distances and its distribution in retail quantities.

As a result twenty millions of our homes and nearly a million of our farms today enjoy the unique benefits of electricity at very low cost.

Also, George Westinghouse's alternating current made possible both the centralization and the decentralization of industries.

HIS OWN COMPANIES give employment to some 60,000 employes, but that number is infinitesimal contrasted with the millions of pay envelopes that have been filled for many years through the widespread dissemination of electric current.

Moreover, the products of Westinghouse's brain have made it possible for us all to live better at lower costs.

THE MONUMENT itself is peculiarly fitting—and, as was Westinghouse himself,—peculiarly American. A lifesize youth stands beholding George Westinghouse at work surrounded with artistically executed symbols of his main inventions.

George Westinghouse and his career appeal grippingly to the imagination of the youth of America. Stopping swiftly-moving trains by air, what romance there was in that. Westinghouse's railroad switching and signaling system embodied veritable magic. So with others of his brain children.

ABOVE AND beyond that, George Westinghouse, not only early but also late in life, had to tread the pathway of disappointment, hardship, obstacles innumerable. But through it all this genius, who cared little for money, proved himself a full-statured man. Neither his faith nor his vision was dimmed by financial reverses. His quest for new knowledge, new inventions, new achievements never slackened.

WESTINGHOUSE HAD the good fortune of being loved by his own associates and his own workers. It was they, over 50,000 of them, who inspired and financed the new monument. What a gathering of all ranks of human beings attended the impressive unveiling in a sylvan spot of exquisite beauty.

THE INDOMITABLE spirit of George Westinghouse still animates the vast enterprises he created. When I talked with Andrew W. Robertson, present-day head of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing, did he indulge in croaking and crepe-hanging over these current economic conditions which are causing so many men—too many—to weep on every available shoulder? No. Here is what Mr. Robertson said to me:

"The business depression, or so-called hard times, which the whole world has been experiencing for the past 11 months, is by no means an unmixed evil.

"It is, of course, self-evident that no one enjoys being out of work or having the dividends on his stock reduced, and Americans as a class do not want to forego the purchase of what they want when they want it. In other words, we do not like to economize and we like to think our extravagance, when compared with the rest of the world, is one of the reasons for our great prosperity and no doubt the high standard of living in America is responsible for a large percentage of our prosperity.

"However, it is inevitable that in times of prosperity individuals have a tendency to let down and get mentally and physically soft and the same is true of industries. Times of depression force us to use our brains and wits to meet the issues that face us. Industries are aroused by the spur of necessity to improve their products, give their customers more for a lower price, and generally increase the value of the world's goods; all of which results in a permanent improvement of standards from which the world profits for many years to come.

"One shrinks from considing what an extravagant, wasteful and inefficient world ours would be if we had a long period of uninterrupted boom times. Hard times bring us down to earth. In the end the world will profit greatly from the improved standards necessity is helping us to establish, and meanwhile we are experiencing some growing pains which are not pleasant. We must meet them as best we can, confident that a brighter future is around the corner."

Reread these closing words: "A brighter future is around the corner." It is.

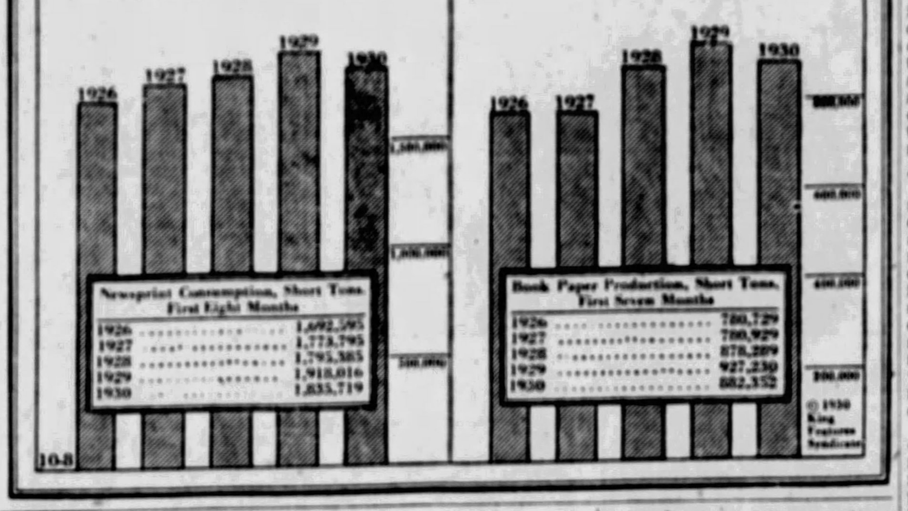
ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Printing Paper Industry About Normal

Chart shows the consumption of newsprint paper by 445 leading publishers in the first eight months of 1930 and the same periods of the past four years; and the production of book paper by the entire industry during the first seven months of 1930 and the corresponding periods of 1929, 1928, 1927 and 1926. Newsprint Source: Amer. Newspaper Publishers' Asn. Book Paper Source: U. S. Department of Commerce.



Newsprint Consumption

The quantity of newsprint paper consumed by publishers, principally newspaper organizations, during the first eight months of this year was 4.3% under the corresponding period of 1929, but 2.2% over 1928, 3.5% over 1927 and 8.5% over 1926. Thus, with the exception of 1929, 1930 is the largest newsprint consuming year in history.

Book Paper Production

Book paper is used principally in the manufacturing of books, high-grade magazines and advertising booklets and folders. In the first seven months of 1930, production, which closely follows demand, was 4.8% lower than in 1929, but higher than any other year. It was 4.8% more than the four-year average from 1926 through 1929.

McKeesport Tin Plate Profit Gains

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NET PROFITS OF THE McKeesport Tin Plate Company for the present year are expected to show a gain over 1929. This organization will be one of the few Pittsburgh Companies to report a continued increase in earnings during the year.

Last year net after all charges was $2,402,200 which was equivalent to $8.01 a share on 300,000 shares of capital stock. It compared with $1,587,919 or $5.29 a share reported for 1928 on the basis of the present capitalization.

A substantial gain was recorded in the first half of 1930 with net profit of $1,513,850 or $5.05 a share compared with $1,084,562 or $3.61 a share in the corresponding period of the previous year. Profit for the six months was nearly as large as in the full year of 1928.

In Dull Season

PRODUCTION WAS AT capacity until a few weeks ago when the company came to the end of its busy season. Tin Plate makers usually book the bulk of their orders late in the year to supply the makers of cans during the coming spring and summer. Production ordinarily drops sharply in the autumn when the packing of fruits and vegetables has been completed.

A reduction in the price of 25 cents a base box to $5 a box announced last week will not have any material effect on the present year's earnings since the change came at the close of the busy season.

Costs Reduced

THE PRICE CUT follows a reduction of an equal amount made a year ago. It will be noted that the company was able to increase earnings for the present year in spite of the lower return on its product.

This may be explained by the fact that the price of pig tin, the company's most costly raw material, also declined. The continued weakness of this metal indicates that the last change in the quotation on tin plate will be absorbed in the same manner in 1931.

Every reduction of 10 cents a pound in the price of pig tin amounts to a saving of about 20 cents a box in the production cost of tin plate. About three years ago pig tin cost as much as 60 cents a pound. It is now quoted at about 29 cents a pound.

Requirements Covered

THE LEADING MAKERS of tin plate usually have nearly a six month supply of pig tin either on hand or in transit. This is necessary to guard against any delays in the shipment of the metal which must be transported a distance of about 10,000 miles and is sometimes carried in sailing ships.

It is understood that McKeesport Tin has followed the usual custom of the industry in regard to this raw material so that the company is probably protected against an advance in price through the early part of 1931.

The stock pays regular quarterly dividends of $1 and in the last two quarters has paid extras of 50 cents.

STEEL PRICES DROP BACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade will say:

Declining 6.8 per cent, pig iron production in September reached the lowest rate since the same month in 1924. Total output was 2,276,770 tons and the daily average was 75,890 tons, compared with 2,523,921 tons, or 81,417 tons a day, in August.

Eighteen furnaces were blown out last month and two were lighted, making a net loss of 16. This marks the sixth consecutive reduction in active capacity and brings the total number of stacks in blast down to 123, or 62 fewer than on April 1, when the uninterrupted recession began.

Considered as a corrective move, bringing production into closer step with consumption, this sharp curtailment is a source of encouragement. Blast furnaces, because of the expense entailed when they are taken out of service, are put out tardily in periods of diminishing business, with the consequence that when that action is finally taken considerable stock iron has accumulated. These stocks must be disposed of before demand again overtakes production. This final stage of adjustment has now been entered.

ADVANCE FAILS TO HOLD

Steel ingot production also showed a reduction in September, declining 7.3 per cent from August and more than canceling that month's gain over July. The increase in business that developed in September was apparently too small to absorb the surplus stocks of raw steel accumulated in August. It is to be noted, also, that much of the buying last month was for forward delivery and did not result in immediate demands on the mills.

Contracting, in turn, has been checked because of failure of mills and buyers to come to agreement on prices. Renewed price pressure, in fact, has become a feature of the reversal in sentiment.

Recent advances in bars and black and blue annealed sheets have failed to hold, while hot rolled strip and skelp are down $1 and $2 a ton respectively. Tin plate has been reduced 25 cents a base box to $5, Pittsburgh, the lowest level since early in 1923.

Scarp, always a closely watched barometer, has developed further weakness.

STRUCTURAL PROJECTS GAIN

While the brief spurt in steel demand in September failed to bring the long awaited "recovery," current specifications, as contrasted with forward commitments, have shown little diminution. Steel ingot output for the country at large averages close to 58 per cent, compared with 61 per cent a week ago.

Tin plate orders are declining seasonally and the approach of cold weather may interfere with the laying of pipe lines, thus adversely affecting line pipe output, but these losses will be offset, at least in part, by winter rail rollings.

Automobile production in October will show little, if any, reduction from that of September, according to current estimates.

New structural steel projects, at 49,000 tons, are the largest since the first week of September and more than double the total of a week ago.

LOWER COTTON CROP SEEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—The United States cotton crop this year will amount to about 14,486,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture announced today, basing its estimate on a condition of 53.5 per cent of normal on October 1. Last year's crop totaled 14,828,000 bales. The indicated yield of lint cotton was estimated at 154.7 pounds per acre for harvest.

Simultaneously, the Census Bureau issued a report showing that 6,304,608 running bales, counting round as half bales, were ginned from the 1930 crop prior to October 1 compared with 5,903,265 bales for 1929.

Extends Time On Drought Relief

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has extended to March 31, 1931, the period in which railroads have been authorized to establish emergency reduced rates on drought relief traffic.

Three games are scheduled in the first round of the West Penn cup this week. Mesta Machine will mee the Pittsburgh Rovers at Leslie Park. Herminie travels to National Tube at McKeesport and Primrose entertains Shannon Fintex down the Panhandle.

A big league schedule will be played, only Morgan being idle of the big loop clubs.

Dunlevy will be the attraction at Cecil, and the presence of Grandy and his mates should attract a big crowd at Miller's Run.

Hogan Stabbed By Elevator Operator

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(INS.)—Francis (Shanty) Hogan, Giants catcher, was subdued early today by a Negro elevator operator who used a bat and a knife on Hogan when Hogan objected to the Negro taking a drink at a party Hogan was attending.

But the Negro also was subdued fleeing the scene when he ran against an amateur boxer, Luke Salabanda.

Hogan's knife wounds in the shoulder, arm and side were not serious, it was said today. The Negro was booked for felonious assault.

Fight Results

At Boston—Jimmy Maloney defeated Prime Carnera, 10 rounds; Napoleon Jack Dorval knocked out George Cook, 7 rounds; Jimmy Mendes knocked out Roy Moore, 3 rounds.

At Indianapolis—Jackie Fields knocked out Irish Tommy Jordan, 3 rounds; Charley Baxter and Carl Emrich drew, 8 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Al Fay defeated Les Kennedy, 10 rounds.

you or I have in an argument with our wives.

One big advantage that Elmer Layden's lads have lies in the weak tackles on the Loyola team. The Night Riders gained a lot of yardage against West Virginia on their off tackle plays.

The Duke delegation will make the Edgewater Beach Hotel their headquarters in Chicago and intend to run their special train to South Bend Saturday for the Notre Dame-Navy game.

More Passes?

Getting ready for a supposed to be warmup, the Pitt Panthers went through light drill yesterday. As has been the case all week, the boys were unencumbered by pads.

Dr. Skip Gougler, who took time off from his freshmen to scout Western Reserve, came back with a notebook full of dope and sound advice for the squad. While the gennial Skip is hardly predicting a defeat, he assured Sutherland that the Redcats were no easy foe.

Gordon Locke's men are big and fast. They use the same system as that employed by Southern California, and it is expected that their passes will bother the Panther secondary.

Just who will be employed in the Pitt fullback spot is not certain. Jim Clark is about ready to go again, and Sutherland is rather anxious to give him his baptism of fire. If he does this he will have to let Franklin Hood ride the bench.

Long's Sport Comment

year. The salary that sounds so big is a mere trifle and a cheap investment in comparison with what Ruth draws. One baseball man at the series is authority for the statement that the Yankee owners get Ruth's salary back with interest each year even before the season opens. He says they made no less than $126,000 on the last spring exhibition trip, solely through the Babe's drawing power.

WHEN A CHANCE developed for the winning of three games in the 1930 series by Bob Grove, who was credited with two of Philadelphia's three victories in the first five contests, it recalled that this feat had been achieved by only eight pitchers in the history of the modern post-season stakes.

Only three of them were National Leaguers, and two of those three were Pirates, Deacon Phillippe and Babe Adams. Phillippe won three and lost two against the Boston Americans in 1903. In the same series Bill Dineen won three and lost one for the Red Sox.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON WON three games and lost none for the Giants against the A's in 1905. Adams won three and lost none against the Tigers in 1909. Jack Combs won three and lost none for the A's against the Cubs in 1910, and Joe Wood won three and lost one for the Red Sox against the Giants in 1912.

Urban Faber won three and lost one for the White Sox against the Giants in 1917, and Stanley Coveleskie won three and lost none for the Indians against the Robins in 1920. Phillippe's three victories against the Red Sox in 1903 were won in the first four games of the series, a record for the old Pirate star.

Babe Ruth

THAT WHATEVER SUCCESS the A's have enjoyed or may eventually enjoy in this year's series is due almost entirely to their good fortune in getting super-pitching is shown by their poor batting and run-getting record to date. Never before was a club held in subjection for so long a stretch by opposing pitchers, as the A's have been by the Cardinal flingers, without being repeatedly defeated. In 31 consecutive innings, or more than three full games, prior to the sixth contest, they scored a total of only three runs, yet they come out of it with a victory that put them in the lead in the series. In the first five games they batted only .187, not far above the lowest average on record for a World Series, which is 162, made by the A's in 1905. And with that mark the A's of 1930 won three of the first five games, whereas their predecessors in 1905 lost four out of five.

REDS BEAT BLUES

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Oct. 8.—George Vang's Reds galloped to another close victory over Mose Kline's Blues for their second consecutive victory in their polo series which got under way here earlier in the week. Yesterday's count was 5 and 4, after five hectic chukkers.

Bond Club to Hold Weekly Luncheon

The regular weekly luncheon of the Bond Club of Pittsburgh will be held tomorrow at noon in the William Penn Hotel. Dr. John W. Oliver, professor of history at the University of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There was no changes in quotations.

The poultry markets rested firm, demand good, supply adequate, with no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained steady, demand fair, supply nominal, without changes in quotations.

Car lot supplies were nominal, with 422 cars on track. Arrivals included 13 cars of apples, 1 beans, 3 cabbage, 1 carrots, 3 cantaloupes, 5 celery, 2 grapefruits, 29 grapes, 1 turnips, 7 lettuce, 1 onions, 1 oranges, 1 peaches, 9 pears, 11 potatoes, 3 sweet potatoes and 1 tomatoes.

Prizes for a New Nose on Jiggs!

Here's something that will interest every youngster in Pittsburgh.

There isn't a child in the city who doesn't know "Jiggs," the famous cartoon character featured daily in the Sun-Telegraph. The above illustration is an excellent likeness of "Jiggs" with one exception. He hasn't any nose.

We want you to give "Jiggs" a nose. You will have a lot of fun drawing in all styles of noses, long, short, stubby, fat, thin ones. Try it, and see how much enjoyment you can get out of it.

Of course the nose that you give "Jiggs" in the drawing you submit in the "Jiggs Cartoon Contest" must be as near to his real honest-to-goodness nose as you can make it. You can color the old fellow and fix him up any way you desire.

For the best copy of the above drawing, with the nose included, the Sun-Telegraph, in conjunction with H. M. Addison, managing director of Loew's Penn Theater, will award cash prizes totaling $25.00, in addition to 100 tickets to see the famous Cosmopolitan Picture, "Those Three French Girls," starring Fifi Dorsay, Yola d'Arvil, Sandra Ravel, Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards, better known as "Ukulele Ike." The picture, which opens Friday, October 10th, at the Penn, is said to be as funny as "The Cockeyed World" and "Caught Short."

The prizes will be awarded as follows:

First Prize, $10.00; Second Prize, $5.00; 10 Prizes of $1.00 each; 13th, 14th and 15th Prizes, box party at Loew's Penn Theater; 16th, 17th and 18th Prizes, Two Loge seats for Loew's Penn; Next Six Best, Two seats; Next 66, One Ticket Each to See "THOSE THREE FRENCH GIRLS," Cosmopolitan Production, coming to Loew's Penn Theater.

Now go to it, children. You only have one week, as all drawings must be in not later than next Saturday, October 11th, at noon.

Bring or mail your drawing to "The Jiggs Cartoon Editor," in care of the Sun-Telegraph. Be sure and write your name and address plainly on the back of the drawing. Hurry, let's go.

Loadings of freight in less than carload lots amounted to 344,133 cars, decrease of 28,761; coal 153,183, decrease 57,818; forest products 42,159, decrease 21,622; ore 48,095, decrease 20,762; coke 7,951, decrease 4,471; grain and grain products 43,119, decrease 5,930; livestock 28,976, decrease 6,024.

Nash to Produce New Line of Cars

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Directors of Nash Motors Company voted the regular quarterly dividend of $1 and at the same time President C. W. Nash revealed that a complete new line of cars would be announced today.

Mr. Nash recalled that manufacture of 1930 models had been discontinued in July to permit dealers to dispose of stocks on hand, but he indicated a revival in the automobile industry was not far distant.

Although the company shipped no cars for the quarter ended August 31, net earnings for the period were $1,777,270, equal to 65 cents a share on 2,730,000 shares outstanding.

Ford Insists Men In British Plant Be 'Bone Dry'

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—The Daily Herald said that Henry Ford would use every effort to keep employes of his new automobile factory at Dagenham from drinking. Ford told an interviewer that such a policy was necessary. The Herald says.

"Does that mean that the man who drinks will be discharged?" the interviewer asked.

"We shall see about that in our own way," the American manufacturer was said to have replied.

"Will you follow workmen into their homes or when they are off duty and penalize them for exercising their private rights?"

Ford declined to answer.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Drop During Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 2,800 barrels for the week ended October 4, totaling 2,586,950 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,800,750 barrels, an increase of 5,300 barrels.

September Engine Shipments Lower

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Shipments of railroad locomotives during September totaled 65, against 77 in August and 75 in September, 1929. Shipments for the year to date amounted to 617, compared with 592 in the like 1929 period and 435 in 1928.

STOCKS DRIFT OFF ON LIGHT OFFERINGS

Rallying Tendencies Seen During Afternoon Trading; Selling Easily Absorbed

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.) — The stock market withstood the shock of discouraging news from the steel industry fairly well today.

Although leading shares drifted lower, several penetrating still further into new low depths, offerings were light and easily absorbed, and rallying tendencies appeared during the afternoon.

U. S. Steel dropped more than 2 points to a new 1930 low at 151⅛, then rallied a point. Youngstown Sheet dropped 6 points to a new minimum and Crucible, Bethlehem and Colorado Fuel were others losing 2 points or more. American Telephone dropped more than 2 points, but was supposed close to 199. Shares selling down 2 to 3 included Stone and Webster, American Water Works, Air Reduction and Corn Products. St. Louis Southwestern dropped 5. Gillette was a soft spot, tumbled 7 points to a new low at 46, evidently reflecting reports that the proposed acquisition of Autostrop would require large issuance of senior securities.

BEARS WARY

The resistance offered by the list as leading shares approached last November's lows yesterday was interpreted in bearish quarters as indicating that further campaigns would be opposed with cash, as well as warnings about unethical tactics. Furthermore, dulness of trading indicated that urgent liquidation had, for the moment, been completed.

Business news, however, was distinctly not of a character to induce either investors or speculators to bid for stocks. The American Iron and Steel Institute's figures on September steel production showed the lowest output for that month since 1924 and clearly indicated that the more active inquiry from consumers had been overestimated. Output was even lower than that of July, although July had been widely accepted as the low month of the year.

It appeared that mills had been able to fill much of the month's requirement from stocks on hand. U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage figures will be published on Friday and may give a clearer picture of the situation. In discussions of steel demand, it must be remembered that the mere making of contracts does not definitely promise new business, for these contracts are obligations of the mills rather than the consumers, who may refrain from specifying again them.

PRODUCTION FALLS

Iron Age estimated that steel production in the week ended yesterday had dropped 3 per cent to 58 per cent of rated capacity. Its composite price for finished steel fell back to the low of the year. Steel's composite for iron and steel products reached the lowest in 10 years.

Despit these dark aspects of the situation, many observers continue to believe the worst is about over, basing their convictions of course on previous business depressions. Investment buying on scale down continued to come into the stock market from important sources, although there was still a decided tendency to place orders slightly under the market, and to refrain from bidding for stocks.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended September 27, at 950,381 cars, were at another new low for the decline, and against the normal trend, but the drop from the previous weke was only 2,131 cars, which may indicate a flattening out of the downward curve. Nash Motors, although earning only 65 cents a share in the third quarter, felt that the outlook was encouraging enough to justify payment of the $1 quarterly dividend. Call money was steady at 2 per cent.

REFINED SUGAR PRICE RAISED

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The principal sugar refiners today announced another raise in the price of refined sugar. Present price is 4.50 cents a pound, up 10 points. The new quotations is effective Friday morning.

HAVANA, Oct. 8.—At a meeting of the Cuban sugar committee, held this morning with Thomas L. Chadbourne, the latter's plan was definitely approved.

There will be withdrawn from the market 1,500,000 tons, paying their owners attractive prices with bonds of an issue with collateral guarantee of the sugar. These bonds will be accepted by the banks. The exportation of sugar from the next crop for the United States will be limited to 2,800,000 tons.

Negotiations have been started with Java to reach a definite agreement to stabilize output.

Gen. Andrews Quits Dutch-Shell Group

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Gen. Avery D. Andrews has resigned as American representative of the Royal Dutch-Shell group and as chairman of many of the subsidiary American companies, effective December 31, 1930. His present plans are for a considerable period of travel and recreaion.

Government Report on Cotton Crop Proves Very Bearish.

The government report on the condition and indicated yield of cotton, as of October 1, last, proved somewhat more bearish than had been generally anticipated in market circles. Based on the average of private forecasts the trade had looked for an indicated yield of somewhere around 14,200,000 bales. The actual government figure placed the prospective yield as of October 1 at 14,486,000 bales compared with 14,340,000 bales on September 1. The market, however, rallied spiritedly for a spell after trading was resumed following the usual recess which is taken to analyze the government figures each month. But the rebound was not very strongly maintained, the market subsequently cancelling the bulk of the rise which followed the resumption of business.

Chesapeake Corporation will report earnings equal to about $1 a share on its 1,797,745 shares in its third quarter report to be issued shortly. This will compare with 85 cents a share earned in the first quarter and 79 cents a share earned in the second quarter. For the third quarter last year the corporation earned 80 cents a share on the 1,800,000 shares. For the full year, Chesapeake Corporation shows better than $3.50 a share earned on its stock.

Chesapeake Corporation has followed a policy of paying out in dividend practically all of its earnings so that an increase in the dividend rate of $3 annually to $3.50 is likely to be made in the comparatively near future based on expected earnings for the year of better than the latter amount. Before an increase in dividend rate is authorized, the corporation probably will arrange some financing to take care of its bank loans. This may take the form of collateral bonds, or an issue of preferred stock, depending upon market conditions at the time the offering is made.

Notwithstanding the general falling off in traffic, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad probably will cover its $7 common dividend this year. The large surplus accumulated over a series of years and the company's strong cash position would seem to presage no change in the dividend basis established last year. As of August 1 last current assets approximated $72,400,000, including about $40,000,000 cash, against current liabilities of around $29,500,000, a ratio of nearly two and one-half to one.

Earnings estimates for the current year which seem likely to prove reasonably accurate are now available for 493 issues traded in on the New York Stock Exchange or the New York Curb. Of these, slightly more than half or 50.9 per cent, have sold within the past week at levels equivalent to not more than 10 times estimated 1930 net per share. Somewhat in excess of a quarter of the total number, or 28.3 per cent, have recently been priced at from 11 to 15 times earnings. Only 12.2 per cent were valued at levels between 16 and 20 times earnings. Forty stocks, or 8.2 per cent, have consistently held to a price earnings ratio equivalent to 21 or more times estimated 1930 net per share.

A comprehensive survey of automobile production and profits of 13 independent companies discloses that earnings per unit have declined from $118.78 in 1925 to $71.16 in 1929. Another table shows that earnings per dollar of sales have fallen off from 9.8 cents in 1925, to 6.0 cents in 1929. The decrease in profit margins is due primarily to the downward trend in car prices.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Cotton opened barely steady today at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points, and worked lower during the early trading under southern and local selling. New October contracts made a new low record, selling off to 9.96c, while new December and January sold off to previous low prices, with the general list showing net declines of about 1 to 6 points at the end of the first half hour. The selling was supposed to include further pre-bureau liquidation.

The market weakened before business was suspended to receive the government report. All the more active months sold back to or a shade below the previous low records for the season, with new October and March making net losses of about 9 to 15 points.

The government report placing the condition of the crop at 63.5, the indicated production at 14,486,000 bales and the indicated yield per acre at 154.7 pounds was above the average of recent prevate reports, but closely in line with the average expectation of New York Cotton Exchange members of 14,443,000 bales as indicated by the recent canvass.

When business was resumed October and March sold about 22 to 29 points above the low levels of the morning and 14 to 15 points net higher.

Rubber Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Rubber futures opened steady: December, 7.80c; March, 8.20c; May, 8.40c. New contracts—December, 8.00c; March, unquoted; May, 8.60c. Spot, smoked ribbed, 7¾.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The curb market drifted lower in desultory trading today. However, the number of pronounced weak spots was smaller and the turnover dwindled.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Penn. Boy is Healthiest

"MY little son, James, suffered from constipation," says Mrs. A. G. Toner, 267 South 55th St., Philadelphia. "He was having a hard time until I heard of California Fig Syrup and got him some. The first few doses regulated his bowels, brightened him up marvelously; even seemed to strengthen him and help his digestion.

"I have since used Fig Syrup with James during colds or upsets. It has been a wonderful help to him; has assisted in making him the strong boy you see—perhaps the healthiest one in our neighborhood."

For more than fifty years, mothers have praised California Fig Syrup. Leading physicians advise its use with bilious, headachy, constipated children, or to keep the bowels open during colds or children's diseases. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. It tones and strengthens weakened bowels; helps make children robust.

Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Mystery Stuff

Burton Thayer wrote mystery stories. They were good. At least they brought him good financial returns, and if one doesn't measure literary output by its literary returns, one has to wait a century or so to make sure it is good.

Burt lived in Loomville, although he put a New York date line on his mystery novels.

There was a time when Burt thought that Nina was about all the reason for the universe.

He worked in the Loomville Loom-Fruit Company's office when he got home from college, but he wrote at home, and when his first mystery novel began to sell, he decided to let the Loomville Loom-Fruit Company struggle along without his assistance.

This was about the time that he began to run up to New York to "see his publishers."

"Hadn't you better keep your job, until you are sure that you really can write?" Nina asked Burt.

Burt almost soured on Nina then. Almost isn't quite, so he looked at her in a pitying way.

"Do you think," he asked with overdone sarcasm, "that I whittled that story out of a barrel stave or something? Don't you think I wrote it, and if I wrote it, which I did, why can't I be sure that I can write?"

"Sometimes marksmen miss the target," Nina said.

Nina only said just so much. There was a whole lot she could say and wanted to say, but she didn't want to get Burt sore on her—the poor girl was in love with him.

Neglects Sweetheart

Time came when it seemed to Nina, right after Burt's second mystery novel was out and he was tearing his hair, secretly and figuratively, for a plot for a third, that he was forgetting her entirely—he was all wrapped up in "authorship."

She decided that she would "talk shop" with Burt.

"I've got some good ideas for mystery stories," she said one Sunday as they were driving home from Loomis Lake, where they had been canoeing.

Burt tried not to look bored.

Around the curve in the road at the frog pond the car skidded and if it hadn't been for the rusted and charred remains of an old car they would have gone into the mudhole.

"Well," Burt said, "I've always wondered why your folks never cleared up that ghastly wreck of your grandfather's car. It is a constant reminder of his hideous death, but I suppose it serves as a sort of fender for skidding cars on this curve."

"I don't know," Nina said, for the sake of saying something.

"I remember him," Nina said. "I remember the long, black Prince Albert coat he wore and his great, white side whiskers and the tall hat, like a black silk hat, only it was light gray."

"When the car of his turned turtle back there at the edge of the frog pond and caught fire, and burned your grandfather to death, it stopped a great many people here from wanting automobiles for as much as 10 years," Burt remarked.

"I guess it did. Say, Burt, why wouldn't that make a swell mystery story—grandfather coming back and driving the old car up and down the road? Let's do a mystery story together, and use that for a plot."

Burt Disagress

"My dear Nina," Burt drawled, "mystery stories have to have realty about them, plausibility back of the mystery when once it is solved, and there is no chance to make anything plausible about your dead grandfather coming back and driving his 1906 automobile up and down the road."

On Wednesday night they drove over to Youngstown to see a picture.

On the way back, before they reached the frog pond where the remains of her grandfather's car rested in the ooze, there was a peculiar sounding horn, and around the curve came Grandfather Cobden!

He waved an arm at them.

And he drove an old "Vinton" of 1906, steering with a "tiller" instead of a wheel.

"It's—it's Grandpa!" Nina gasped.

"I'm a hon-of-a-gun!" Burt cried.

"You said he couldn't come back," Nina reminded him.

"I said if he did come back it wouldn't make a mystery story because mystery stories have to be explained, and this can't be explained at—"

"Grororowark!" went the ancient bulb horn, and the old Vinton dashed past him, the strapped on top swaying."

"It's a spirit or ghost, no real thing could pass me like that," Burt gasped.

They rounded the bend.

"Gosh!" Burt said pointing.

There was the wreck of the old car that had killed Grandfather Cobden right in the edge of the frog pond as it had been for years.

"I told you!" Nina said.

"Spirits—I know. Listen. If you can build any sort of a mystery story out of a plain spook, you're better than I am."

"And you think you're good," Nina retorted.

"I know I am. I've sold another novel.

"I'm glad. Now you can collaborate with me."

"Nina, that's out. I'm going to New York to live before long anyway."

"So am I."

Burton's next novel, in manuscript form, did not arouse three hearty cheers from his publishers.

"More originality," they said. "Get some friend to give you new plots. If you had turned in a plot like this new novel we are getting out, called 'The Ghost Car,' you could have cleaned up."

Excellent Story

"Ghost car?"

"Sure! Great stuff. Old man wrecked in ancient car and burned to death. He is seen nightly driving up and down the road. Get it?"

"Ha! Sure I get it—girl friend of mine sent that in to you—but where's a mystery plot in that?"

"Ghost car always disappeared through a solid granite wall at the deserted estate of the old man who was burned to death under his car."

"And yet, there's no sane solution—"

"Isn't there?" His publisher friend, Thorwald Gormley, laughed. Suppose, now, that the ghost car was a fake. Suppose part of the solid granite wall it disappeared through opened on hinges and was only painted beaver board—suppose the car was modern, disguised like the old one, and suppose the driver was a young bootlegger disguised as the old man who had been burned to death under his car? And suppose he managed to make a big fortune by bootlegging, because of this ghostly car stunt!?"

"I'll admit it's a swell story—and I ought to have thought of it myself—I suppose a girl named Nina Cobden sent in the plot to you, eh, Thorwald?"

"She sent in the complete novel—she knew all about the bootlegger—I believe you know her well—we're going to be married soon."

"Oh," Burt said, meekly.

He saw Nina the next week.

"You ought to have told me your plot, Nina, I could have helped you," he said.

"I didn't need any help—there's only one mystery I can't solve, Burt, and that is why I was ever dumb enough to think you wanted to marry me!"

"Yeah? Well, I know a bigger mystery—that is, why I didn't have brains enough to ask you to marry me."

"Well, Burt, I know a cute little story—Thorwald Gormley, the publisher, is my cousin, and we are going to be married soon, he is to marry a girl named Johnson—and I'm going to marry you."

So they wrote the story—and here it is.

FRISBY NAILS LIE TO RELIEVE FARMERS

Above picture shows Congressman Frisby conducting experiment which he says will relieve farmers. "By dropping an ordinary field mouse into a can of milk," reported Frisby, "I found that the mouse lived only a very few minutes. This proves that milk is dangerous and vastly overrated as a food. If milk will do that to a mouse, what will it do to a human? Assuming then, that milk is dangerous, the farmer need no longer bother with cows which cost him so much to feed and shelter and shoo flies from. With no cows to milch he can sleep late mornings, and the farmer's wife, instead of living a life of drudgery churning milk, can hereafter (thanks to her Congressman!) spend more time listening to the radio.

"Corrupt and Contented" Gang Is for Hemphill

Many years ago a famous writer referred to Philadelphia as "corrupt and contented." He had in mind its complacent acceptance of domination by a gang of unscrupulous politicians. The same old gang continues to rule Philadelphia. It seeks to rule the state.

That is the explanation for the repudiation of Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, by Charles B. Hall and State Senator Samuel W. Salus, leaders of the Philadelphia Republican organization. Nearly all of the Republican ward chairmen in Philadelphia are expected to follow their lead.

They are for John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal candidate for governor, because they know that with Gifford Pinchot at Harrisburg they will have no chance to rule Pennsylvania.

It would be an unhappy thing for Pennsylvania if the Philadelphia gang should gain control. The fact that the Philadelphia gang is hostile to Pinchot gives Pennsylvanians an additional reason for being for him.

The Philadelphia gang is against Pinchot not only because he will not let the gang rule Pennsylvania, but also because Pinchot's humanitarian program and his demand for fair treatment of the people by the great public service corporations are distasteful to the corporations with which the gang is allied.

Pinchot proposes to abolish the coal and iron police, corporation hirelings who have usurped the powers of the state and ridden roughshod over the rights of the citizens.

He proposes to make the public utilities give good service at reasonable rates.

When the rights of the people and the privileges of the corporations are in conflict, Pinchot promises to take the privileges away from the corporations and defend the rights of people. That is why the public utilities and the railroads are for Hemphill.

The support now openly given Hemphill by the Philadelphia gang and predatory corporations should win many thousands of votes for Pinchot. It should bring him the votes of Democrats and independents throughout the state. For Democrats may well view with suspicion a Democratic candidate who has the backing of the corrupt Philadelphia Republican organization.

Municipal Movies Help To Cure Tuberculosis

We all appreciate what Mayor Charles H. Kline has done to brighten life in Pittsburgh by having the city give free movie shows in the parks on Sunday evenings in summer. Dr. Charles B. Maits, director of public health, calls attention to another kind of free movies that have been put on with the help of Mayor Kline, and which, it is probably no exaggeration to say, have actually resulted in saving life—the shows given in Pittsburgh's Tuberculosis Hospital for the entertainment of the patients.

It is well known that sufferers from tuberculosis have a better chance of recovery if they are kept cheerful and contented. That principle has been applied to the Leech Farm sanitarium. In 1922 radio entertainment was provided for the patients, with loud speakers in the reception rooms and individual ear phones at every bed. It was the first installation of the kind in the United States.

This produced a very noticeable improvement in the morale of the patients, Dr. Maits tells us. Then movies were added to the entertainment, through the co-operation of the Mayor and City Council, and recently, through their continued co-operation, a machine for producing sound pictures was installed, the first in any municipal institution in the world. Now the patients are entertained with the latest talkies every Tuesday and Friday evening.

And now for the evidence that this may save life: Treatment of tuberculosis is a long process, and one of the things that must be combatted is the inclination of patients to leave the hospital before they are cured. The movies not only put the sufferers in a cheerful mood, but make them willing to prolong their stay.

If the theory that this entertainment is saving life seems fanciful, ponder this: Ten years ago, in 1919, we had 637 deaths from tuberculosis (a death rate of 106 per 100,000) and last year we had 385 deaths (a rate of 56.1 per 100,000). Pittsburgh now has the lowest tuberculosis death rate of the 17 largest cities in the United States.

Electrification of P.R.R. Is Promised

It is to be presumed that Andrew W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, was not speaking on mere supposition, but had some definite assurance for his statement, after the board meeting Monday, that the Pennsylvania Railroad intends to electrify its lines here. Mr. Robertson said:

"We understand that the Pennsylvania Railroad intends to go right along with its electrification program, which also means the electrification of the Pittsburgh division of the road."

That is encouraging. But, in view of Pittsburgh's strong desire for this improvement, in view of the interest the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations are taking in the matter, the Pennsylvania should itself make some statement on the subject and indicate how much longer we must expect to suffer from the smoke and grime belched over the city from the smokestacks of its locomotives.

Pittsburgh will not be content with a mere vague promise that the improvement will be made some time in the dim and misty future. It seeks assurance that relief from railroad smoke will be obtained with reasonable promptness.

Bobby's Game

Atlanta didn't get into the World Series, but it is certainly the town where Bobby Jones sends out his laundry.

That's enough municipal glory to spread both sides of the bread and inundate the surrounding farmlands.

The Mahomet of golf went to the mountain and topped it with an explosion shot.

He goes around the works with an umbrella stand full of curly broom handles and enjoys himself better than a snake dancer in front of a mirror.

If you have never played golf then you have never known the thrill of replacing a divot.

It's a great outdoor game after you escape from the boys in the locker room.

It started in Scotland on a shilling bet. One old kilt swisher was trying to hook a hardboiled egg off another man's plate with the crook of his cane.

The idea was soon elaborated, spread to tropical countries, was adopted by America and its social possibilities soon recognized by the caddies.

We have been playing golf less than 50 years. Our oldest course is called St. Andrew's in honor of a man named Andy. No member of St. Andrew's is less than 70 years of age. But you can soon get that way with a two weeks' card.

The usual golfer is rarely on the fairways and gets in back of more fences and trees than the Minute Man of Lexington. But we have watched Bobby Jones smacking them straight along the line like a notary's signature. We have yet to see him make a mistake.

We don't know whether or not he enjoys himself. We know his opponents don't.

He won four major titles this season. And four majors are enough for any quiet neighborhood.

Once his admirers gave him a house. But the committee made him give it back. No golfer is an amateur who has a roof over his head.

George Von Elm said something about the tournaments being commercialized, but we cannot agree that an amateur is a professional who needs the money.

Golf is just as clean a sport as polishing brass. The only thing that the experts can say about Jones' game is that he hasn't got any teamwork.

PIERRE DE FERMAT

By Archibald Henderson

One of the mathematical geniuses of history, although not a mathematician by profession, was Pierre de Fermat. He was born in Toulouse, France, in the year 1595, and died in the same city in 1665. Singularly little is known of his career. He would work out interesting problems and send them in letters to his friends. He would follow out untrodden paths in the study of numbers, of geometry, of the calculus, and propose difficult problems to be solved. Perhaps the greatest "teaser" in the history of mathematics is the theorem, known as Fermat's Theorem, which yet remains unsolved, although solutions have been attempted by some of the greatest mathematicians since Fermat's day.

In the period during which Fermat flourished men of great intellect often had mathematical study as an avocation. This was the case with not a few distinguished figures in public life. As we learn from the Book of Popular Science, the celebrated astronomer Helvetius was a Senator of Danzig. The Grand Pensionary of Holland, Jan de Witt, was a profound geometer. Florimond de Beaune, whom Descartes placed in the first rank of mathematicians of his time, was leader of the presidial of Blois. Fermat himself, in the parliament of Toulouse, where he became counselor in 1631, was looked upon as the profoundest lawyer of his day.

Fermat owed his first interest in mathematics to a famous work on arithmetic by Diophantus. His attention was caught by the translation of this work made by Bachet. Fermat had not received any particular training in mathematics, and never displayed any interest in the subject until he was past 30. Among his correspondents, to whom he wrote regarding his mathematical discoveries, were Pascal and Descartes.

It is unfortunate for posterity that he took so little pains to make enduring record of his discoveries. Sometimes he would jot his proofs down on the margin of books. More frequently, he would merely record the theories he had discovered without giving any proof of them whatsoever. He was the soul of modesty, and never published any of his writings. He came in time to be recognized by mathematicians as the founder of a great branch of mathematics, known as the theory of numbers. In 1843 the legislative chambers of France voted the sum of 15,000 francs to publish a collected edition of his writings; but for some reason the proposal was not then carried out. Almost half a century later his writings were published by Tannery and Henry under the auspices of the French minister of public instruction.

It will probably never be known how many discoveries Fermat made. He discovered a simpler method of quadrating parabolas than that of Archimedes; and anticipated the differential calculus of Newton and Leibniz in his study of maxima and minima. He made important contributions to the theory of probability; and shares with Descartes the honor of discovering the idea of analytic geometry. He was probably the greatest proposer and solver of difficult problems of the history of mathematics.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've just been down to the south forty with some rock salt for the cattle. Queer thing about cows. You can give them the richest pasturage that ever sprouted, clear water, deep shade, everything that a cow's heart might desire, but if you don't give them salt they'll sicken. Something in their bodies demands that bitter tonic and they'll desert the finest alfalfa and travel weary miles to get it.

Watching them rub their great tongues over the big gray cube I thought of Perry. Perry's 19 tomorrow—and he will spend his birthday in jail. Stole another automobile. This is his fifth. They say his dad has disowned him. Most folks won't blame his dad.

"Look at all he did for that boy," they'll say. "Ever since he was a little shaver, nothing was too good for him. The Smith's aren't rich, but no boy ever had a nicer home or kinder parents. And what thanks did they get? Why, he's been in one mess after another since he was twelve. It's a good thing his dad has washed his hands of him. You can't do anything with a boy that's naturally bad like that."

That's what people will be saying of Perry today and much of it is true. No one ever tried harder to make life easy for his boy than Ed Smith. He had a hard time, himself, as a kid, out on his own in the mining camps at fourteen. Pretty tough! No wonder he wanted his boy to have everything soft and safe. YET THAT'S WHAT LANDED THE BOY WHERE HE IS TODAY . . . TOO MUCH SOFTNESS AND SAFETY.

Humans, like cows, must have salt . . . something harsh and virile for boy and mind. How much salt is there left in modern city life for a lively youngster? How much healthy risk and rough 'n' tumble? Warm, pretty rooms. Soft, sloppy foods. Slick, sleazy clothes. School days filled with cultural courses . . . not a drop of sweat in a semester. Yet, stinging the hot young blood, that same old hunger for adventure that sent their grandfathers out in covered wagon caravans . . . but what to feed it? Vicious, maudlin movies, dramatizing crime . . . confession magazines as dirty as a French post card . . . leg shows . . . "blind pigs."

And we blame them if they run amuck! Why shouldn't they run amuck, LOOKING FOR SALT IN OUR MARSHMALLOW CIVILIZATION?

Boys—naturally bad? Nonsense! Boys are naturally ALIVE, and the more alive they are, the more Cain they're going to raise in their craving for action.

Give a youngster something to DO . . . . give him healthy risk and danger . . . . make life hard for him . . . . make life challenge him . . . . AND HELP HIM GET THE KICK OUT OF THAT CHALLENGE . . . . and you won't have to worry about him being "bad."

Want a cure for the crime wave? Don't wait until rebel youngsters land in reform schools, to learn crime. Put them on cattle ranges—where they won't need crime. Let them learn how to make automobiles, ride airplanes, sail ships, fight forest fires . . . . GIVE THEM SALT. LIFE WITHOUT SALT GOES BAD.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

The guys in the florist stores have got to be mighty careful. It's so easy to guess wrong or hurt somebody's feelings. Now, for instance, I heard about a fellow who come into a florist shop looking kinda sad, and he says, "I want a few flowers."

"For a lady?" says the florist.

"Yeah."

"Well, now here is a nice selection of orchids at $20 apiece," says the florist.

"Say, she's a lady, and she aint dead. And besides, I'm married to her and this is for her tenth anniversary. Show me a dollar's worth of daisies."

Love's Wisdom

I would hold you closer, so;
I would never let you go,
For our love has lived so long,
And our love has grown so strong
That not even death should part
Your true heart, Dear, from my heart.

I would make the bond so sure
It must evermore endure
Through all tempting, through all tears,
Under weight of added years;
I would feel that I could say:
"All things else may pass away,
All things else are fugitive
Save this love by which I live."
I would hold you near to me. . . .
This is why I leave you free.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

I.—The Scale of the Universe.

The time from the discovery of America to the present is represented by nearly five inches; the time since Darwin made it possible for us to see our own place in Nature aright is compressed into less than an inch, while the new discoveries as to the extent and nature of the universe (which we may date as beginning with the discovery of radium), take up only a quarter of an inch.

To arrive at a scale on which we can represent the events of human history, we have had to magnify our original scale needed to show the life of a star, ten thousand million times.

H. G. Wells

And even to convert a time-scale convenient for geology into one suitable for history, we must use a magnification of a million.

We are a long way from the old view (which dominated Western thought so recently that there may still be found persons who cling to it in spite of all evidence) that man's home is the center of the universe, and that his creation only a few thousand years back, was simultaneous with the beginning of the whole world.

The great bulk of the physical universe exists in the form of wandering radiation, not of matter; of matter all but a tiny fragment is in the interior of stars, at appalling temperatures in the neighborhood of 40,000,000 degrees centrigrade, and quite incapable of supporting life of whatever description, since, as Jeans says: "the very concept of life implies duration in time; there can be no life where the atoms change their make-up millions of times a second, and no two atoms can even become joined together. Primeval matter must go on transforming itself into radiation for millions of years to produce an infinitesimal amount of the inert ash on which life can exist."

Man is an inhabitant of a thin rind on a negligible detached blob of matter belonging to one among millions of stars in one among millions of island-universes.

And his insignificance in time is as overwhelming as his insignificance in shape. The time of the universe is almost all spent in what to us seem wholly meaningless activities.

Stars shrink and dissolve into radiation. The matter of which they are composed is engaged in an atomic and electronic dance, frenzied beyond belief, but persistent through periods which make even the whole past of terrestrial life quite negligible.

Man is far from being central or essential in the tale which the rest of the cosmos has to tell seems meaningless in the light of all his ideas and aspirations.

If he is to find justification for these ideas and aspirations, he can no longer seek it in the outer universe, but must look within himself. Human dignity rests upon nothing but itself, and man's activities must have value in themselves and for their own sake if they are to have value at all.

That is the outcome of modern astronomy's impact upon the complacency of ordinary thought.

2. The Setting of the Stage.

So much, very briefly, for the cosmic background. Next comes the setting of the actual stage—Earth.

If there is one obvious lesson of evolutionary biology, it is that life is inseparably interwoven with its surroundings, changes responsively with them, and is indeed, meaningless thought of apart from its environment.

We shall never understand the play and appreciate the crescendo of its action unless we see how the stage was prepared and what changes were made from time to time in the setting.

The molten earth, after throwing off the moon, cooled down gradually, its lighter materials squeezed out to form a crust, heavier ones clenched below in the core. The surface crust acted like a blanket and prevented the heat produced by the earth's internal radio-active minerals from escaping as fast as it was generated.

Hence, remelting of the heavier rocks below and their eruption as great flows of lava onto the surface, or their injection into spaces of lesser density in the crust.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—"The Rockefeller Cathedral," as megaphonists of the yap wagon call it, is completed. Gracing a slight rise on upper Riverside Drive, near Grant's Tomb, its soft grey facade shoots up into the most restful spire in town, a spire comparable to any of Wren's in London.

In my opinion it is the only religious edifice outside of St. Johns and St. Patricks in New York that has the sublimity and warmth of Old World cathedrals such as St. Gudule or Rheims. The entrance is a replica of the Chartres Cathedral and the whole effect is a Gothic masterpiece.

The official name is Riverside Baptist Church and it was built by the elder Rockefeller for Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and his congregation. The exact instructions are said to have been: "Erect a fine church and send me the bill." The cost is estimated at from two to ten millions.

The new church completes a triad of distinctive religious structures the past year—the other two in the trinity being the Temple Emmanu-el and the Church of the Heavenly Rest on upper Fifth avenue. The executive offices of the Drive church will be in the tower.

And an interesting yarn is spun of the tower furnishings. Everything had been installed. The elder John D. on his way to Tarrytown one evening stopped in to look things over. He clucked his tongue and shook his head. Next morning workmen descended and removed everything in waiting vans.

Mr. Rockefeller had decided it was not nearly fine enough for such a magnificent exterior and that gives a general idea of the lavish manner in which everything has been done. The Rockefellers — father and son — have shown unusual personal interest in every detail of the construction work.

The senior Rockefeller visited it several times a month, strolled among the workmen to chat, ask questions and encourage them. He has an expert knowledge of stonemasonry. The son was a daily visitor. This scrupulous attention doubtless contributed much toward the marvelous result.

But the biggest Rockefeller local improvement is, of course, the Radio City struggling for shape in heart of town. Progress at present is only shown in vacant stores across from St. Patrick's and temporary parking spaces and runt golf courses where buildings once stood. The section will have a "hard times" look for many buildings are untenanted waiting destruction. Scores received big bonuses and moved out immediately.

I recently heard a simile attributed to the elder Rockefeller, which is as good as I ever heard. He spoke of something being as "plaintive as a lost sheep's baa."

There are no fuss and feathers about young John D. He walks up the avenue window-shopping leisurely every evening he is in town to his home around the corner in West 54th street. Many in his neighborhood do not recognize him. His home is not particularly pretentious. Around his doorway or loitering nearby are always two guardsmen in plain clothes. Mr. Rockefeller often stops to talk to a venerable street sweeper in his block. He is seldom seen leaving his home after dinner.

Those who know say John D., Jr., is the most dutiful of sons. He phones his father wherever he may be daily. He visits the family home at Tarrytown twice a week, and father and son take long walks together about the Pontico Hills estate.

A Pike's Peak in tonsorial luxury is hung up by a millionaire in Oyster Bay. Daily he sends a car to New York for a certain barber and pays him $10 for a shave and $15 twice a month for a shave and haircut.

Sign snooping today I snagged this one in the window of a Broadway automat: "Visit our other places."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you are ill you are surprised at the few persons who come to see you or who seek information concerning your condition.

You go over your list of friends and are disappointed in many of them.

You thought you had a stronger place in their lives.

You feel that it would be very little for them to do to call at your home.

When you entertain such thoughts it might be well for you to remember how seldom you have called upon those who are ill.

Certainly you have intended to do so, but this and that came up in which you were interested and you put off the visit.

Not until the friend had recovered did you realize how long the one was ill and the days and weeks you neglected to go to see him.

Now, when you are ill, you bring to mind that many of those who have a right to think you are a friend were not visited by you when confined to their homes.

If you had made a practice of being unselfish and gave liberally of your time to those who were afflicted you never would have occasion to wonder at the little attention you receive.

If you had ever given pleasure to those sick or in trouble they would remember it, so you get just what you sow and have no right to complain.
